THE MICHIGAN CASE.

The Law on Election of Electors Before the Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—On motion of H. M. Duffield, the supreme court today decided to hear argument at once upon the case appealed from Michigan, involving the constitutionality of the law providing for the election of presidential electors in that state by districts. The Chicago lake front case will be taken up next.

It is expected that the argument in the Michigan case will not extend over today's session. In the court below the constitutionality of the law was affirmed. For the appellants, H. M. Duffield and F. A. Baker appeared before the supreme court. Attorney General Miller will probably make a brief argument against the law. For the respondent, the secretary of state. Attorney General Ellis and Otto Kirchner made the argument.

He has accepted an invitation to deliver three addresses in the state of Michigan, and will go to that state from Chicago, and from Michigan will go to Brooklyn, N. Y., where he will speak Oct. 26.

The Democracy of Bloomington are endeavoring in every way possible to induce Mr. Cleveland to visit the home of Mr. Stevenson should the ex-president come to Chicago.

Mr. Barr was about 53 years of age, a Mason of high degree and a prominent member of the G. A. R. He was a practicing physician in South Dakota and a prominent citizen of the state.

J. Edgerston, of the firm of Edgerston & Fries, of Rockville, Md., was struck and killed last night by the Chicago limited on the Baltimore & Ohio road just outside of the city limits.

ANOTHER COLUMBUS FETE.

The Quadro-Centennial Being Celebrated in Connecticut.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 11.—The Knights of Columbus of the state of Connecticut took possession of the city early this morning and are celebrating the quadro-centennial of the discovery of America in a manner worthy of the occasion.

The total number of men in the parade is placed at 6000 while it is safe to say that there are at least 3000 strangers in the city. The program enumerates sixty-five councils and thirty-six brass bands from all parts of the state. These are divided up into seven sections.

The fourth division contained the prominent features of the parade. These were floats to represent events in the time of Columbus. Each float was drawn by six horses, led by costumed grooms. A number of triumphal arches spanned the streets at different points on the line of march and were handsomely decorated. Residents and shop keepers on the streets traversed by the procession have been generous with bunting and many colors.

Union Veteran Legion.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 11.—The trains are bringing many veterans from various parts of the country to this city, the advance guard of the Union Veteran Legion encampment which begins tomorrow. Among the first to arrive was Commander Palmer, of New York.

This is Hard Luck.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 11.—Lieut. Col. Villiers, deputy adjutant general at Winnipeg, has been suspended by Maj. Gen. Herbert for absence from his post without leave. He is now on his wedding tour.

Colonizing Denied.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Denials are made by Charles E. Brown and others that there is any scheme on foot by the Democrats to colonize colored voters.

ANOTHER JACK THE RIPPER.

The Body of a Woman Found Badly Mutilated Near Glasgow.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—The trunk of a woman's body was found today in the garden around a villa in the outskirts of Pollokshields, a suburb of Glasgow. It had been terribly mutilated. Immediately after death, apparently, the woman had been disemboweled, her breast had been cut open, and other horrible methods followed by Jack the Ripper had been attempted with evident clumsiness.

The head, legs and arms had been cut off and scattered through the garden. The features of the face had been so mutilated that they were unrecognizable. The care-taker named McEwan is suspected of the murder. He has not yet been at his post since the discovery of the murder, and the police have been unable to find him.

He is a man of great muscular development, and the condition of the woman's trunk showed that the body was dismembered as much by main strength as by the use of the knife. McEwan drank heavily and was eccentric, but was rarely violent while in liquor.

MRS. MAYBRICK'S CASE.

A Death Bed Confession. Exonerating Her, Said to be in Existence.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—Editor Stead, formerly of the Pall Mall Gazette and now of the Review of Reviews, has written an article entitled "Ought Mrs. Maybrick to be Tortured to Death?" for the next number of the latter publication.

The chief feature of the article is Mr. Stead's assurance that he has a copy of the death bed confession of Henry Wilson, who says that he and a woman other than Mrs. Maybrick administered the arsenic that caused Mr. Maybrick's death. Wilson died recently in South Africa.

A similar copy of the confession is also in the hands of Sir Charles Russell, attorney general. Mr. Stead believes the confession, and thinks that the punishment of Mrs. Maybrick is about to be considered by the United States government. In view of the prospective remonstrances from diplomatic sources and the great probability that Mrs. Maybrick is innocently punished, Mr. Stead urges that she be released before Christmas lest she die in prison. Home Secretay Asquith or the Earl of Rosebery or Mr. Gladstone, he says, should act at once to save her from death in confinement.

WAS PROBABLY POISONED.

Arrest of a Woman Suspected of Committing Murder.

KOKOMO, Ind., Oct. 11.—Edward Wright, a workman in the Rockford bolt works this city, died mysteriously at his boarding house on Main street this morning, and it was first supposed that he had committed suicide.

Later developments, however, led to the arrest of Mrs. Elvira Stevens, a woman with whom Wright had been living on suspicion of having administered the poison to Wright.

A Great Success.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—The Catholic Columbian centennial celebration parade today of the boys of the Catholic institutions of Philadelphia was a big success. Over 8000 gaily-uniformed lads were in line.

Will Get an Office.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Oct. 11.—In an interview with a reporter at Gouverneur Secretary Foster, of the treasury, expressed the belief that Hon. George B. Sloan, of Oswego, would soon be named as assistant secretary of the treasury.

UNITED STATES COURT.

Opens This Morning at the Court House, Judge Nelson Presiding.

The United States circuit court opened at the court house this morning with Judge R. R. Nelson presiding. Marshal J. C. Donahower, Clerk O. B. Hillis and other officers are in attendance. There is not a single criminal case on the calendar to be tried this term, all having been continued. The cases are in the main a lot of personal damage suits of very little importance. There are twenty-seven law cases and seven chancery causes and one United States chancery cause.

The action by the government against a number of parties for dumping sand and excavated matter in the navigable channels of Duluth harbor will be tried next term at St. Paul. The complaints in these actions were all made by the United States engineer officer in charge at this place. Officers of the court expect that this term will last until Oct. 22, unless a great number of the cases should be continued.

The case of Moses Elliott against the Northern Pacific railroad, a personal damage action, in which the defendant received a verdict of $10,000 last term and the court set it aside as excessive, is on trial and will take up the rest of today and part of tomorrow. T. D. Larrabee appears for the plaintiff and Chris O'Brien for the defense.

The hours of court are from 10 to 12 a. m. and from 2:30 until 5 in the afternoon. Maj. Brackett's place has not been filled.

Omaha's Fast Limited.

The Northwestern line will put on its new time table Sunday. The running arrangements of the "limited" have been materially altered and it will then run independently of the Twin city trains. Its time has been lopped off considerably. Southbound it will leave Duluth at 4:50 p. m. daily and arrive at Chicago at 7:45 a. m. the next morning, giving passengers the choice of supper in the buffet or at Spooner, where a 30-minute stop will be made. Northbound it will leave Chicago daily at 5:50 p. m., arriving in Duluth the next morning at 8:55 a. m. The train will be full vestibuled as soon as the car builders can equip the coaches. On the northbound train passengers can have supper in the dining car and breakfast in the buffet or in Duluth. The Omaha people will advertise this train extensively in a day or two.

TWO LIVES WERE LOST

Terrible Explosion of Two Immense Digesters in a Pulp and Paper Mill in Maine.

One of Them Was Thrown Three Hundred Feet Into the Air, Causing $300,000 Loss.

One Man Was Instantly Killed and Six Others Were More or Less Seriously Injured.

ORONO, Me., Oct. 11.—Two large digesters in the Bangor Pulp and Paper company's mill exploded this morning, causing a loss of two lives, and the injury, more or less serious, of six persons. The explosion was without apparent cause, as the digesters were inspected two weeks ago and reported to be in perfect condition. The digester room, the steam engine room and the machine room were shattered into masses of debris.

One of the mammoth digesters was thrown 300 feet into the air, and huge iron beams, timbers and bricks were scattered hundreds of feet from the site of the buildings. Physicians and firemen were soon on the spot and water was immediately turned upon the furnaces, preventing the wrecked buildings from taking fire, and firemen and citizens quickly began the work of rescue.

Richard Sein, a German, was killed outright, William Eddy, of Orono, was terribly injured and died soon after the accident. Walter Smith, Austin Whittemore and William Buchanan were taken out with serious injuries, and Wilson Crosby, H. Farrell and James McQueen were badly brused. Superintendent Clark was in his office writing at the time of the explosion and miraculously escaped injury.

The news paper mill, which adjoined the other buildings and which began work only last Thursday, had one side blown out and one machine damaged. The plant changed hands Oct. 1 and was owned in Boston and Springfield. The digesters were valued at $90,000. The total loss will be over $300,000.

THE FUSIONISTS WON

The People's Party After a Contest Fills Its Ticket by Nominating the Democratic Candidates.

Henry Haskins and M. Wesenberg Fight for a Straight Ticket and Then Support Paul Sharvy.

Charles Canning Nominated for the Legislature Amid Great Enthusiasm, But Says He Will Not Accept.

There was plenty of fun in the People's party convention yesterday afternoon and it looked for a time as though there might be some pretty big breakers ahead. There was an element led by M. Wesenberg, Henry Haskins and Judge Himebaugh, of West Duluth, which was opposed to fusion and wanted the People's party to fight it out, win or lose. The fun commenced early in the game, but it was soon over and then everything slipped through easily. The lobby of the council chamber was well filled and many familiar Democratic faces were to be seen.

Chairman Jenswold called the convention to order at 2:45 o'clock. Secretary Perry was absent and A. F. Rudolph was named assistant secretary. Chairman Jenswold then said the purpose of the convention was to decide whether the ticket should be filled or whether the Democrats should be endorsed.

M. Wesenberg moved that a straight People's party ticket be nominated and H. A. Wetmore seconded. A delegate thought the roll ought to be called and then it was found that there was no list of delegates. A question of a quorum was then raised and Chairman Jenswold announced that in the language of Tom Reed he would "declare a quorum present." A. F. Rudolph moved to amend the motion, that the convention nominate such candidates as it saw fit.

Charles Canning then arose and made a vigorous speech. He said he was surprised at the turn matters had taken, and yet he was not surprised. This year resembles four years ago, when a man had enemies everywhere and it was a boodle campaign. He declared that a proposition had been held out to the Democrats and had been practically agreed to at the last convention. "Shall we go back on that now," he said, "when they have acted like honorable men and accepted our part of the ticket entire? I for one will never stultify myself by going back on our action now. If we do it there is no honor or integrity in us."

Henry Haskins made an argument which was principally to the effect that there had been no agreement and that the People's party ought not to be "swallowed up by the Democrats, breeches and all." "Keep in the middle of the road," was Henry's motto. J. H. Baker thought there were many friends to be made by such a combination. He disliked to see men who are not supporting the People's party nominees coming in and kicking.

A. F. Rudolph said that the whole question was as to whether the convention would do violence to any principle. He argued that it could not, that only in state, congressional and national contests was there any principle at stake. M. Wesenberg maintained that it looked as though the Populists were after spoils and he was opposed to that. John Jenswold said that in eight states the Democrats and Populists have fused and he thought that a higher example than anything this convention could do.

The question was then called on the amendment by a rising vote. The fusionists carried the day easily. Nominations were then called for. Richard Long was named for sheriff and also Henry Haskins. The "cat was let out of the bag" when Henry Haskins got up and placed in nomination Paul Sharvy. Charles Canning was greatly amused and laughingly shouted, "Fusion, Fusion," and then there was an uproar. When it subsided Henry in a burst of flowery eloquence paid a glowing tribute to his candidate, declaring him to be as great a general as Grant, as aggressive as Sherman and with a heart as big as Abe Lincoln; with a deep pocket and a open hand, [great laughter] and who belonged only to the ring of duty. Mr. Wesenberg seconded the nomination. Archie McLean was nominated also but declined and as the parting shot said: "The only question now is shall Paul Sharvy purchase the nomination again this year or not."

The informal ballot resulted in 20 votes for Long, Sharvy 7 and 7 scattering. The informal ballot was then declared formal and Mr. Wesenberg reached for his hat remarking that "if this is a Democratic convention I for one have no use for it," A derisive laugh followed him out.

Emil Olund and Rev. G. H. Kemp were nominated for treasurer. The informal ballot resulted in 19 votes being cast for Mr. Olund and 16 for Mr. Kemp. The ballot was made formal.

The county attorneyship brought a little friction and brought a confirmation of a rumor. It was freely stated in the morning that Wallace Warner went to C. O. Baldwin, the Democratic nominee, and told him that if he would agree to appoint him deputy in the event of his election he would get Mr. Baldwin the People's party endorsement. The latter refused, saying that he would make no promises whatever.

When nominations were called for J. H. Baker named C. O. Baldwin. Frank Osborn said that as he understood it the Democrats were to name the prosecuting attorney, but the Populists should have the choice of his assistant and he wanted this place left vacant to be filled by the committee. Judge Himebaugh put it plainly. He moved that Wallace Warner be nominated on condition that if he could make a deal with Baldwin whereby the latter should agree to appoint him deputy then he should withdraw.

A. F. Rudolph and Charles Canning opposed this saying that as Mr. Baldwin would be accountable for the conduct of the office he ought to be allowed to choose his own assistant. An informal ballot was taken and Baldwin received 14 votes to Warner's 16. A formal ballot was then taken and 22 votes were cast for Baldwin and 9 for Warner.

J. F. McGillivery for surveyor, Miss Lida B. Erhart for superintendent, Dr. Fullerton for coroner, and Charles G. Miller for commissioner were then quickly nominated by acclamation.

The convention then resolved itself into a legislative body and nominated J. Adam Bede by acclamation. K. O. Balstad, nominated at the last convention, withdrew his name and placed before the convention that of Charles Canning. A storm of applause went up, but Mr. Canning got up and declined positively. It was of no use, however, and Canning was unanimously nominated. He declined to speak and John W. Arctander was called to the platform.

He congratulated the party on the work it had done in the convention just concluded. He declared that the common enemy of both Democrats and Populists is the Republican party, the deadly enemy of labor, the nest of plutocracy. He was glad to see them rise above party considerations and if nothing more was accomplished than to seat John Jenswold, Jr., the work would have been well done. They would fight shoulder to shoulder, he said, to down the gang up on the range which has held its foot on St. Louis county ever since it gained a foothold on the range. He also hoped that that noble old scarred warrior, Charles Canning, would accept.

An adjournment was then taken.

After six weeks of active business in Duluth, Dr. Matthez will close his office (Room "D") at the Spalding, Oct. 20, which leaves but nine more days in which to consult him concerning your Eyes and Glasses. SHALL IT BE DIVIDED?

The Methodist Conference Now Felt to be Too Large.

One of the questions to have come up at the present session of the Methodist conference was that of dividing it. For several years past it has been felt that the territory embraced was too large to transact the business of the conference with expedition. It has been proposed that it be divided on a line running from east to west, and just north of Minneapolis. The southern half of the state, including the Twin cities would constitute one conference, and the northern half, including Duluth, the other. The number of members in the southern half of the conference would be nearly a third greater than those in the northern half, but it is reasoned that the development is all in the north, and it would be but a few years before the two would be equal.

Sentiment is very much divided on the question. Many of the members of the present conference hold that to divide it will be to weaken it, while others make the statement that division is necessary, as proven by the great length of the present session, and the difficulty the entertainment committee labors under in securing a place in which the next conference can be held.

Most of the churches think the cost of entertainment is greater than they can afford. The session is now so far advanced that this question will hardly come up this year, but it is the subject of much discussion in the ante rooms.

It has always been difficult to color cotton goods so they would not fade, but recent discoveries have added several new fast dyes for cotton,—pink, purple, orange, and garnet—to the list of Diamond Dyes. They make fadeless and beautiful colors that are brightened and improved when washed with soap. These fast cotton dyes are only found in the Diamond, so refuse other makes.

New York Commerce Distinguished Itself by Presenting a Tribute to the Memory of Columbus.

The Naval Parade Today Was a Spectacle to be Once Seen and Always Remembered.

All the Points of View in the Harbor and Along the Bay Crowded With People.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—New York commerce today presented a tribute to the memory of Columbus. The vast business of the second seaport of the world was practically suspended, and more than 300 steamers and tug boats, the smallest of them larger than the 75-ton Santa Maria or the 40-ton Nina in which the great discoverer and his companions made their adventurous voyage, dropped their ordinary avocations and formed in majestic holiday parade to do him honor. If New York has registered a silent vow to show the world what it could have done if the World's Columbian fair had been permitted to be held here—as the extraordinary enthusiasm and energy which all classes of the community have thrown into this week's Columbian celebration suggests—New York has thoroughly succeeded in carrying out its purpose.

With every favoring condition of skies and weather, with the crisp clear air of the early fall bringing outin sharp outline every object on the dancing waters and along the shores of New York's matchless bay and harbor, the naval pageant of today was a spectacle to be once seen and always remembered. Not even the famous roadstead of Spithead—England's great naval reviewing ground—with all its surrounding panorama of beautiful scenery, could surpass it. From the green heights of Fort Wadsworth, on the western shore at the entrance to the narrows, eastward to the shoals of Rockaway and the Sandy reaches of the Hook, southward to the highlands of the Navesink and northward to the dim blue outlines of the Palisades and the grassy slopes of Riverside, afar up the Hudson, the scene was one of marvelous life and beauty.

And all New York was there to see it. Every one of the 250 steamers, tugs and yachts forming the escorting fleet, as well as each of the vessels composing the naval militia, was crowded with guests. New York became for the nonce a city on the sea. All the points of view in the harbor and along the bay, Liberty island, Staten island, Governor's island, the upper stories and roots of all the great buildings in the city and both shores of the Hudson were thronged with spectators.

Shortly after 10 o'clock the steam tug Carroll with the committee on naval parade steamed forth. The steamers Sam Sloan, Mattawan and Mohawk, having on board a committee of 100 and numerous guests, left the foot of Leroy street about the same time and steamed down the bay. The parade centered and revolved around the foreign naval visitors, the warships of France, Italy and Spain. They had been lying anchored for several days in the Hudson river in the neighborhood of Twenty-third street.

Some time in the early morning they got up steam, weighed anchor and dropped down the river to the point of reception in Gravesend bay, and there anchored to await events. These vessels were the Arethuse, the flagship of the French Atlantic squadron, which by virtue of its rank led the way; the Hussard, another French gunboat, the Italian cruiser Giovanni Bausan, and the Spanish man-of-war Infanta Isabel. None of them is especially a specimen of the modern improved warship. Their presence was a matter of sentiment, not a display of moral force.

The Arethuse is a full rigged iron frigate, unarmored, of about 3400tons, carrying twenty-four guns. She has one smoke stack, has a black hull, standing high out of the water, and somewhat resembles the old United States steamer Minnesota. The Hussard is a smaller boat, bark rigged, and of the class known as a dispatch boat. The Bausan is a twin-screwed steamer with gun turrets fore and aft, lying low in the water and bearing some resemblance to the Boston only that her hull is painted a dark color and not white. The Spanish man-of-war Infanta Isabel, is a bark rigged steel vessel, painted white, and carries her four heavy guns something like the Chicago.

Waiting in attendance on the foreign visitors at the reception point prepared to escort them up the river were the United States squadron commanded by Commodore Erben, U. S. N., consisting of the flagship Philadelphia, the armored cruiser Miantonomoh, the dispatch boats Atlanta and Dolphin, the dynamite gunboat Vesuvius, the coast survey steamer Blake, the revenue cutters Grant and Dexter, and the lighthouse steamer Armenia, together with the torpedo boat Cushing, assigned for the use of the director of the parade, Nicholson Kane.

Thus they lay waiting for the start: French flagship, Arethuse, flanked by the United States steamer Miantonomoh, Capt. Montgomery, and the United States flagship Philadelphia, Capt. Albert S. Barker, U. S. N. French gunboat Hussard, flanked by the coast survey steamer Blake, Lieut. C. S. Vreeland, U. S. N., and the United States steamer Veseuvius, Lieut. Seaton Shroeder, U. S. N. Italian crusier Bausan, flanked by revenue steamer Grant, Capt. Thomas Smith, U. S. N. Spanish cruiser Infanta Isabel flanked by the lighthouse steamer Armenia and revenue steamer Dexter, Capt. J. A. Stam, U. S. R. M. and the United States steamer Cushing, Lieut. Winslow, U. S. N.

Down in the lower bay, just north of the narrows, lay two long lines of anchored vessels, 250 or more of the pick of New York's merchant marines, which were to compose the escorting fleet. The escorting fleet was composed of two squadrons, numbering over 100 vessels in each squadron. The starboard column formed to the eastward of the channel, with its right resting at a point opposite the dry dock, Brooklyn. The port column formed to the westward of the center of the channel, its right resting at a point abreast of Oyster island.

At 12:30 the signal to start was given and the column formed. First came the naval militia of the state of New York, under the command of J. W. Miller, consisting of the tugs of the Pennsylvania and Erie railroads, of the Bee Transportation line and of the New York Lighterage company. These, divided into four squadrons, formed the patrol line of the parade. Every tug, as it fell into line, sounded its shrill whistle and the deep-voiced fog signals of the larger steamers bellowed responses. These were but the police to clear the way.

Swiftly darting through the water came the torpedo boat Cushing, the flagship of the parade, Commodore S. N. Kane on board, and its three attendant vidette boats, the steam yachts Allegra, Helvetia and Aida. Next in order was the steamer Howard Carroll with the distinguished guests of the naval committee, including Vice-President Morton. The flagship Philadelphia headed the starboard column, followed by the Dolphin and the Vesuvius; the Miantonomoh headed the port column, followed by the Atlanta and Blake. The three steamers of the committee of 100 fell in after the war vessels and headed the column of the escorting fleet.

So they moved through the long double row of gayly-decked waiting vessels, bands playing, whistles blowing, flags dipping, yards manned and every possible display of enthusiasm being made. When the last boat of the war fleet had run the gauntlet of this peaceful holiday-making flotilla, the escorting vessels weighed anchor and followed in set order in their wake.

The first division, flying the municipal flag of the city of New York, with its conspicuous crossed anchors, was headed by the tugs of the dock and fire departments and consisted of a special division of chartered steamers. The signs of merriment on board these well appointed steamers were too obvious for concealment. Evidently all on board were having the best of times.

The second division was under the command of Vice-Commander E. D. Morgan of the New York Yacht club, with Chester Griswold as fleet captain. It comprised the steamer yachts: Ituna, flagship; Emu, Corsair, Conqueror, Orienta, Susquehanna, Halcyon, Jean, Isoline, Sapphire, Rival, Aztec, Clermont, Golden Fleece, Mooya, Evelyn, Theresa and Adela, of the American Yacht club (Commodore Lawrence) and the Hannah and Fleetwing of the Newark Yacht club. The fourth division comprised the Staten Island, Brooklyn and North river ferry boats. The other six were miscellaneous steamers and tugs.

MRS. HARRISON WEAKER.

The Disease is now Making More Rapid Progress.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—A special to the Herald from Washington says Mrs. Harrison was much weaker last night than she had been for several days past owing to the more rapid progress of the disease. She slept the greater part of the day, but the sleep was not of a refreshing character.

Dr. Gardner was seen at midnight and admitted that Mrs. Harrison had had an unfavorable turn. It was not unexpected and there was nothing particularly alarming about it. It was discouraging, he said, but it did not indicate any immediate serious result.

WANT A REHEARING.

Application in the Case of One of Dr. Cronin's Murderers.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Application for a rehearing in the case of Dan Coughlin, sentenced to imprisonment for life for the murder of Dr. Cronin, was made by the convict's attorneys to the supreme court of the state and taken under advisement by the final judicial authority yesterday.

The brief of authorities submitted is practically that used in a similar application made on behalf of Dan O'Sullivan, which was denied.

MURDERED AND CREMATED.

Seven Negroes Held for a Double Tragedy in Alabama.

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 11.—Richard T. Johnson and his daughter Johnetta were murdered and their bodies cremated at Davis Ferry, Monroe county, Ala., last Friday night, and seven negroes are held charged with the crime.

Johnson was well known and was well liked by the negroes. As silverware and silver money in some quantity were found in the ruins of the burned dwelling, it is believed that lust and not robbery prompted the terrible crime. It is thought here that some of the prisoners have been lynched since their arrest.

THREE MEN WERE KILLED.

Fatal Row Because a Father Frowned on his Daughter's Lover.

BIGSTONE GAP, Va., Oct. 11.—Frank Johnson went to the home of his sweetheart, Lulu Warwick, in Knott county, Ky., thirty-five miles west of here Sunday night, and was refused admittance by her father.

He came back with three friends, and in the shooting that followed the old man Warwick, his son Tim, and a young man named Jesse belonging to the attacking party were killed.

WAS TERRIBLY INJURED.

A Miner's Jaw, Nose and Ear Blown off and Eyes Blinded.

SPOKANE, Wash., Oct. 11.—John Rouse, a miner, received terrible injuries while working in a tunnel near Libby, on the Great Northern railway, about 120 miles east of this city.

Rouse was preparing a blast and had attached the fuse to the dynamite stick when a premature blast followed, blowing off his lower jaw, nose and ear, and larcerating both eyes, inflicting total blindness. Rouse was picked up by his companions and sent to the hospital. He cannot recover.

Stricken From the Roll.

OTTAWA, Oct. 11.—The minister of militia yesterday struck off the roll of militia officers of Canada, Lieut. E. A. Macdonald, of Toronto, who has recently been lecturing in Boston in favor of the annexation of Canada to the United States. Mr. Bowell thinks Mr. Macdonald's views incompatible with holding a position in her majesty's forces.

Mercier Held for Trial.

QUEBEC, Oct. 11.—Judge Chauveau rendered judgment yesterday committing ex-Premier Mercier, of Quebec, to stand trial on all of the charges of malfeasance brought against him by the attorney general. Mercier was admitted to bail on his own personal recognizance. His trial will take place immediately.

The Weather.

U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, DULUTH, MINN., Oct. 11.—A storm of considerable energy, and covering the country from Texas to the far Northwest and east to the great lakes, has its center over Montana this morning. Little rain has fallen within its limits as yet, but it is probable that it will develop more energy and move eastward today.

The temperature has changed very slightly and remains about the normal in all parts of the country. The warmest place this morning was La Crosse, Wis., and Buffalo, N. Y. The coldest, 32°, at White River, Can., and Calgary, N. W. T.

The highest temperature here yesterday was 52°, the lowest last night 48°.

Cautionary southeast signals were ordered at 11:30 a. m. for all points on Lake Superior and dangerous winds indicated for the lake today and tonight.

DULUTH, Oct. 11.—Cloudy and threatening, probably followed by rain tonight and clearing Wednesday; slight change in temperature today, cooler tomorrow; high easterly wind, shifting to west and north.

B. H. BRONSON,
Local Forecast Official.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Forecast till 8 p. m. tomorrow: For Wisconsin: Local showers on Wednesday, preceded by fair today; southerly winds, shifting to westerly; cooler by Wednesday night. For Minnesota: Occasional showers, followed by clearing weather, cooler in southeast portions; southeasterly winds, becoming variable.

Prosperous Conditions.

The prosperous condition of business this fall is noted in the reports of the commercial agencies from week to week. In this general prosperity, Duluth is a sharer. The report for this city in the last number of Bradstreet's is worth repetition at this time: "Jobbers report a good movement in merchandise. Country merchants are not buying heavily but frequently. The tendency is to be conservative. Collections are good. The prospects are very encouraging for fall trade. The weather has been favorable for harvesting and marketing grain, and prices show an advance. Receipts are quite large."

Duluth's bank clearings last week showed an increase of 32.5 over the corresponding month of the last year, the largest increase, with four exceptions, shown by any city in the country. They were also $445,000 greater than during the previous week of this year, showing the steady gain that is now occurring, because the last mentioned week showed an increase over the preceding week. For several weeks Duluth's clearings showed a decrease as compared with last year. This was due to the difference in wheat prices, staple products commanding a lower price this autumn than they did a year ago. There is no city that shows the effect of this difference in its bank clearings as much as Duluth does.

This, however, promises to be the banner year for bank clearings, taking the country as a whole, as is shown by a table prepared by Bradstreet's. Notwithstanding the previously unexcelled record of total bank clearings for the calendar year 1890, that for the current year promises to present even a larger total, if one may judge by comparative aggregates for nine months. Bank clearings at sixty-one cities in the United States for the past nine months aggregate $45,489,512,000, an increase of almost 10 per cent as compared with the like total for 1891. Last week's bank clearings have increased rapidly at almost all points, due to the volume of settlements at the end of each quarter of the year. The aggregate for the week is $1,303,000,000, nearly 6 per cent more than in the week a year ago and 23 per cent in excess of the previous week.

It is also worthy of note that the publication of the returns of failures has confirmed the feeling, entertained with misgivings in some quarters, that the trade of the country is in an even exceptionally sound condition, which also has helped to strengthen confidence. It appears from Bradstreet's returns that, for the past nine months, the amount of liabilities involved in business failures within the United states amounted to $77,000,000, while for the same time of 1891 the total was $138,800,000, showing a decrease, within the twelve months' interval of 44 per cent. In New York city, the liabilities, for the same months, have fallen from $15,700,000 last year to $6,400,000 this year, or at the rate of 59 per cent. In no year since 1882 has the amount of liabilities been so low as at present; and, making allowance for the increase of population, the ratio is even much lower than in that exceptional year.

Taking an average of the last ten years, the average amount of failures, within the first nine months of the year, has been $107,000,000; which is $30,000,000 above the experience of the current year, making no allowance for an increase of nearly 30 per cent in population during the interval. The losses of the South incident to two years of excessive crops of cotton had prepared us to expect a very unfavorable showing from that section, and yet there the amount of failures has been only $11,100,000 against $24,900,000 in 1891. In the depressed Pacific States we should have expected an increase of failures, and yet the liabilities there show a slight decrease upon last year's. These are most encouraging facts; the more so because they admit of no gainsaying.

In this connection Henry Clews, the New York banker, notes as a gratifying fact that the railroad statisticians estimate the construction of new railroad for the current year at not exceeding 4000 miles. Considering that, within the past decade, there have been years when the construction has reached three times that mileage, this is a most welcome evidence of the conservatism that at present controls this branch of enterprise. What may be forthcoming in future years it is impossible to say; but it must be allowed that, with this current ratio of new construction, there is the minimum of danger of the older roads suffering from the reckless competition of new line for the next few years. The absence of business disturbance by the presidential election is a marked and pleasing feature, and it is claimed that no longer do men talk of postponing their financial operations until the result of the elections has been learned.

The Republican Danger.

The fact that the Democrats and the Populists have fused on the electoral ticket in Minnesota is a serious matter to the Republicans, and it will not do to treat the matter highly and say Minnesota is reliably Republican this year. Minnesota is not reliably Republican this year, if the Democratic and Populist votes be united, as they will now be in the case of the electoral ticket, and it therefore will be necessary for the Republicans to put forth their strongest efforts to carry the state for President Harrison.

The vote for governor two years ago shows that the strength of the combined opposition must not be despised by the Republicans. Then the total vote cast for governor was 240,892, the Republican candidate receiving 88,111 votes, the Democratic candidate 85,844 votes and the Alliance candidate 58,513 votes. The Republicans thus had a plurality of only 2267. Had the Democratic and Alliance vote been concentrated on one candidate, he would have received 144,357 votes to 88,111 for the Republican candidate, or a majority of 56,246. The total vote two years ago, however, was less than for president in 1888, in which year it reached 262,188, or 21,296 greater than in 1890.

It is figured that the total vote this year will be about 275,000. It is hardly probable that the People's party will poll as many votes for Weaver for president as Owen received for governor two years ago. They may poll 40,000, however. The Democratic vote two years ago was 85,844. Out of the 21,296 people who voted in 1888 and staid away from the polls in 1890, probably 8000 were Democrats. Of the 13,000 new votes to be cast this year, 6000 may be classed as Democratic.

This would make the total Democratic vote this year 99,844. Add 40,000 votes polled by the Populists, and there would be a total of 138,844 for the fusion electoral ticket, as against 135,156 votes for the Republican electors, or a majority of 4683 for the fusionists.

It will thus be seen that the Minnesota Republicans cannot afford to sit still and do nothing this year. If they are anxious to deliver the state's electoral vote to Harrison and Reid they must be up and doing. The time is short for active work and the opposition is well organized.

Minister Egan, who has just returned from Chile, received President Harrison's commendation yesterday for the manner in which he discharged the difficult and delicate duties of his position. Mr. Egan richly deserves this tribute. It is a fitting answer to the political ghouls who, led by the Chicago Herald, pursued him with unrelenting bitterness.

The interesting resume of the growth and importance of the lake commerce may be found in part two of the commerce and navigation report for 1891 issued in book form by the treasury department, and it was rather a waste of money for the St. Paul Pioneer Press to have it telegraphed from Washington as a "special" to yesterday's paper.

The Populist convention yesterday was a howling farce.

New Law Firm.

Messrs. B. C. Rude, Charles d'Autremont, Jr., and A. L. Thurman, have just entered into a co-partnership for the practice of law in Duluth under the firm name of Rude, d'Autremont & Thurman at No. 206 Chamber of Commerce building. Mr. d'Autremont, our mayor, is so widely and favorably known, that the mere mention of his name in connection with the new firm gives it an established character. Mr. Rude is recently from Western New York, where, for more than twenty years he conducted one of the largest law practices in that region. His experience has been varied and extensive, particularly in the law of corporations and real estate. Mr. A. L. Thurman is a young man, a graduate of the law school of the University of Virginia, and a grandson of Hon. Allen G. Thurman, the eminent Ohio jurist and statesman. In energy and ability he is no unworthy scion of an illustrious stock. The new firm has all the elements necessary to recommend it to the business community and we bespeak for it the success which it so eminently merits.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Little Tippett."

"Little Tippett" is the attraction of the Temple for this week and will be produced Friday evening. "Little Tippett" is an adaptation by Harry and Edward Paulton (themselves the authors of several noted theatrical successes) from the French of Alexander Bisson, one of the most successful of living writers of farce and comedy. French plays are apt to be risque, but the Gallic dramatists are wonderfully clever in the contriving of dramatic situations. In this case the adaptors have removed everything objectionably suggestive and produced a play that will pass the gauntlet of the most exacting Anglican test. The intricate French complication of situation is there, but the story is absolutely clean, with not a line to offend American taste.

Woman Suffrage.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Your recent paragraph referring to the Mississippi Valley conference of Woman Suffragists, was read with much interest by many progressive people who rejoice in the growth of the woman suffrage sentiment throughout the West. But it would have been read with much more interest could they have learned from it as I now do from the Woman's Journal, that the three Minnesota women mentioned by you as attending the conference, went there to unite with others in urging such enfranchisement as may be obtained by direct legislative enactment, and limited by an educational test.

It is this that the state and local suffrage societies of Minnesota have, at their recent annual meeting, resolved to ask for. It was upon enfranchisement by statute that Mrs. Stearns was invited to read a paper at this conference. Having been heard upon that subject she was also invited to open a discussion upon the ballot for women with an educational test. The Woman's Journal named Mrs. Stearns as leading in the affirmative, and Henry B. Blackwell, of Massachusetts, Hon. M. B. Castle, of Illinois, Miss Laura B. Clay, of Kentucky, Miss Susan B. Anthony, Mrs. Nelson of Minnesota, Mrs. Carrie Lane Chapman, of New York, and others as also taking part in this discussion making it the most interesting one of the conference and encouraging to those advocating the educational test. RUNNING CHANCES of the baby breaking your watch may not result in any damage to your timepiece and loss to your pocket, but there are risks and risks. Some risks you can run without much danger; others you cannot. Missing an early inspection of our stock of Domestic and Imported Novelties is one of the chances you can't run without incurring a loss. In this case two things are certain: This stock is superior to anything we ever offered before, and it is most assuredly superior to anything else now shown in this city. It is sometimes a loss of money not to spend it and it is certainly losing money to miss securing some of these specialties.

Bucking the Combine.

A new phase of the meat market men's combine is developed by the opening of a market alongside of Newell's market at which meat is sold away under that sold by Mr. Newell. This, in all probability, will compel Mr. Newell to close his market and the combine will again have full sway.

TWO DASTARDLY ACTS.

Attempts to Wreck Two Trains on the Monon Route.

BLOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 11.—Two dastardly efforts were made to wreck the trains on the Louisville, New Albany & Chicago road at an early hour this morning near Salem.

As train No. 74 was coming north a tee rail was discovered on the main track. The train was stopped and the rail removed without damage. The section following was notified to look out for wreckers.

This section, however, ran into a coal car that had been run into the main track from the switch and the engine was damaged and conductor also reported hurt. It is supposed that tramps committed the outrage out of revenge, because they were not allowed to ride. The railroad company is after the wreckers.

AN INTERESTING DIALOGUE FROM JUDGE:

A lady had bought a piece of cloth for a Gown at a first-class store, and had strolled into a bargain shop on her way home and upon laying the cloth upon the counter overheard the following conversation:

"I look as well as you do," said the "shoddy" to the "good." "I wouldn't be a 'good' thing even though I could. They buy me; they wear me; I quickly show the wear and tear, and I have a whole big lot of fun 'ahearing' the people swear. They make me up and wear me and imagine I'm a 'bute.' But the shoddy soon is visible although I'm silent as a mute. I admit that I am tricky and awfully, awful bad. But nobody will ever know the amount of fun I've had."

"I don't know you," said the good cloth, "for you I have no use, although I know some people whose confidence you abuse. I wouldn't be so treacherous. Your becoming speedily known. You're despised by all who know, every single one. To be held up and draped up and lied about at sales, 'till everyone knows what you are and lies to sell you fail." With this the 'good' cloth lifts her skirts and calmly walks away, saying: "Your very life hangs on a shred. If you're bought you're thrown away."

IS CAUSING TROUBLE

The Decision of the Methodist Conference in Dr. Forbes' Case Has Stirred Up the Animals.

Thomas Leybourn, Whom the Doctor Charges With Alienating His Wife's Affections, Wants Satisfaction.

He Will Probably Demand That the Conference Investigate or May Bring Suit for Damages.

The Dr. Forbes matter still continues to be a topic of conversation at the Methodist conference at Minneapolis. The sentiment in opposition to the action of the conference seems to be crystallizing and among some ministers there is a feeling that the conference has put its foot in it. Dr. Forbes has not been arrested yet, but Mr. Leybourn has been working the case up with his attorneys and it is probable very soon it will culminate in Dr. Forbes' arrest or in steps to take it into the courts. It is certain Mr. Leybourn will not bring it before the conference. He feels that redress to be obtained there if any could be obtained would be empty. His friends are attending the conference and watching the proceedings, prepared to make things lively if any of the Forbes people bring the matter up. One of them a prominent Minneapolis merchant who has known Thomas C. Leybourn for twenty-five years and stands in close friendship to him said yesterday morning:

"Mr. Leybourn is consulting his attorneys, and as soon as he gets the case in hand there will be developments in it either in the way of arrests or in an action of some sort in the courts. He is not ready to say which yet. The only way that Dr. Forbes ought to be treated is with a good dose of muscular christianity. That is the only thing which would have a good effect. Mr. Leybourn and Mrs. Forbes both have too good characters to be injured to any extent by these insinuations, but the action of the conference in not investigating these charges, places Mr. Leybourn in a peculiar position and some action was necessary. The official board of the Central Park church in St. Paul is back of Mr. Leybourn in this matter and will see him through in it. The action of the conference was not the action of the conservative city pastors and those of the highest standing, but it was the action of the country softheads, who were affected by the story told by Forbes and by his past influence. They did not realize what their action meant, but let their sentiments run away with them. We have talked with the pastors of churches in both St. Paul and Minneapolis, and they deplore the action of the conference."

Dr. Robert Forbes was in the conference for a few minutes yesterday and talked with several of the ministers. Mr. Leybourne was seen yesterday afternoon by a Journal man and asked if he had been advised of any decision yet made by the conference regarding the Forbes case. He said that he had not, but that he understood the matter would be given attention at last night's meeting of the ministers. He stated contrary to a report which has gained circulation, that he would be perfectly satisfied with the redress made him by the conference, but that if redress was not forthcoming, he would be compelled to bring the matter up in a civil court. His feelings towards Mr. Forbes are of the kindest, as he feels satisfied that the gentleman has for years been afflicted with a monomania, but at the same time, he cannot allow his reputation and character to be slandered and tarnished by the wild ravings of an irresponsible man without making an effort to set things right before the world. He is not very confident that the ministers will give him the redress he asks, but still is hopeful, as he would prefer to settle the matter this way rather than in the courts, but he is decided that if the conference does not take the required action he will bring a civil action against Mr. Forbes.

In the conference yesterday some retractions were made by several who spoke during the Forbes debate. They did not, however, get to the root of Mr. Leybourn's grievance. Dr. Forbes said: "Two days ago, when I stood where I stand now, I probably did not speak wisely at every point. I had no sooner taken my seat that I recollected that my remarks were not such as should have been made. It is of Central Park church I wish to speak. Anything I might have said against the members of the official board, or lay members of the Central Park church in St. Paul, I wish to withdraw. I did not intend to assail the personal character of any of them."

A BRANCH ESTABLISHED.

Library Board Appropriated $1200 For a Reading Room at the West End.

The library board met last evening and made an appropriation of $1200 for establishing a branch reading room and distributing station for books at the West End. The board has had this under consideration for some months and has been undetermined whether to take this action or not, considering the present size of the city. Chicago has only had branches for three or four years and St. Paul is only just putting them in. The West Enders were very anxious to have it, and guaranteed the board that with an appropriation of $900 annually the branch could be maintained. The board, however, thought this insufficient and appropriated $1200. The branch will be located in the Silvey block at the corner of West Superior street and Twentieth avenue and will be opened about Dec. 1.

The board also decided to gather all the historical matter relative to Duluth that can be had, such as histories of this portion of the country, views and other interesting matter.

DUE TO MISUNDERSTANDING.

The Protest Against Allowing a Sidetrack From Birch Avenue.

A gentleman who is pretty well posted as to the men concerned and the circumstances in the case, expressed a firm belief to a Herald representative today that the protest made to the council against allowing the Northern Pacific railway to build a sidetrack from Birch avenue to block 27, Rice's point, is all due to a misunderstanding.

The protest is made on the grounds that the sidetrack will injure the property of the petitioners. Now this track would cross Birch avenue parallel to the many other side tracks and would no materially affect that street. It does not touch at all any of the lots in block 27 of the private citizens but runs wholly on property belonging to the railroad company. It should be a benefit to the adjacent property rather than an injury, and when those property holders take into consideration all those facts, together with the fact that the construction of the switch means an elevator and a dry house which will materially benefit Duluth's grain trade, as stated before, it is firmly believed that the protest will be quickly withdrawn.

FIVE IN THE DRAG NET.

The Municipal Court's Disposition of the Police Haul.

Only five fish, and very, very dry ones at that, fell into the judicial net at municipal court this morning. Frank Powell, a sailor from Buffalo, and Steven La Bolte were fined $10 and costs and committed to the county jail. James Flynn gave his honor a great song and dance which caused sentence and fine of $10 and costs to be suspended and James given a chance to get out of town into the logging camp of the Howard Lumber company.

Wm. Park, for drunkenness and disorder, caught a fine of $12 and extras, while John Murray, a one-legged fellow, was requested to board out a fine of $5 and costs for begging on the streets.

There will be another afternoon matinee at the Driving park next Saturday and a number of prizes will be offered. Entries must be made by Friday evening. The races last Friday excited considerable interest and it is expected that this week's will be even more so.

He Says Positively.

Mr. Timothy Barbric is a contractor in Duluth, well known and respected, his brother, Mr. Alexander, recently came to Duluth from Nova Scotia, to remain with him. His eyes had troubled him for a long time by being unable to read continuously, or to endure a bright light, suffering almost continuously with headache. Being referred to Dr. Matthez at the Spalding, the results attained are to be read in the letter which follows. Dr. Matthez closes his office at the Spalding Oct. 20, so that those in need of good eyesight should avail themselves of this opportunity.

Mr. Barbric says:

WEST DULUTH,
FIRST AVENUE WEST,
October 8, 1892.

Dr. L. H. Matthez—Dear Sir: Noticing by the papers that your contemplated stay in Duluth is so soon to be brought to a close, I feel like writing you concerning my eyes and glasses before you leave the city. Your action upon first consulting you inspired confidence by your explanation of my case as well as I could have stated it myself. Though I have been able to see and apparently well for both reading and at a distance, could not read continuously; in fact, had not been able to read for more than five or ten minutes at a time in nearly two years, and distressed my eyes to look at a distance, and I suffered almost incessant headaches. After eight or ten hours devoted to the examination of my eyes and in making the two sets of spectacles for me, the frames to fit the face and glasses ground to the requirements of my eyes. Can say positively that now having worn the glasses constantly since receiving them some weeks ago, that I can see with the greatest comfort and convenience; the pain in my eyes has entirely subsided, which before was so intense, and headaches totally dissipated, and I can see to read perfectly for any length of time without inconvenience. I thank you for your kindness and skill and say hundreds of dollars wouldn't buy my glasses. Yours very truly,

LEX C. BARBRIC.

THEY ARE PARTISANS

According to the Democratic Chairman, Postmasters in Michigan Are Acting in a Partisan Manner.

Formal Complaint Made to the Civil Service Commission and an Inquiry to be Made.

Republican Literature is Favored in Every Way and Democratic Literature Said to be Destroyed.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 11.—Daniel J. Campau, chairman of the Democratic state central committee of Michigan, has formally made complaint to Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, chairman of the civil service commission, against the conduct of the Republican postmasters of Michigan. These office holders are now making, at the request of the Republican state central committee, a list of all the voters, patrons of their offices, with notations as to their politics, connection with farmers' movements and labor societies, and to enlist the prominent Republicans of their towns in the work.

The chairman further charges that the postmaster of Pontiac receives large numbers of newspapers containing a campaign broadside that is in no sense newspaper matter in violation of the postal laws. He further charges that Democratic campaign literature, properly and improperly addressed and stamped is thrown into the waste basket by the Republican postmaster at Shaftesburg.

Mr. Roosevelt has replied that the charges will get an immediate investigation.

Secretary Bates, of the Republican committee, says the wholesome literature he sends out cannot do anybody harm. He suggests an interview with ex-Postmaster Dickinson on the precedents during his term of office.

Many Houses Wrecked.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—A dispatch from La Guayara, Venezuela, states that on Sunday night the most destructive storm the city has ever experienced swept down the Caracas mountain. Many houses were wrecked by landslides and the damage was very great. It is feared that there has been loss of life.

No Decision Came.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 11.—The court of appeals did not hand down the decision in the apportionment cases this morning as was expected.

CANNING WILL RUN.

He Has Agreed to Accept the Nomination for the Legislature.

Charles Canning will make the run for the legislature. He was at first disposed not to accept the nomination, but at the earnest solicitation of his political associates he consented. The Democratic committee agreed last evening to place him on the ticket if he would accept. Mr. Canning has been at Superior nearly all day but John Jenswold, Jr., told a Herald reporter that Mr. Canning had agreed to accept.

She speaks good English and entertains her audience with a history of her people and country in the frozen north, where they have but four months of sunlight in the year, no fresh water, and their only food is flesh, eaten raw. She will sing two Esquimaux songs at the close of her lecture.

An Omission.

Harry, aged five, had never happened to see the moon in the daytime. He came down the other morning shrieking with laughter.

"Why, Harry, what's the matter?" inquired his mother.

"Oh, mamma," said he, as soon as he could speak, "what a joke; they've forgotten to take the moon in!"—Tit-Bits.

WAS PERFECTLY CALM

Last Evening's Session of the Council Was Marked for the Entire Absence of Friction.

Matter of Tunnelling the Canal Was Referred to the Board of Public Works to Report Upon.

W. E. Worden Makes a Proposition Looking to the Establishment of a Market on Lake Avenue—Other Business.

At the council meeting last night the lions laid down with the lambs, and not only did the white winged pigeon of peace hover over the scene from start to finish, but the grist of business was ground out in an even half hour.

The first number on the program was a letter in pen and ink from City Attorney Smith, in which he recommended that the city pay a judgment of $350 obtained in the municipal court at West Duluth. The lady in question received injuries by falling from an unguarded platform at Second street and Seventh avenue west. The original amount prayed for was $500. Some of the marks received in the accident will follow her through life and in Mr. Smith's opinion the city is practically without a case.

Alderman Weiss introduced a resolution giving permission to the Northern Pacific railway to build a side track to block 27, Rice's addition, where a drying house and elevator are being erected. A petition from John Hendrickson objecting to granting the road's request was read. Both the resolution and protest were referred to the committee on railroads.

A petition asking that the office of plumbing inspector be created was presented, the same to be filled by a practical plumber who shall have charge of all the plumbing done in the city. Referred to committee on public offices and officers.

The matter of a tunnel beneath the canal was referred to the board of public works to investigate and report. An ordinance was introduced to amend the ordinance on the rate of driving speed, reducing it from eight to six miles per hour.

William E. Worden made an offer to establish a market place under the Lake avenue viaduct. His scheme is to fit up the place, have it ready by April 1, 1893, take out a lease for twenty years, give bonds to properly perform his part and give the city half the income after deducting the cost of care, heating and lighting. Referred to committee on markets.

On suggestion of President Hugo, a resolution calling for the condemnation proceedings to open a twenty-foot alley through block 26, Duluth proper, Third division, from Piedmont avenue east to Seventh avenue, was referred because of the claim that much valuable property would receive injury if the improvement was made.

The bond of City Engineer Reed in the sum of $10,000 was approved and estimates on public works, aggregating $50,000, were allowed the various contractors. Several ordinances authorizing the extension of gas and water mains were introduced and a number of sanitary sewers were ordered constructed under the care of the board of public works.

There is much darkness in the minds of the citizens as to the voting places, precinct boundaries and judges of election. The council ordered that the boundaries of the precincts be defined, the voting places designated and the judges of election named and the same published in the official paper, the cost being only about $150 against $1000, which was the expense under the plan followed last year.

An ordinance was introduced and referred to the committee in which a fine of $25 is provided for any who destroy the steps at the canal ferry. This measure is calculated to catch tugs and dredging scows that now and then smash those steps.

DOING A GOOD BUSINESS.

The Whaleback J. L. Colby is Making Money for Its Owners.

The whaleback steamer J. L. Colby is doing a rattling freighting business on the Atlantic this year although the recent sanitary regulations have delayed her at several points. She is now in quarantine at Santiago de Cuba but will leave there with a cargo of iron ore in a day or two. All on board are well excepting the captain, who is not, however, down with a contagious disease and will be all right in a few days. The steamer is very closely watched and a quarantine officer is on deck the whole time and a boat containing three other quarantine officers and a lot of marines is alongside night and day. There is a large fleet of vessels in quarantine at that port and in fact at all the Cuban ports. Just before reaching Santiago de Cuba the Colby was in a terrific hurricane which blew her about a little but did no damage not even a water bucket being carried away. Other vessels were not so fortunate and several were driven on shore and the Colby passed through some wreckage on the open sea.

PROFESSOR LACHMUND'S CONCERT.

A Fine Musical Entertainment, Reflecting Credit on Professor and Pupils.

The Lachmund second annual pupils' festival concert drew a fine audience at the Temple last evening and was a musical entertainment which reflected great credit on Professor Ernest Lachmund and his pupils. The piano duos, trios and quartets exhibited plainly the perfection of time which the pupils have acquired. Some of the solo numbers were remarkably fine, particularly that of Guy Williams, and Miss Ellen Shirted's number was also an excellent one. Miss Edith Geraldine Moak's solo, with cello obligato, was the feature. She sang Robaudi's "Alla Stella Confidente." Her voice is a rich contralto, of fine range and power, and is sweet and pure. She was enthusiastically recalled. W. B. Heath, of Minneapolis, sang two numbers and was encored on both. He has a fine tenor voice and uses it effectively.

THE BISHOP WAS SHOCKED.

A Heedless Remark by Presiding Elder Shannon, of Duluth.

There was a little incident at the Methodist conference in Minneapolis yesterday that was rather laughable. When the name of Rev. R. L. Snyder was called and the usual question regarding his character was asked, Rev. W. A. Shannon, presiding elder of the Duluth district, wishing to give Mr. Snyder a hearty endorsement, said: "He takes the cake, bishop."

Mr. Shannon saw his mistake almost before the words were spoken, and when the character had been passed and the applicant had been continued on trial the good bishop, who had sat with the appearence of being greatly shocked, fixed his eye on the offending elder, who had grown very red in the face, and remarked:

"Brother Snyder will be continued on trial, and I suppose he will take the cake and you will take it with him, I hope," at which Mr. Shannon wanted to drop through the floor, but could not.

ONLY COLD, HARD CASH.

The Motto Adopted By Aldermanic Boodlers in Toledo.

TOLEDO, Oct. 11.—There was a sensation in the aldermanic boodle trial yesterday, when ex-Councilman Swain turned states evidence and told the alleged story of the combine. According to his statement there were beside himself Messrs. Rutherford, Neundorff, Gill, Donor, Taylor, Schmul, Daly and ex-Assistant City Clerk Joseph Foskins in the conspiracy.

They formed a regular organization and took an oath to keep it secret. They then proceeded to assess various corporation for franchises and other privileges. It was decided to assess the Paragon Oil company $11,000, the Warren Scharf Paving company $11,000, the Pluto Oil company $5500, on account of its being a home company, and each of the street railway companies $11,000.

Mr. Tanner reported that the Pluto would give $25,000 in stock and it was voted that no stock, notes, bonds or checks would be accepted. "Only the cold, hard cash will go here," was the motto adopted. Mr. Swain related the history of the alleged combine and its several meetings, and was on the stand when court adjourned.

HE FOUND A GOLD MINE.

Great Excitement Among Mountaineers In An Arkansas County.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Oct. 11.—Reports received from Scott county, in a wild region seventy-five miles northwest of this city, are to the effect that the mountaineers are wildly excited over the discovery of a gold mine.

The story of this discovery is that a hunter was led to the spot by his dog which had chased its game into a cave in the mountain. While the hunter was exploring this cave several nuggets were discovered. The people flocked to the spot, and are now camped there and guarding the hole in the ground with shot guns to prevent any one from jumping the claim. This hole in the mountain is believed to have been made by Spaniards, who are known to have carried on mining operations somewhere in these mountains years ago.

TWO NECKS AT STAKE.

Indian Murderers Whose Lives Are Involved in a Legal Dispute.

ASHLAND, Wis., Oct. 11.—Indian Agent Leahy is preparing a complete report of the double murder on the reservation for United States District Attorney Harper. The latter claims that the United States has jurisdiction in the case.

District Attorney Sleights claims it to be a state case. He assisted Coroner Smith in the inquest and his cross-examination brought out the surest evidence against the prisoners.

If tried by the United States court they will most surely be hanged. The state sentence is imprisonment for life. There will probably be a great fight by the defense to have them tried by the state.

The Wisconsin Legislature.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 11.—Governor Peck yesterday issued a proclamation convening the legislature in special session on Monday, Oct. 17, to reapportion the state into senate and assembly districts.

Shot by a Burglar.

ATBURN, N. Y., Oct. 11.—George D. Newkirk and a companion were shot last night by a burglar, who was trying to enter Dickerson's mill at Port Byron. Newkirk is probably fatally wounded.

A Sudden Demise.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 11.—James I. Bennett, formerly of the firm of Graff, Bennet & Co., and at one time president of the Pittsburg & Lake Erie railroad, died at 12:15 o'clock this morning of pneumonia. He had been ill since last Friday and his sudden demise will be a surprise to both the financial and social world, in which he was widely known.

Flour Mill Burned.

FREDERICK CITY, Md., Oct. 11.—James H. Gambrill's Frederick City steam flouring mill was totally destroyed by fire this morning. Loss $30,000. The fire also burned a number of cars on the tracks near by. The mill had a capacity of 150 barrels of flour a day.

Kossuth in Bad Health.

BUDA PESTH, Oct. 11.—Louis Kossuth, the Hungarian patriot, who has been living in Italy during recent years, is reported to be in an alarming state of debility. He is 90 years of age.

ON THE BLUE AND GRAY

Honors Which Both Sides in the Great Civil War Have Received From a Common Country.

The Fine Confederate Home Which is Soon to Be Erected in the State of Missouri.

The Magnificent Memorial Arch Which Will Be Dedicated in Brooklyn at an Early Date.

Every year the bitterness left by the civil war grows less, and every year the veterans of the war are more highly honored north and south. There was long a doubt whether our division would take the course that in Ireland did after the treaty of Limerick, the result being undying hostility, or follow the course of that in Scotland, where the heroic achievements of both sides were thrown into a common stock and became the common glory of the country. Fortunately we followed the Scottish precedent rather than the Irish, and two recent events may serve as pleasing evidences of it.

The first is the building of a Confederate soldiers' home on a farm bought for the purpose near Higginsville, Mo., in a state which never seceded and was the theater of furious neighborhood wars during the entire four years. The home is to be finished by June 1, 1893; to have a front of 91 feet and depth of 110 feet; to be two stories in height and have a high English basement, the whole affording accommodations for 150 persons.

The building will be placed on a massive stone base, with brick superstructure and slate roof, and will be finished throughout in natural woods, heated by steam and equipped with every convenience essential to a comfortable home. It will be in colonial style and characteristic of a southern home in its wide, double porch, hip roof, deck balustrade and large, square opening to abundantly light and ventilate the building. On entering the visitor will pass through a wide vestibule into a reception hall, from which corridors run to the right. With parlor and office the building is to contain thirty-one rooms. At the head of the first stairway there will be an elegant memorial window. The inception of the project is due to many persons, but the chief credit for raising the money and perfecting the details is due to the order known as Daughters of the Confederacy, and their building committee consists of Mesdames A. C. Cassidy, W. P. Howard and R. W. Parcells.

MISSOURI'S CONFEDERATE HOME.

Brooklyn has just completed a beautiful memorial of her citizens who gave their lives for the Union in the form of a triumphial arch, which cost $250,000 men to the Union cause, and about one-third of these either lost their lives in the service or died soon after reaching home. As the population of the county has about trebled since the war began the obligation to erect a fitting memorial of these men was felt to be imperative. The city of New York soon after the war placed in Greenwood cemetery a magnificent granite obelisk, with bronze figures at the base, in memory of her own dead there, and Brooklyn placed a statue of Lincoln in Prospect park.

The memorial arch was strangely delayed, but it is completed at last, and is to be dedicated in a few days. It is constructed of gray granite, so white that without a close examination it appears to be marble. The bases are of dark Quincy granite 3 feet high and resting on a bed of concrete 8 feet deep. The piers are 2 feet 6 inches by 45 feet, the arch is 37 feet wide and 48 feet 6 inches high, and the entire structure is 71 feet high and 80 feet wide. Within each pier is a stairway, and the public can go up in one and down in the other. The summit commands a magnificent view, as the arch stands in Prospect park, midway between the main entrance and the fountain.

Standing upon the summit one can overlook New York and Brooklyn, the great bridge, Staten Island and New Jersey as far as the Orange mountains. From the palisades on the north to the Atlantic highlands on the south, and from Fire island on the east to the New Jersey heights on the west the panorama is indeed magnificent, as the top of the arch is 225 feet above sea level. The panels at the base are for appropriate designs representing the state and the nation, the army and navy.

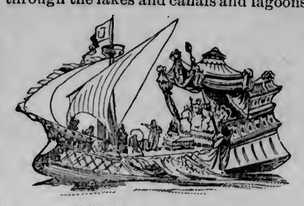
BROOKLYN'S MEMORIAL ARCH.

The population of the Australian continent numbers 3,899,000, according to the recent census. New South Wales is the most populous colony, beating Victoria by 7,600 inhabitants.

SOME GORGEOUS FLOATS.

To Be Seen at the Dedication Ceremonies in October.

With many of the details for the dedication of the World's fair buildings at Chicago the general public is familiar, but of the spectacular side of the celebration little has been written of late, although preparations have been going on for nearly a year. This display, which is termed the "Procession of the Centuries," is to include more than forty floats, and will pass in brilliant pageant through the lakes and canals and lagoons of Jackson park. This will be repeated every night and the illuminations will be magnificent. Important events in the life of Columbus and in the history of America will be represented. Many symbolical floats will also be introduced. Designs for four of these floats are particularly worthy of notice. They will cost thousands of dollars, and are calculated to eclipse anything heretofore seen in this sort of pageantry.



COLUMBUS AT COURT.

The first is a tableau of Columbus before the court of Ferdinand and Isabella. The monarchs sit on their gilded throne under the rich canopy, both attired as becomes the rulers of Leon and Castile. Before them stands Columbus eagerly and earnestly trying to convince them of the truth of his theories. His charts are spread before him on a table. The explorer is dressed in black velvet, with a long gown, which he throws aside in his eagerness. The queen listens intently, the conviction of his truth growing upon her. The king, however, is almost indifferent.

Their Catholic zeal and faith is shown by a large cross behind them. Near Columbus stand several courtiers and some of the wise men. The latter have their own maps with them and cannot suppress a scornful sneer at the presumptuous adventurer, whose mind they suggest is disordered.

The next float is more typically American. "Westward the course of empire takes its way" is the subject. The prominent feature is the prairie schooner drawn by oxen, which is just emerging from a cleft in the rocks. A scout on horseback leads the way, and ahead of him Indians are skulking off behind the rocks and trees. Another Indian peers over a ridge of rock at the advance of civilization.

In the foreground surveyors are working on a line of railway. A little shanty under the cliff is their camp.

TYPIFYING PEACE AND PLENTY.

The two floats "War" and "Peace" will probably be the only suggestion of the civil conflict. The first float will be a dismantled ship, with masts and spars shattered and sails torn in shreds. On the battlefield are cannon, a few dead soldiers and a dead horse. Over it hang the demons of war. The coloring of this float will all be somber. Black will predominate. Lurid red light will be thrown on the war demons hovering over the battlefield.

"Peace" will be in strong contrast to the last one. Every color will be bright. The horn of plenty will be prominent, pouring forth treasures, and angels of peace will hover over the land. The dismounted cannon will be wreathed with flowers, its muzzle filled with roses, children will play over it, and one darling little one will sit astride the breech, spiking it forever. Herewith are given illustrations showing the general scope of two of these interesting designs.

The School Review.

One of the most striking suggestions for the local observances of Columbus Day is that in every town and city in the land the schools parade after the morning exercises of the celebration. While this is not specifically included in the official programme prepared for the day, it is strongly urged by the committee of educators who have had the uniform celebration in charge.

If there is a general parade of the civic and military organizations a "public school review" should be its most honored feature. If there is no general procession the schools alone might be reviewed. Let the pupils meet at their school houses at a designated hour and be conducted by efficient marshals, without delays and in perfect order, to their places in the line. The army veterans north and south, the blue and the gray alike, are properly to march with the schools as special guards of honor. As the reviewing stand is reached each part of the column can salute the flag with cheers and waving of handkerchiefs and caps.

The various patriotic organizations might fittingly be invited both to the morning exercises and to serve, in addition to the veterans, as escorts in the review. The beauty of the review would be heightened if each school carried both the national flag and a distinctive banner of its own. The review also might be made impressive by symbolic floats; models of the "old red school house" and of the ship of Columbus are among the appropriate subjects. This feature, however, should not be attempted unless it can be effectively done. In all cases, let it be said, the fantastic should be rigorously barred from the procession.

DR. JEKYLL AND MR. HYDE.

Not Only a Moral But a Physical Existence in Our Bodies.

The morally good or bad within us has been ably set forth in the story of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, but did it ever occur to you that there was a physical application of this remarkable story, more real and terrible than the contrasts of moral attributes?

The moral perfection of Dr. Jekyll is represented in our physical systems by sound, strong and vigorous health—the skulking, murderous immorality of Mr. Hyde has its prototype in the weakness or disease of our vital organs, which often exist within us, and which may at any moment rise, overcome our strong health, and hold us in its deadly grasp.

How many diseases there are which thus grapple us before we are aware of our peril! We often neglect a little weakness or exhaustion, nervousness, tired brain, sleepless nights, from which we wake tired and unfreshed, weary, languid feeling, headache, confusion of mind, dullness, loss of memory, strange sensations—which mean insanity. Cold feet and limbs, numbness, trembling, prickling sensation, extreme weariness of limbs—mean paralysis. Poor blood, low vitality, pale complexion and great weakness—mean consumption. We often disregard the weakness of nervous debility, malaria, the disorder of stomach, liver or kidneys, until fatal disease fastens upon us.

You neglect these symptoms at your peril, for they may run into incurable disease.

You should use immediately that wonderful remedy, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, the pure vegetable medicine, which restores vigor to the tired brain, strength to the weak and shattered nerves, vitality and health to the exhausted body, and thus prevent fatal results. Druggists, $1.

"I had poor health for several years. Have been under the treatment of many doctors, but they did me no good. The more medicine I took, the weaker I grew; was so bad at last I could not eat or sleep, and had a cough that almost racked me to pieces. I had pains in my chest which made breathing very difficult. As my father, brother and sister had died with consumption, I thought my time had come. With much pleasure and gratitude I can now say that I have been entirely cured of my troubles by Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. My appetite is excellent, my food digests easily, sleep is refreshing, and altogether I feel restored to health once more. ON THE WILD BORDER

Some of the Daring Exploits of Gen. Joe Shelby and His Brave Band of Troopers.

A Missouri Fire Eater Who Fought Desperately to the End and Had Fear of Nothing.

The Daring Forays He Made Into the Enemy's Territory to Gather Recruits and Supplies.

ARK in the far west was as wild and romantic as that region was then wild and outlandish. It was the border, peopled with border characters, and that means a race of hardy, hot blooded, desperate men. In the states west of the Mississippi, as in two or three of those east of it, it was a bittor civil war—one to call out the sterner qualities of men and to spur on the lesser ones. Jo Shelby was a true borderer, and a sketch of his career as a Confederate leader would not be true to the subject nor to those times without a hint of discrimination at the start. Compared with Forrest's, Shelby's work was at times simply guerrilla warfare, and compared with Jeb Stuart's wanton outlawry, but in comparison with that of some of his antagonists, it was quite as legitimate as theirs and perhaps more justifiable.

He was an adopted citizen of Missouri, a state overwhelmingly proslavery in 1860, and it was with him a passion to fight against coercion. To men of his stamp in such crises antagonism only fans the ruling passion. In the Kansas troubles he led a company of volunteers in the fight against free soil. There was no place, then, for such a man outside the Confederate camps the moment secession raised the standard of revolt. He drew sword as captain of a company of home guard cavalry in 1861, and sheathed it as brigadier general in the Confederate States army, leading a division, in 1865.

When the war broke out Shelby was thirty years old, and was doing a small manufacturing business in the little town of Waverly, on the Missouri river. He promptly raised a company for the so called "Home Guard."

His native town was Lexington, Ky., and John H. Morgan had been his schoolmate and playfellow there. Morgan was at the head of a cavalry company also, but his state was trying to live up to the neutral dodge, and he couldn't get gun caps to supply his men. He sent to Shelby to help him out from the St. Louis markets, but there happened to be an embargo on shipments of war stuff just then. There was no trouble about finding the caps; the trick was to smuggle them through the lines. It was done by packing them in flowerpots covered with enough earth to keep alive the innocent plants and shrubs that would serve as a passport when the Union inspector came along. Morgan got the caps, 100,000 of them, and the world knows how well he used them.

The Missouri "Home Guard" was soon driven to the southern border of the state, and its name was changed to Price's Army of Missouri. Shelby was sent back to his old home on Missouri river, then ostensibly Union territory, to recruit and stir up things generally for the Confederacy. Several attempts were made to destroy him while he was thus cut off from his friends, but he kept his company afield, finished his mission and escaped south to join Price at Lexington. After some heavy fighting along the Missouri and Kansas border Price was called east of the Mississippi to help fight the battles of Beauregard and Johnston. Men for the ranks were the sorest need just then, and the cavalry abandoned their horses to do duty on foot. Shelby's company followed suit and served as infantry at Cornith until their one year of service expired. Then Shelby was commissioned to raise a regiment of cavalry and to go back to his old stamping ground in the heart of Missouri to do it.

The Mississippi river above Vicksburg was in Union control and picketed by gunboats, and every place of importance in Missouri was garrisoned by Shelby's bitter enemies. Nevertheless he accepted the job and marched his men to the bank opposite Helena, Ark. A Union gunboat patrolled the river there, and Shelby's men, blooming in bright gray uniforms and fully equipped, pitched camp and threw out sentinels and scouts almost under the shadow of Uncle Sam's grim monitors. In the dead of night six volunteers pulled a skiff silently across, reconnoitered the town, found a trusty haven and arranged for breakfast to be ready before daylight for Captain Shelby and his band. The appointment was kept, and the breakfast was washed down with champagne in honor of the feat in crossing the river safely. From Helena the company struck out overland for Little Rock, dodging Union pickets and patrols on the route. At the end of six days Shelby reached White river, and learned that he was just ahead of a Union expedition moving by land and water to attack Duvall's Bluff and Little Rock.

In order to get on ahead of the Union column he chartered a little steamer to make a night run to Duvall's Bluff, where the Confederates had some batteries. The captain of the boat assumed to be well known on the river, and in spite of Shelby's caution sailed boldly up in front of the guns without showing a signal. When the boat got abreast of the camp the long roll sounded in the works, battle lanterns were hoisted and three heavy guns were run out at the embrasures almost against the steamer's yardarms. The orders were actually given in the battery to open fire on the stranger when the furnace doors on the steamer flew open and a stream of light disclosed the vessel's outline in an instant to the commander at the guns on shore. "Hold on, men; for your lives, hold on—they are friends," was the quick cry, and the vessel passed on in face of gunnery that would have crushed her at one broadside. 'Twas a close call, and the captain of the craft paid for his recklessness on the gallows a fortnight later. He was hanged for treason to the Confederacy.

Shelby's band remained in the vicinity of Little Rock several weeks, frequently volunteering for dangerous work, although they were not legally in the Confederate service. Finally an expedition was set on foot to proceed to the heart of Missouri, and Shelby and his men joined it after re-enlisting for the war. The command fought its way to the Missouri river and back to Arkansas, Shelby leading out 1,000 soldiers raised in his home county in two days. From the colonelcy of the new regiment Shelby leaped at one bound to the command of a cavalry brigade, formed with his own and two other new Missouri regiments.

Soon after the formation of the brigade Shelby's force united with Gen. Marmaduke's division and took the field to resist the invasion of Arkansas from Missouri. The Union troops were in two columns, and Shelby's duty was to threaten and harass one column, while the main army attacked the other. In this movement the budding general made use of tactics that served him in many a campaign afterward. His opponent was Gen. Blunt, leading an army of several thousand. Shelby ran at his foes so recklessly that there was no escape but by retreat. His brigade comprised thirty companies, and these were distributed on both sides of the road some distance apart. When the enemy's head of column came to the first company it would be met by a volley at point blank range. The company would quickly form column and gallop back to a new position behind the other twenty-nine companies, and so on for miles.

After leading Blunt a tedious chase through the mountains Shelby was ordered to turn and dash between the two Union columns and prevent their junction. He set out preceded by an advance guard that was told to "attack anything and everything in sight." Shelby rode at the head of the brigade, and at the first sound of fighting in front rushed on with two cannon and a few men to support the advance. Suddenly he was confronted by superior numbers and challenged to surrender. The enemy dashed for the guns and cut down the artillerymen, and the leader presented a revolver to Shelby's head, crying out a second time, "Surrender or I fire!"

"You are mistaken," retorted Shelby. "It is you who are my prisoner. Listen! behind you."

The sound of the advance guard galloping back to join the fray confirmed Shelby and the Union colonel handed over his sword, exclaiming with the best grace he could, "I am caught, nicely caught."

"IT IS YOU WHO ARE MY PRISONER."

Shelby's advance guard was an institution in itself. It was specially recruited for the purpose from scouts and border men. The motto was "Never retreat," and it soon became an honor for a man to be promoted from the line into the advance corps. Shelby possessed every qualification for rallying about him the most daring spirits of the west. He was of that class called "hustlers" and "boomers," full to bursting with action and enthusiasm.

His hatred of shirks and idlers was so deep that when he found himself in the White river region of Arkansas, where there were at least 10,000 refugees of military age, he determined to drive into the Union army those who couldn't be coaxed into the Confederate. In a proclamation addressed to those men he said: "You shall fight for the north or the south. I will enlist you in the Confederate army or drive you into the Federal ranks. You shall not remain idle spectators of a drama enacted before your eyes."

The order allowed a period of grace in which the men could choose which side they would serve, and closed with the striking appeal, "Come up like men or go to Gen. Steele (the Union commander) like men."

Gen. Forrest added to his celebrity as a cavalryman by an attack on a fleet of Union gunboats at Johnsonville, Tenn. That was in October, 1864. Some weeks previous Shelby made a successful attack on the Union tinclad boat Queen City, at Clarendon on White river. It was during his occupation of the district as a recruiting ground. The Union forces held Duvall's Bluff and the navy patrolled the river below that point. Shelby led his men stealthily to the water's edge at Clarendon, masked four cannon and a body of his soldiers, dismounted for the purpose, and at daylight opened fire upon the unsuspecting sentinel.

It was a short fight and the Queen City struck her colors. Shelby dismounted her batteries and then applied the torch. The ship's guns were hauled ashore and placed in battery near the scene, and in a short time a fleet headed by the gunboat Tyler steamed down from the bluffs. After a hot action the vessels were driven off and Shelby clung to his post until a force of land troops, under Gen. E. A. Carr, marched down on his flank to aid the gunboats. Shelby got away in his favorite style of a running fight.

Shelby took part in many raids as a subordinate leader, and personally led one from Arkansas to the Missouri river in 1863, covering a wide circuit. He claimed to have traveled 1,500 miles, seized and destroyed much valuable property and defeated the enemy in several battles. As for his fighting in general, there were 7 field officers of his regiments killed in action and 27 wounded, nearly all of them several times. His advance guard and the battery which followed his fortunes were also very heavy losers in battle. Shelby was one of those who favored a trans-Mississippi empire, and wanted to keep up the fight in Texas after Lee and Johnston laid down their swords. That plan failing, he and his men crossed the Rio Grande and joined the Imperialists in Mexico.

GEORGE L. KILMER.

Perhaps some of our readers would like to know in what respect Chamberlain's cough remedy is better than any other. We will tell you. When this remedy is taken as soon as a cold has been contracted, and before it has been settled in the system, it will counteract the effect of the cold and greatly lessen it's severity, and it is the only remedy that will do this. It acts in perfect harmony with nature and aids nature in relieving the lungs, opening the secretions, liquefying the mucus and causing its expulsion from the air cells of the lungs and restoring the system to a strong and healthy condition. No other remedy in the market possesses these remarkable properties. No other will cure a cold so quickly. For sale by druggists.

An Eloping Couple Prominent in St. Paul Colored Society Circles Come to Duluth and Disappear.

Mrs. George Hunton Leaves Her Husband and Two Children and Flies With George Young.

Robert Hunton, a St. Paul Colored Lawyer, Brother of the Husband, Follows Them to Duluth.

Colored society circles in Duluth, Minneapolis and St. Paul are considerably stirred up over an elopement which took place last week but which was kept quiet until yesterday afternoon when some of the pursuers reached here. The eloping couple are Clarence Young, formerly conductor of an Eastern Minnesota buffet car, and Mrs. George Hunton, of St. Paul. The runaway wife left two children behind her and she is a strikingly handsome colored woman about 24 years old. Her husband has one of the through sleepers on the "Soo" line between St. Paul and Boston, and is away from home about ten days at a time. Clarence Young, the eloping man, is a good looking, light colored darkey about 29 years old, and he is said to have been instrumental in breaking up the family relations of a colored letter carrier in St. Paul some months ago. In fact, Young is a regular colored Don Juan.

Mrs. Hunton left her home in St. Paul on Thusday night and came to Duluth on an Omaha train arriving here Friday morning. Friday evening Young came in on his Eastern run and the couple stayed over here until Saturday, when they disappeared. Yesterday afternoon Robert Hunton, the well-known colored lawyer of St. Paul and brother of the wronged husband, accompanied by G. W. Higgins, father of the erring woman, arrived here in search of the runaways, who are known to be in this section. They will be joined or followed here this evening by George Hunton, the injured husband, and a grand roundup will be inaugurated. The scattered family moved in the very best colored circles in St. Paul and Mr. Hunter has a very nice home and is reported to be worth about $30,000. It is said here that Young just before disappearing from Duluth with his paramour uttered a worthless check on a St. Paul bank for $50.

WE'LL WARRANT AN Adonis may be spoiled by wretched-fitting clothes, and an awkward man made half a polished man by fitting Clothes. It's the latter we sell.

Don't buy an autumn-weight Overcoat or a Fall Suit unless it looks as if it had been made for you.

But, if you do that you'll have to abandon the stores that sleep while the seasons go by. If you want just as good as the merchant tailors can give, you'll have to come to us. It doesn't matter that we save you money. What does matter is that we know how to combine the merchant tailor's goodness with the ready-made clothes price.

Hard men to fit, men who never tried ready-made, particular men, they all lay their money down in this store with pleasure.

No matter how bad-shaped you are, we've a lot of ill-shaped Overcoats (made purposely disproportioned) for disproportioned men. Mostly, if you are, we mayn't have to move a button.

Of course, if you're a good shape, it's easy to fit you in this store.

TENNYSON IS AT REST

The Remains of England's Great Poet Laureate Were Deposited in Westminster Abbey This Afternoon.

An Impressive Scene During the Solemn Services Which Were Attended by an Immense Crowd.

The Famous Abbey Was Too Small to Hold the Thousands Who Mourned the Dead Poet.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Throughout the night the body of Lord Tennyson lay in St. Faith's chapel, Westminster abbey, the Union Jack covering the coffin and a few trails of ivy placed there by Hallam Tennyson lying loosely over it. The copy of Shakespeare, which Tennyson read during his last hours, was placed beside the coffin. During the night the coffin lay in darkness, save for the feeble rays of a gas lamp in a neighboring street which flickered weirdly through the windows.

The door was locked when the family left, after the coffin had been deposited in the chapel last evening. So it remained until the opening of the abbey today when the vergers arrived and stood guard at the sacred entrance awaiting the moment when the coffin should be borne to the altar trestle. It was a frosty autumnal morning, the rising sun breaking through a have fiery red. Soon after daylight people began to gather around the door of the north nave, to which admission was to be free for the public and four hours before the time for opening the door, the neighborhood of this entrance was thronged.

It was noticeable that all were dressed in black and many in deep mourning. Sorrow as if for a personal friend was depicted upon all countenances, as the lovers of the pure-minded poet stood patiently awaiting admission to take part in the last honors of his earthly remains. Meanwhile holders of tickets of invitation were arriving and being ushered into the broad sanctuary opening into the abbey, and long before the ceremony began the historic edifice was crowded. Outside thousands lingered unable to obtain entrance, yet unwilling to depart from near the spot where an event of such mournful interest to the nation and to mankind was in progress.

The assemblage in the abbey was a distinguished one. The premier of England, Mr. Gladstone, was represented by Hon. Arthur Littleton; the prince of Wales by Gen. Probyn, of his household; the duke of Edinburgh by his private secretary, Hon. William James Colville; the duke of York, heir presumptive, by Sir Francis Winton, and the British government by Hon. H. H. Asquith, the home secretary. Walter Besant and many other prominent men of letters were present.

The scene was most impressive. The abbey choir was covered with a rich hanging of purple velvet. The nave was lined on both sides with orphan boys of the home founded by Gen. Gordon, an institution in which Tennyson took a marked sympathetic interest. The boys wore a modified Scotch uniform and carried themselves with military precision. Along the aisle were also scattered the few survivors of the Light Brigade whose famous Balaklava charge has been made perpetual by Tennyson's poem. Most of them wore the brilliant red uniform of Chelsea pensioners and all had broad bands of crepe on their arms.

At noon the sun burst out in full splendor from the haze which had hitherto partially obscured its rays, and the interior of the abbey was gloriously illumined, bringing out all the beauties of the sculpture and carving. A moment later Sir Henry Ponsonby, the queen's private secretary, entered the chapel and on behalf of her majesty placed a beautiful wreath upon the coffin. Sir Henry then proceeded to the dean of Westminster's stall, where he sat as representative of the queen. The archbishops of Canterbury and York occupied sub-dean's stalls.

So many wreaths had been sent to the abbey that it was impossible to find room for them with the coffin. They were placed in the Jerusalem chamber and were found to amount to several wagon loads. Only a few of the most choice or appropriate designs were placed near the grave. One of these were composed of laurel gathered in Shakespeare's garden at Stratford. Another wreath conspicuously placed was one ordered by the Tennyson club of Arkansas and Missouri. It was composed of roses and chrysanthemums and was of especially beautiful design. Mary Anderson sent a mat of laurel violets and white may.

At 12:30 o'clock a stair around the door of St. Faith's chapel attracted the attention of the waiting audience in the abbey and all eyes were directed to the spot. First appeared the officiating clergy, then the coffin, which bore only the wreaths contributed by the queen and members of the family. The pall was an ordinary Union Jack. It was was borne on the right hand by Lord Salisbury, the late premier; Earl Selborne, Lord Roseberry, minister of foreign affairs; Lord Kelvin, (formerly Sir William Thomson), W. E. H. Lecky, the historian, and Henry Montagu Butler, D. D., master of Trinity college, Cambridge, and on the left by the duke of Argyll, Earl Dufferin, Mr. Henry White, secretary of the American legation, Sir James Paget, Benjamin Jewett, master of Balliol college, Oxford, and James Anthony Froude, the historian.

Immediately behind the coffin walked the poet's son, Hallam Tennyson, with his wife and children and some intimate friends of the family. The procession passed through the cloisters and the nave to the altar, where the coffin was placed upon trestles and the religious ceremony was conducted, the archbishop of Canterbury officiating, assisted by the deans and canons. Among the many Americans noticed in the triforium during the services were Edwin H. Terrell, American minister to Belgium; Samuel R. Thayer, American minister to the Netherlands; ex-Senator George F. Edmonds, of Vermont; Maj. Post, of the American legation; Hon. George F. Hoar, of Massachusetts, and Mr. Emerson, of Boston, nephew of the late Ralph Waldo Emerson.

As the body was carried into the abbey the music by Croft and Purcell was sung in the processional parts of the service. As the procession paused and the bearers placed the coffin, the choir beneath the lectern chanted the psalm beginning "Lord, Thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations." As the words, "In the evening it is cut down and withered" came from their lips, the stillness of the abbey was broken by low sobs from the family of the dead poet. The lesson was followed by the singing of "Crossing of the Bar," and another anthem with the words of an unpublished poem from Tennyson.

The last anthem sung was "Silent Voices," written but not published by Tennyson, and set to music by his wife. It contains ten lines of exquisite beauty, closing with these words:

"Call me farther, silent voices,
Forward to the starry track,
Glimmering up the heights beyond me,
On and always on."

At the grave Dean Bradley said the prayer, the collect and the benediction, and the great crowd dispersed as the notes of the "Dead March from Saul" sounded through the abbey. There was no procession from the abbey at the close of the service.

Westminster abbey has hardly seen a funeral so representative as the one today of the grief of all classes of the civilized world. Music, art, literature, labor and statesmanship were represented by their great men. Henry Irving with his best known colleagues, John Burns with the socialists and labor agitators, cabinet ministers and ex-cabinet ministers, royal academicians, the poets of whom the dead poet was the chief, and men from England's greatest mercantile houses were crowded together, elbow to elbow.

The flowers came from persons of all classes. The queen's last tribute was three wreaths, one bearing the words, "A mark of sincere regard from Victoria, R. I." The Princess Beatrice sent a wreath of lilies and roses, and the prince and princess of Wales sent wreaths of lilies and immortelles. Princes of other nations sent wreaths which lie on the tomb with the flowers from admirers in the United States and societies of Germany, Italy and France.

From Mantua came a wreath of bay leaves picked at Virgil's tomb and bearing the words, "From admirers in Mantua." This wreath, with the wreaths from the Tennyson family, were left on the coffin and were placed with it in the poet's tomb. Westminster abbey was shown to be quite inadequate to holding the thousands who gathered to show their love and respect for the poet and his work. Hundreds gathered at the doors, listened to the music and did not leave until the last word of the service had been said.

POPULISTS ARE PLEASED.

They Drew First Place on the State Ticket and Dems Second.

ST. PAUL, Oct. 12.—Representatives of the four political parties met yesterday in the office of the secretary of state and as a result of their drawing, the parties will occupy the following positions upon the state ticket to be voted on election day: First, People's party; second, Democratic party; third, Prohibition party; fourth, Republican party.

The drawing took place in the office of the secretary of state at the capitol. All the parties were represented by members of the state committees, and it was a very anxious crowd. The slips were all dropped into a hat, after which Secretary Brown drew them out one by one. The People's party came first. This was followed by a Democratic slip, and then came Prohibitionist, and last of all came the Republican slip.

The People's party men were delighted, of course, and the Democrats were fairly well pleased, although they had hoped to be placed at the head of the ticket. The Prohibitionists and Republicans professed to be satisfied. The Republicans will have their candidates at the head of the electoral ticket, as that comes in under a different law.

THEY CHARGE CONSPIRACY.

The Prosecution of the Big Packers Becoming Interesting.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—To learn the amount of short ribs on the market is now said to be the object back of the prosecution of Cudahy and Wright. The case was called in Justice Glennon's court yesterday but was continued.

The prosecution has subpoenaed all the big packers and will attempt to make them bring their books into evidence. W. J. Hynes and A. S. Trude, counsel for the defendants, propose to take the aggressive and charge the other side with conspiracy. Who the persons are that are back of Thomas Rousch, the complaining witness, has not been made public.

Mr. Hynes said yesterday: "We believe that we shall have an action against the persons who caused my clients' arrest. We shall try to prove conspiracy to bring about a citizen's arrest for private gain."

FOSSTON, Minn., Oct. 12.—A fire is raging in the Beltrami county pineries, doing much damage to standing pine. A large body of men left here early yesterday morning to assist in fighting the fire at Tadisvold & Larson's sawmill.

A GRIP CAR CRUSHED.

Three People Killed Outright and One Fatally Injured by a Collision in Kansas City.

A Freight Train on the Belt Line Ran Into a Grip Car and Smashed it Badly.

The Gripman Was Mangled Out of all Semblance of Human Form in the Wreck.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 12.—At 7:30 this morning a freight train on the belt line ran into a grip car at the Fifteenth street crossing and killed three people outright, fatally injuring a fourth. The gripman and engineer both saw the danger and tried to stop their trains but the tracks were slippery and the brakes would not hold. The locomotive struck the center of the grip car and crushed it to kindling wood, carrying the debris fully 500 yards from the scene of the wreck.

The gripman, W. W. Pardee, was mangled out of all semblance of human form. A man and woman on the grip car were instantly killed and have not been identified. A boy was struck, and so badly injured that he will die. He has been unconscious since the accident, and has not been identified.

UNITED STATES COURT.

Moses Elliott vs. the Northern Pacific Gone to the Jury.

In the United States court this morning two special venires of twelve jurors each were returned satisfied and the jurors were excused until 10 o'clock tomorrow. The attorneys in the case of Moses Elliott vs. the Northern Pacific railroad made their arguments and it has gone to the jury, The judge's charge was delivered just at the noon adjournment. The general impression seems to be that the plaintiff will receive about $2500. Since reassembling the time of the court has been taken up hearing a great number of motions, none of them of an particular importance.

There is a strong probability that the case of Liza M. Johnson, administratrix of the estate of Frank A. Johnson, deceased, vs. the Northern Pacific railroad will be the next case tried. It is a damage suit wherein the administratrix's husband is alleged to have been killed by the cars of the defendant corporation. John Jenswold will prosecute and J. C. Bullitt and T. R. Selmes defend.

In the case of J. W. Bull vs. C. E. Dickerman a motion was argued this afternoon. The defendant wishes to introduce more testimony. The case was tried and submitted at the last term.

MILITARY AND CIVIC.

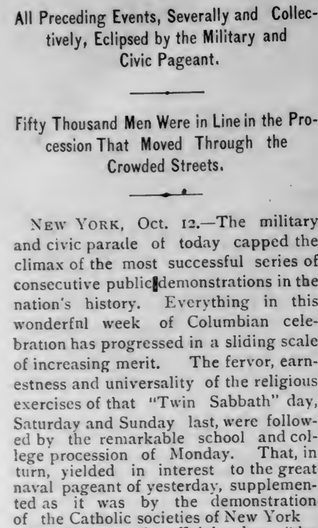
Today's Parade in New York Capped the Climax of the Great Series of Demonstrations.

All Preceding Events, Severally and Collectively, Eclipsed by the Military and Civic Pageant.

Fifty Thousand Men Were in Line in the Procession That Moved Through the Crowded Streets.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—The military and civic parade of today capped the climax of the most successful series of consecutive public demonstrations in the nation's history. Everything in this wonderful week of Columbian celebration has progressed in a sliding scale of increasing merit. The fervor, earnestness and universality of the religious exercises of that "Twin Sabbath" day, Saturday and Sunday last, were followed by the remarkable school and college procession of Monday. That, in turn, yielded in interest to the great naval pageant of yesterday, supplemented as it was by the demonstration of the Catholic societies of New York

But, to quote the official orders, "the assembling, movement and disbandment of the forces of the army, navy and national guard, the organizations of the Grand Army of the Republic and of the various societies" participating in military parade this morning under the marshalship of Gen. Martin T. McMahon, in the celebration of the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America, eclipsed all the preceding events severally and collectively. The governors of five great states—New York, New Jersey, Pennsyluania, Connecticut and Massachusetts—the entire state national guard of New York and powerful brigades from Pennsylvania, Connecticut and New Jersey, strong forces of United States troops and blue jackets, reinforced by such a majestic civic parade as only the great cosmopolitan city of New York can produce, all combined to do honor to the occasion.



COLUMBUS MONUMENT.

Assuredly that "mysterious light" which history says Columbus thought he saw on the eve of this day 400 years ago, and anxiously waited for the morning to verify, may now be said to have fully dawned, and in the luster of its beams the country enters upon the fifth century of its known history. How much longer this fever of excitement could be kept up without public danger might be asked, if these demonstrations were to continue. It seemed yesterday as if the city had never been so full of strangers before; yet they have continued to pour in.

All the railroads connecting with distant points—the Pennsylvania, New York Central, Lackawanna & Western, Erie and West Shore roads, were taxed to their full capacity and had to run their trains in sections. But good order and good humor everywhere prevailed. Distinguished strangers are plentiful as blackberries in September. Without referring to those enumerated elsewhere as participating in the parade, among those who viewed the proceedings from different points along the route were Mrs. U. S. Grant, Mrs. Cleveland, Mrs. George B. McClellan, Secretaries Foster of both the state and treasury, Secretaries Rusk and Noble,, the Italian minister, Baron Fava, who of a right has been a leading and interested spectator of the honors paid his countryman, the Turkish minister (Mavroyeni Bey) and many others.

The saying, often ascribed on very doubtful authority to the old duke of Wellington, that it required military genius to march 10,000 men through the gates of Hyde Park, London, and march them out again without a hitch, was illustrated in the elaborate arrangements made for the mustering of the immense host today. The order of procession was that followed on Monday, and the parade beginning down town and marching up, instead of starting in the upper portions of the city and marching down, all the leading streets of older New York were laid under contribution as assembling grounds.

The numerous staff of Grand Marshal McMahon met in Washington square near Broadway at 8:30 o'clock. Troop A, of the New York National Guard, selected as the escort of the grand marshal, formed on Whitehall street with its right resting on Beaver street at 9 o'clock. The first division—2000 troops of the United States army—commanded by Col. Langdon, Col. Finley Anderson, chief of staff, formed on the battery and moved up Whitehall street until the right rested on Bowling green, which point they were timed to make at 9:45.

The second division, selected men of the United States naval brigade, blue jackets from the wars ship Philadelphia, Miantonomoh, Atlanta, Dolphin, and Vesuvius, under Lieutenant Commander Asa Walker, formed in Bridge street with right resting on Whitehall street. The First brigade, state national guard of New York, 5000 men, who acted as escort to the visiting troops, assembled on Battery place, State and Greenwich streets; and the Second brigade of New York state troops gathered on Beaver street and streets south of it at 10 a. m. The Pennsylvania troops, 3000 strong, under their commander-in-chief, Governor Pattison, formed in Wall, New and William streets, with their right resting on the corner of Broadway and Wall, at 10:20.

FLOAT OF THE CAPITOL.

A small detachment of the Gate City guard of Savannah, Ga., and other Georgian visitors made their rendezvous on Cedar street. The Connecticut militia, 2000 of them, Governor Bulkely commanding, formed on Liberty street east of Broadway. They were followed into column by the governor of Massachusetts and his staff. After the governor of Massachusetts came the Fencibles of Washington city, the champion drill corps of the country. The Grand Army posts, 1750 strong, were formed in line in Broom, Spring and Prince streets and got into position at 11 o'clock sharp.

The New York city and volunteer fire departments—what would any civic parade be in New York without the old volunteer fire department—formed on Cortland, Dey, Fulton, Vesey and Barclay streets and Park Place. The Italian countrymen of Columbus marshaled their military organizations in and around Beekman street. The German uniformed societies, over 12,000 strong, stretched all over the streets east of Beekman and North Park row, with their right resting on Broadway and Mail street. They formed the ninth division of the parade. The French military organizations, Gardes La fayette and Grenadiers Rochambeau, very limited in numbers, were grouped with other independent military organizations in the tenth and last division.

The mere enumeration of the forces making up the mighty host of today's paraders shows how formidable was the task Marshal McMahon and his aides undertook. It is deemed good marching under favorable circumstances to put from 10,000 to 12,000 men an hour past a given point. The great two-days' review in Washington in 1865 at the close of the war, when 60,000 veterans swung past the reviewing stand in quick step, occupied six hours each day. The Grand Army parade in Washington last month, when a like number of veterans passed in review, occupied the same time. The staff of the marshal was as follows:

Grand marshal, Gen. Martin T. McMahon; chief of staff, Gen. Wm. D. Whipple, U. S. A.; senior aide, Gen. Anson G. McCook; aides in charge of headquarters, Lieut. R. H. Patterson, U. S. A., Lieut. David Price, U. S. A.; quartermaster, Col. Samuel Truesdell, U. S. A.; aides in charge of signalling and telegraphing, Capt. Albert Gallup, N. G. S. N. Y., and Col. S. G. Reed.

The 150 bands, more or less, of the Catholic parade of last night were marching about to the tune of "We Won't Go Home Till Morning" until after 2 o'clock a. m. At 6:30 the deep boom of the reveille guns woke everybody up again to another day of such perfect weather as surely was never vouchsafed before in a whole week of open air celebrations. Bands began to play again, church chimes to ring and the first notes and noises of the day's rejoicings were in full working order by 7 a. m. Artillery was rumbling along the streets, gaily caparisoned aides, superbly mounted, were galloping everywhere, seeing that the preliminary orders of the marshal-in-chief were carried out, and troops of visitors from adjacent cities were hurrying in and taking up position for the day.

The official stands had seating capacity for over 40,000 guests. They were located in front of the Washington arch, in Union square, in front of the Lafayette monument, at the Central park, and chiefest of all in Madison square, where the procession was reviewed by the vice president. Seats to these stands could be bought at prices ranging all the way from $1 up to $5. Complimentary stands, to which admission was had by invitation, were erected for the mayor at the city hall, for the board of aldermen at Lincoln monument, at Washington monument and at the Worth monument for distinguished guests. These had a seating capacity of over 10,000 more. To all these methods of seeing the sight were added innumerable improvised stands placed at the intersections of streets on the line of parade, by special police permission, formed of floats on which dry goods boxes and plank seats were piled tier above tier. Prices of admission to these uncomfortable perches were matters for private arrangement.

SANTA MARIA FLOAT.

The route of the procession was from the Battery, at the foot of Broadway, up Broadway to Fourth street, then turning west passing round Washington square to Fifth avenue; up Fifth avenue to Fourteenth street; Fourth avenue to Seventeenth street; along Fifth avenue from Seventeenth to Fifteenth street (Central Park) and there to disband. The arrangements for disbanding were as carefully and elaborately made before hand as those for assembling. There was no informal "petering out." Each division marched to its allotted station and there dispersed. It was estimated beforehand that about 46,000 men would be in line. It became evident early in the day that this estimate would be surpassed. The time of starting was 10 a. m.

The platoon of mounted police which headed the procession had great difficulty in clearing the streets of lower Broadway, through the great bulk of the spectators, wearied somewhat by the long day's observances of the day before, took position further up town so as to view the parade in its more advanced stages at a later hour in the day. The fact that the last division was not ordered to be ready to fall into line until 11:45, an hour and three-quarters after the start, intimated that there was to be a long day of it.

Marshal McMahon and his brilliant staff were worthy of the day and the occasion. The artillery and the United States troops which followed marched like regulars, as they were, but even they, accustomed as they were to public displays, seemed to partake somewhat of the general exhiliration and moved with a cheerfulness in keeping with the rest. The blue jackets of the navy enjoyed it also. New York's gallant national guards, fresh from their services at Buffalo, escorting Gen. Snowden and the Pennsylvania troops who had such arduous duties at Homestead, could exchange campaign reminiscences.

The familiar blue hard service uniforms of the Pennsylvania men were greeted with cheers and not less generous welcome was accorded to the visiting troops from the neighboring states of Connecticut and New Jersey. Governor Pattison, whose devotion to the National guard of his state of which he was an officer long before he was governor, is well known, riding at the head of his men, was roundly cheered. Governors Abbett, of New Jersey, and Bulkely, of Connecticut, also came in for applause as each headed the troop of his respective state.

APPROVES OF FUSION.

Hon. J. W. Arctander Delivers a Speech Urging all Populists to Vote the Combined Electoral Ticket.

He Roasts the Republican Party as the Common Enemy of Both Populists nnd Democrats.

Also Advises all Populists to Vote for Baldwin Unless They Want to Elect Judge Searie.

Hon. J. W. Arctander addressed a meeting at Normanna hall last evening called as an "independent labor rally." The hall was well filled and frequently applauded the speaker. A number of Democrats were present and some of the prominent Populists. John Jenswold introduced the speaker, saying a few words himself. He said that the old maxim "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty" is a good one to work under today. The time has passed when one man can do the thinking for the masses. He introduced Mr. Arctander as an independent thinker, a man who would bow his head to no man or party unless he knew that it would be right; a man whose eloquence is so forcible and his logic so conclusive that none can question him.

Mr. Arctander spoke for about three hours. He expressed his pleasure at the large assemblage particularly because it had been called as an independent meeting. When the laboring men and farmers awake then will it be good-bye to corruption and tyranny. He asked for independence in the voter. He who votes what is dished up to him is only a voting machine. The Republican party was arraigned at length as the hot bed of corruption and monopoly. All the moneyed interests of the country belong to it. Gresham can never be president because he is not in with the gang that runs the Republican conventions. He asked the question as to where the monopolists are found and answered it by classing with the Republicans Jay Gould, the Vanderbilts, Depew, Carnegie, Wanamaker, the Fields and Rochefellers, Jim Hill, Tom Lowry, Bacon, Sellwood and others. Jim Hill, he said, has been called a Democrat but since he got hold of his railroad has been the largest contributor to the Republican campaign fund.

The interests of capital and labor, Mr. Arctander declared, are diametrically opposite; they have nothing in common, and one must conquer the other. All the enemies of labor are in the Republican party. They spend their money there and get value received. He touched on the tariff question lightly.

"They say our industries need protection," said he. "I got back from Europe three weeks ago. While in England I went into a store and priced a "Perfection" ax made in America. The cost was 60 cents. I went into Costello's store here a few days ago and found the very same ax, but the price was $1. I also found that an American sewing machine which I paid $55 for I could buy in Norway for $28. A mowing machine costing $80 here can be had for $40 over there."

There were two things, he said, which the Republicans would admit free; one was sugar because a few poor Democrats in Louisiana are the only American manufacturers; and muscle labor. Five hundred thousand pairs of arms are added each year to the laboring forces of the country free of duty. Harrison was attacked for his appointments to the supreme bench and particularly for refusing to place Gresham there.

The Democratic party was then taken up and found some favor with Mr. Arctander. It was not his ideal; it is all right as far as it goes, but it does not go far enough. Some corruptionists have also got their fangs on it, Doran particularly in Minnesota. The St. Louis platform was eulogized as the grandest document since Jefferson's time.

The speaker then took up the question of fusion and argued that the Democrats and Populists were pitted against a common enemy—the Republican party—and should do anything to defeat it. He also declared it to be suicidal for a Populist to vote for Parsons. It simply meant a vote for Searle. Donnelly was remembered next with some great praise and then Mr. Arctander turned his attention to the supreme court, attacking the interpretations which have been made beneficial to corporations.

IN FAVOR OF DIVISION.

A Subject to Come Before the Presbyterian Synod.

One of the subjects which will arouse considerable discussion at the meeting of the Presbyterian synod, to open in Duluth this week, will be the oft proposed division of the St. Paul presbytery. The Presbyterian ministers of Minneapolis discussed this question at their last meeting. Rev. A. B. Nicholls, of the Stewart church, led the discussion. He was to have prepared a paper but he spoke off hand. He is known . . d-er in the movement for a divisio . he is a member of the committee a . . d by the last synod to consider the . tt .

"The Presbyterian synod of . . sota," said Mr. Nicholls, "is now d . . into five presbyteries, the Winona, St. Paul, Red Wing, Duluth and Mankato. The St. Paul presbytery, in pastors, elders and people, is larger than the other four presbyteries put together. The St. Paul presbytery includes Minneapolis, Stillwater, St. Paul and a belt across the middle of the state from Wisconsin to the Dakotas. It is so large that only a few cities can entertain the presbytery at its meetings. The advantages of a division aside from the objections to a large presbytery are the increase in the number of working committees. The matter was discussed by the last synod, and it was referred to a large committee, consisting of two elders and two ministers from each presbytery. The committees met some time in the winter, and after some discussion agreed to recommend that the presbytery be divided into three, to be known as the St. Paul presbytery, the Minneapolis presbytery and a presbytery to be named, which should embrace the counties now forming the western part of the St. Paul presbytery.

The Minneapolis preachers were in favor of the division, and they will go to the presbytery and the synod ready to vote for the change.

AS HAPPY AS CAN BE

The Twin Babies of Mrs. C. M. Holbrook.

How They Came to be Plump and Healthy Youngsters.

When Born They Weighed Four Pounds Each —Fond of Best Food.

They say that man is born to sorrow as the sparks fly upward.

But many of these sorrows are of his own creation—or his parents'.

How few of us passed the first five years of life without suffering.

How many people there are who have been chronic sufferers from childhood, because they started in life's way weak and sickly, and just because they were improperly nourished.

The improper feeding of children causes more suffering than many mothers dream of.

HAPPY AS THE DAY IS LONG.

"My twin babies," says Mr. C. M. Holbrook, of Cherry Creek, N. Y., "weighed but four pounds each when born, and were very delicate, but now, thanks to lactated food, they are plump and healthy as can be. They are just as happy and good-natured as they look, and fond of the food."

The reason that lactated food is so universally successful in such cases is simply that it is as nutritious as it is easily digested and assimilated. Next to pure mother's milk, it is the best possible food for the little one, and experience has shown that babies who leave the mother's breast thrive better upon it, and become healthier and stronger than when fed in any other way.

The principal element of woman's milk is sugar of milk, and this is the basis of lactated food. With it is combined the nutritious elements of the great cereals, wheat, barley and oats, and the addition of the salts found in mother's milk make it a perfect substitute. Thousands of mothers the country over have written their unsolicited testimony of its great worth, and thousands of happy, smiling, healthful babies are the living evidence of what it does.

Lackawanna Elects Officers.

The Lackawanna Iron company held a meeting of stockholders last evening and elected the following officers: President, M. J. Davis; vice-president, C. H. Lawrence; secretary, F. E. Krayenbutil; treasurer, E. F. Clarke; directors, J. T. Clark, J. J. McAuliffe, F. L. de Forest, H. D. Jones and J. W. Osborn. D. T. Adams wants to lease eighty acres, the w½ of ne¼ of section 23, 57-22, of the company's property and agrees to pay 40 cents per ton royalty and $5000 in advance.

Fire at London.

About 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning, the storage shed of Butchard Bros., the contractors at London, was found on fire and before the flames were brought under control, a carload of grain, and another of baled hay were consumed. A lot of insulated street railway trolley wire was also damaged. Therehad been no fire of any kind in the place which causes the owners to firmly believe in an incendiary orign.

The statement of the Duluth Loan Deposit and Trust company printed in today's paper is a very favorable one considering the fact that the company has only been in business four months.

TUMORS IN HIS NOSE

A Citizen of Duluth Who Was Annoyed by Little Enemies That Made His Life Miserable.

The Interesting Testimony of Mr. Thomas Barks, a Victim of the Painful Affliction, Nasal Polypi.

(Nasal polypi are tumors that grow in the nasal cavities. They obstruct the passage of air through the nose, swell up in damp weather, give rise to frontal headaches, fits of sneezing and coughing, to asthma, facial neuralgia and pains in the neck and chest; they destroy the senses of smell, taste and hearing. The breath becomes fetid, the margins of the nostrils raw and excoriated, the eyes grow watery and the voice acquires a nasal tone.)

"I had tumors growing in my nose," said Mr. Thomas Barks, who resides at 17 Second avenue east, to the writer recently. "They had been growing there a long time," he continued; "how long I could not say. About a year ago I found that I could not breath through my nose and I commenced to feel very bad. I had a dull oppressed feeling in my head, just as though there was an iron band about it.

MR. THOMAS BARKS, 17 SECOND AVE. E.

"My nose was always discharging a thin sticky fluid, even at night I would have to put my handkerchief under my nose on the pillow to catch the drip from it.

"I was compelled to breathe through my mouth and my throat was inflamed and sore. At night I was awakened by an accumulation of phlegm in my throat which would choke me. In the morning I was all tired out, just as though I had not slept at all during the night. My tongue and teeth were coated with slime; I would be compelled to spend some time in hawking and raising to clear my throat. My appetite grew poor. My sense of taste and smell became bad. There were ringing noises in my ears, and I did not hear as well as formerly.

"My voice sounded as though I was talking through my nose, and I noticed that my nostrils were getting thick and puffed out on the sides.

"I went to a doctor and he charged me so much that I could not afford to let him treat me long, as I am a poor man and have to work hard for my living. Then I read about the Copeland Medical Institute and I went to their office.

"Dr. Drenning examined me carefully and told me that the passage of my nose was all stopped with little tumors or lumps of flesh, which he said came from neglected catarrh. Well, to make a long story short, the doctor didn't ask me how much money I had and then take it all, but he went to work as delicately and gently as could be, and he took those little lumps out of my nose one by one until he had taken twelve tumors out about the size of a bird's egg, and he didn't hurt me at all.

"When the doctor was through I found that I could breathe through my nose for the first time in over a year. Then he treated my catarrh and now I eat well, sleep well, and best of all, I feel well and strong as I ever did in my life.

"I want to say in conclusion that the physicians of Copeland Medical Institute did not charge me any more for restoring my health than the other doctor did for one visit I paid him."

Treatment by Mail.

To the Public: The system of mail treatment pursued by Drs. Copeland, Hunt and Drenning guarantees the same effective results to those who desire to submit their cases through correspondence as to those who come in person. Their "question blank," if properly filled out, will diagnose your case in a thorough way, and, as medicines are promptly shipped, those living out of the city have the same advantage as those who come to the office.

Write for the treatment by mail, medicine free, and rid yourself of the most painful and annoying disease in the catalogue of human ills.

NOTABLE CREDENTIALS.

The location of the offices of the Copeland Medical Institute in the city of Duluth is a permanent one. Their leases and contracts are for a term of years.

Dr. Copeland is a graduate of the Bellevue Hospital Medical College of New York city; was president of his class in that famous institution, and, after thorough hospital training and experience, devoted his entire time and attention to the special lines of practice named below. Passed through a similar course, Dr. Hunt and Dr. Drenning also devote themselves exclusively to the treatment of these specialties. Years of experience in their special lines, preceded by extensive hospital work, have fitted them in a notable degree for the practice of their profession.

The Weather.

U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, DULUTH, MINN., Oct. 12.—The storm that was central over Montana yesterday morning has moved northeast and is now leaving the country, but another has developed over the Southwest and is centra over Kansas, moving toward this section. It is accompanied so far by high winds and rain in the territory it covers, and will probably advance this way today, and pass over this section tonight or tomorrow.

More rain fell yesterday than has fallen for the past two weeks, but still none of it was heavy, the heaviest being .38 inch at Miles City, Mont. Rain is now falling over Kansas, Nebraska and South Dakota and will probably begin in Minnesota today.

The temperature has as a general thing risen slightly in all sections except the Southwest over Colorado, where there has been a fall of 10° since yesterday. It was expected that an area of high barometer would follow the northwestern storm, but the latter taking an abnormal course, brought slightly warmer instead of cooler weather.

The change in temperature here yesterday was very small, the highest being 52° and the lowest 45°. Of the rain that was expected last night only a trace fell. The average velocity of the wind yesterday was twenty miles per hour, the maximum velocity twenty-six miles from the northeast.

DULUTH, Oct. 12.—Continued fair with a possibility of rain tonight or Thursday; slight change in temperature; probably cooler by Thursday night; northeast to southeast winds.

B. H. BRONSON,
Local Forecast Official.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Forecast till 8 p. m. tomorrow: For Wisconsin: Local rains; southerly winds, becoming variable; stationary temperature Thursday, followed by cooler Friday morning. For Minnesota: Showers today or tonight; fair by Thursday night; cooler in northwest portion Thursday morning, followed by rising temperature; southeasterly winds, shifting to westerly.

The Congressional Situation.

The Minneapolis Journal, in a resume of the present outlook and probabilities in the congressional districts, says that the Sixth district will give a Republican majority of from 4000 to 6000. The fallacy of its reasoning is easily proven by facts and statistics.

The present Sixth district is composed of sixteen counties in the old Fifth district and four counties of the old Fourth district. Referring to the blue book of 1891 we find that the sixteen counties formerly in the Fifth district cast the following vote for congressman in 1890:

	Whiteman, D.	Comstock, R.	Halvorsen, A
Aitkin	236	308	54
Beltrami	1	85	12
Benton	650	219	277
Carlton	426	549	305
Cass	91	212	6
Cook	9	38	0
Crow Wing	473	684	299
Hubbard	96	83	197
Itasca	225	400	0
Lake	132	190	79
Mille Lacs	190	427	141
Morrison	1,612	888	53
St. Louis	1,968	3,528	1,190
Stearns	3,947	1,339	902
Todd	757	1,004	723
Wadena	276	347	268
	11,089	10,391	4,511

There certainly cannot be much comfort to Judge Searle and his friends in these figures. Conceding, for the sake of argument that Halvorsen polled as many Democratic as Republican votes, which is very unlikely, Whiteman was 698 votes ahead of Comstock, and each of them received more than twice as many votes as Halvorsen. We now come to the remaining four counties in the present Sixth district. In 1890 they cast the following votes for members of congress:

	Castle, D.	Snider, R.	Dean, Pro,
Anoka	754	1,115	78
Pine	473	475	24
Sherburne	434	588	3
Wright	2,286	2,381	265
	3,947	4,509	370

It will thus be seen that Snider's majority over Castle was 562. If we subtract this Republican majority from the Democratic majority in the counties formerly in the Fifth district, we still have a Democratic majority of 136. The vote for Wilson (Democrat) for governor was largely in excess of the vote cast for Whiteman and Castle, therefore our figures are conservative. Snider's vote for congress was larger in the four counties now in this district, than was Merriam's for governor. It will therefore be seen by the above analysis that the Sixth district has a small Democratic majority and that Maj. Baldwin's chance for election is excellent.

Let us proceed a little further with the analysis. In Crow Wing county Comstock received 211 more votes than White man. No fair man believes that Searle will get as many votes in that county as Baldwin.

Senator Whiteman had been in active politics for eight years, and had made enemies in his own party. Maj. Baldwin has none. He has the loyal support of all Democrats. It may be claimed that Whiteman was a harder worker and a better organizer and a shrewder politician, but Comstock carried St. Louis county by 1560 over Whiteman. No one believes Searle will have such a majority over Baldwin, and it may well be doubted if he carries it at all. If St. Louis county does its duty Baldwin will carry it. If the needs and requirements of the city of Duluth are considered, there will be no question about it.

The prospects are flattering. It rests with Duluth and St. Louis county whether we shall have a congressman or not. Duluth never has had one, and we have the opportunity now to elect one. Shall we do it? We might have elected Senator Whiteman two years ago, and we made the mistake of sending Halvorsen. Let us not repeat it. Maj. Baldwin will be a credit to Duluth and the district, and there is no city in the country whose interests require more careful consideration and more constant attention.

Stupid and Ill-Advised.

If the Democrats desire to dig their own political graves this fall they will carry out the idea, which rumor credits some of them with entertaining, of nominating a Democrat for district judge in opposition to Samuel H. Moer, who is the choice of the bar and has received the Republican nomination. It matters not whether a certain coterie of Republicans are not pleased with their party's nomination. The Democrats have nothing to gain and everything to lose by coalescing with these soreheads in an attempt to defeat Mr. Moer.

The people of St. Louis county and of the whole Eleventh judicial district will not take kindly to any move that would drag the judiciary into politics, and if the Democratic judicial convention next Saturday should fly in the face of public sentiment and nominate a Democrat against Mr. Moer, it must be prepared to stand the odium and the fatal consequences of its foolish and ill-advised action. There is not much chance of any one on the Democratic county and legislative tickets being elected this fall, but if the Democratic managers want to make certain the defeat of every one on those tickets they will carry out the stupid idea of opposing Mr. Moer, who will be elected no matter who may be his opponent.

Such a move would, The Herald fears, also have a very bad effect on Maj. Baldwin's candidacy for congress. His canvass is in excellent shape. Unless all indications are badly astray, he will carry St. Louis county, because the people of Duluth almost generally believe that his election would result in great benefit to the city, but let a political fight be stirred up over the judiciary, let bitter political animosities be created, and the effect it will have on Maj. Baldwin's vote in this county will be undoubtedly very serious.

New York's Celebration.

New York is celebrating the anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus in a manner befitting the greatest city of the nation. In the demonstrations and pageants of the past few days, culminating in the great civic and military parade today, the great metropolis has shown that no mistake would have been made in locating the World's fair in that city, even as no mistake was made when the duty was imposed upon Chicago of creating and carrying to successful completion the greatest exposition that the world has seen.

The Herald has been devoting considerable space to the New York celebration, because it is really a national event of general interest, and in this respect it feels that it has upheld its position as the leading newspaper at the head of the lakes.

Rev. F. O. Holman, D. D., speaking of the opportunities and work of young women, said in an address to the Minnesota conference of the M. E. church that there are many girls who marry in order to have the prefix "Mrs." inscribed on their tombstone. Dr. Holman a few years ago made a tour of the state lecturing on the subject "Why Don't He Marry?" The doctor is still unmarried, but does not appear to have lost interest in the subject.

The Andrews Opera company has just collected between $3000 and $4000 from a railroad company for being detained several days by an accident. There are many combinations "on the road" that will wish such rare luck would strike them.

There was a wild, weird rumor in Philadelphia the other day that the coal barons were going to reduce prices, and despite its utter improbability some people actually believed it. It is now denied, of course.

The Populist candidates will head the list of names on the ballots containing the state tickets, but "Oh, what a difference in the morning" of November 9, when the election returns are received.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Little Tippett."

"Little Tippett," which is the Temple's attraction for Friday evening, is characterized by lively action and frequent surprise. The difficulties of its leading characters are caused by two divorces and re-marriages and two mysterious babies who say nothing, but nevertheless add astonishingly to the complications. The original French atmosphere of the play has been surcharged with purifying English, yet it is said that the most amusing of its vitalities are in no way injured by the changes. The company engaged to interpret "Little Tippett" under its new auspices is an excellent one. It is made up of Edward M. Bell, Charles Bowser, Harry Allen, Harry Morgan Henry J. Bradley, Charles Harris, Mabel Bert, Mary Lewes, Harry Bloodgood, and the necessary infants. The piece will be elaborately staged.

A Good Move.

Minneapolis Tribune: The consolidation of the News and Tribune of Duluth is a good movement. Two morning papers can't be sustained in Duluth. Maybe one can; but it has taken Duluth publishers a long while to see this.

TO INCITE AN OUTBREAK.

Efforts to Start Cherry Creek Indians on the Warpath.

FARGO, N. D., Oct. 12.—James Cavanaugh, an Indian trader on Cheyenne river, says that many of the old leaders of the Indian outbreak of two years ago are working among the Indians on Cherry creek, the neighborhood where the trouble originated, attempting to incite another outbreak.

Their present desire is caused by the encouragement given then by the government after their former outbreak. When it was ended the Indians, many of whom owned no property except the ponies they rode, presented claims for losses which were paid, and in addition their rations were increased and they considered they were well treated instead of punished, and many are anxious to try it again, believing that another outbreak will bring them similar reward.

The Cherry Creek Indians, who were the principal ones in the Wounded Knee fight, however, do not take kindly to this idea, and the others may not secure enough followers to make a move. People along the border are excited and fear another outbreak soon as spring opens.

Endorsed by the Democrats.

MILITARY AND CIVIC.

Long before this part of the parade had dropped into its alloted place in line the crush had come. Never was such a crowd seen in any American city before. There were "millions in it." It is impossible to adequately speak of the demonstration without seeming to indulge in hyperbole. "Seas of human faces" and other hackneyed forms of speech only feebly portray the immense outpouring of people. Every point in the four long miles of march seethed with human beings. All the finishing touches had been given to the decorations and the city, in the glorious sunlight, was a great quivering mass of beauty, life and animation and joyous music.

After the Connecticut troops had filed past came Governor Russell of Massachusetts, escorted by the Washington Fencibles, fully justifying by their splendid marching the champion badge they have twice won at national drill contests. Then the military men of the present gave way to the soldiers of the past and New York's handsomely uniformed Grand Army posts, heading the Fourth brigade, renewed in their own capital city the triumphs they gained in the march in Washington last.

They were preceded by a mounted corps of officers, included in their number many gallant soldiers. The National Association of Naval Veterans brought up the rear of the division. Then came the fire laddies forming the sixth division with their brightly burnished engines and red shirts.

Shortly after 10 o'clock the historic "Old Guard," in their white coats, blue and gold-striped trousers and high bearskin hats, marched down the avenue, fifteen abreast, followed by three open carriages in which were Governor Flower, Adjutant Porter and the rest of his staff in full dress uniform. The governor's punctuality, as he alighted and took his place on the stand, was greeted with a well-eareed burst of applause. After the governor had been seated the guard of honor marched down Fifth avenue to Vice-President Morton's house on the corner of Sixteenth street, and from that point escorted the vice-president and Mayor Grant in a carriage to the reviewing station.

At 11:05 a modest procession was seen from the Fifth avenue hotel and making straight for the grandstand without accompanying music or other demonstration except a scattering clapping of hands. As it drew nearer it was seen that at the head of it was ex-President R. B. Hayes, on foot, leaning on the arm of Gen. Anson G. McCook, secretary of state, and followed by Secretary Charles Foster of the treasury, Secretary of War Elkins, Secretary of Agriculture Rusk, Maj. Gen. Schofield, general-in-chief of the army of the United States, and Maj. William Broadhead, chief of marshal McMahon's staff. The ex-president and his distinguished companions were cordially welcomed by Vice President Morton and Governor Flower, and Mr. Hayes, whose gray hair and beard were very noticeable, took his seat at Mr. Morton's left hand, Governor Flower sitting at his right and the cabinet officers ranging themselves behind.

Ex-Senator Miller arrived and shook hands cordially with the vice president's party. A few minutes to 12 ex-President Cleveland walked up from the Victoria hotel escorted by H. R. Garden and Prof. Bickmore. He was met at the entrance of the stand by Mayor Grant. The vice president rose and received him with uncovered head and shook him by the hand. Governor Flower with uplifted hat followed suit, and then ex-President Hayes also uncovered and Gen. Schofield saluted the ex-president, who seated himself to the left of his predecessor, Mr. Hayes. The reviewing party then stood as follows: The vice president, to his right Governor Flower, to his left Gen. Schofield, ex-President Hayes and ex-President Cleveland.

Hardly had the reviewing officers thus arranged themselves, when at 11:50 the head of the procession appeared and Marshal McMahon, with his numerous aides, wearing rich crimson and orange sashes, rode past and saluted. The long gaps in the procession which thus early in its progress began to manifest themselves, indicated the difficulties which had been found in forcing a way through the dense multitudes which everywhere packed the streets. It was stated that police ambulance had to be used to clear a way. The United States troops and artillery, 2000 strong, had been dropped out of line to shorten it within practicable dimensions, and the New York national guard took the head of the column and gallantly held it.

Remember that Dr. Matthez closes his office at the Spalding Oct. 20th. Do not fail to have him examine your eyes and adjust glasses to them.

WILL OPEN TOMORROW

Annual Meeting of the Presbyterian Synod of Minnesota in Duluth Commencing Tomorrow Evening.

A New Moderator Will be Elected Friday Morning to Succed Dr. McLaren, Who Has Removed.

The Question of the Division of the St. Paul Presbytery Also to Come Up for Discussion.

The annual meeting of the Presbyterian synod opens tomorrow evening at the First Presbyterian church. Delegates will commence arriving this evening and tomorrow morning and fully 150 are expected to be in attendance. They will be entertained by the members of the Presbyterian congregations during their stay here. The delegates in attendance will consist of ministers, elders and laymen.

The opening meeting will be held tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock and Rev. L. H. Morey, of Stillwater, will preach on the public school question. On Friday evening Rev. Dr. Mitchell will talk on foreign mission work. The business sessions of the synod will be held during the forenoon and afternoon of Friday and Saturday. The first business will be the election of a moderator to succeed Dr. McLaren who has removed to California.

On Sunday morning the newly-elected moderator will preach in the First Presbyterian church. In the afternoon there will be a meeting in the interest of the Christian Endeavor society. In the evening Dr. D. J. McMillan, of New York, will preach on home missions.

One of the most interesting questions to come before the meeting will be the advisability of dividing the St. Paul presbytery, which is one of the largest in the country. On Saturday afternoon the delegates will be taken for a drive over the boulevard or out on the lake. There will be no session Saturday evening.

GOING TO CHICAGO.

The Duluth and West Duluth Companies Will Start Tuesday.

Company A, with First Lieutenant Jos. Dodge, commanding, and forty-five men strong, will leave here on the St. Paul & Duluth road Tuesday night for Chicago. They will be joined at West Duluth by Company G, with about forty men, Captain Dent commanding, and Company H, with about forty men, Captain Brown commanding. At St. Paul they will be joined by Company I, of Ada, about thirty-five men strong, Capt. Sheffield commanding, and there the battalion will be commanded by Maj. C. C. Tear, who will proceed with it to Chicago, where it will take part in the dedicatory ceremonies in the parade of government and state troops. The state of Minnesota furnishes blankets and overcoats to the men, also transportation and subsistence.

Arrangements have been completed by the Burlington road for the transportation of the Minnesota militia from Minneapolis to Chicago to participate in the dedicatory exercises of the World's fair.

Three special trains will be furnished for the accommodation of Minnesota's troops. They will arrive at Chicago at 10:30 and 11 o'clock on the night of Wednesday, Oct. 19. On the arrival of the trains at the Western avenue crossing they will be switched off to the stock yards tracks and conveyed through that territory to the World's fair grounds over the Illinois Central's lake front tracks.

The three trains will remain in the vicinity of the fair grounds during the services. When they are all over they will start on the return trip to Minneapolis Sunday morning, Oct. 23, between 7 and 8 o'clock, making a day-light trip to that place and arriving there the same evening.

The Deer Season.

There has been some misunderstanding as to the period during which deer may be lawfully killed in Wisconsin. The following letter will settle the question:

I have been requested by one of Duluth's citizens to make a statement as to when deer may be lawfully killed in Douglas county, Wisconsin, and in answer to such question would say that the season includes only the month of November. This statement is requested to correct a misapprehension of the law which has gained currency in Duluth by the circulation of a railroad pamphlet.

J. A. MURPHY,
District Attorney,
Douglas County.

A Reason Not Given.

An account of a meeting at Long Prairie a few days ago says: Judge Searle spoke for about ten minutes, most of which time was taken up in complimenting the ladies present on their good looks and advising the girls to have nothing to do with a young man who voted any ticket but the Republican, but he failed to give the reason for not resigning the judicial position he holds when he accepted a nomination for congress.

A Pleasant Reception.

The reception given last evening by the Unitarian ladies at Mr. and Mrs. A. Bailey's residence, in honor of Rev. F. C. Southworth, the new pastor of the Unitarian church, was a very enjoyable affair. The reception lasted from 8 o'clock until 11, and although the weather was very threatening the Unitarians and their friends were present in large numbers. Light refreshments were gracefully served throughout the evening.

Boy's and Children's Overcoats!

We carry a very extensive line of children's overcoats, at such popular prices as $1.25, $2, $2.50, $3, $4 and $5 and upwards. C. W. ERICKSON,

It will be noticed that Dr. Forbes has been assigned to West Duluth, and the church there may be congratulated upon obtaining such an an able and eloquent preacher. VIC SEWARD WAS SHOT.

The Editor of the Stillwater Messenger Used as a Target by a Discharged Employe.

An Incompetent Reporter Swore He Would Get Even and Shot Seward, Probably Fatally.

Brief Sketch of the Eventful Life Which Seward Has Passed in Journalism in Minnesota.

STILLWATER, Minn., Oct. 12.—V. C. Seward, editor of the Messenger, was probably fatally shot by George Peters, a young man who was some time ago employed as a reporter but was discharged for incompetency. Peters announced his intention of getting even and meeting Seward on the street yesterday opened fire on him. Peters is in jail.

The probably fatal shooting of Victor C. Seward will remove, if the worst comes to pass, a rather remarkable man from the ranks of Minnesota writers and publishers. Fifteen or twenty years ago, when Vic Seward went to Stillwater, he stepped at once and unqualifiedly into the role of a latter-day Ishmael. His hand was against everybody, and beyond the shadow of a doubt everyone's hand was against him. Seward's daily life for a number of years was as spirited as the most active sportsman could desire. He had personal encounters with a number of leading people of Stillwater, over and over again, and almost invariably he would get the worst of it.

He kept the Stillwater Messenger going by pure, clear grit when almost every other man in this state, at least, would have laid down his pen with the remark, "I am very weary." Seward eked out his existence and livelihood by adding to his editorial duties the somewhat stuck-up calling of bill poster. He assiduously advocated a pet theory that bread made partly from boiled potatoes was much better for human beings than pure wheaten bread, and he succeeded in getting all the doctors in Stillwater and many in St. Paul by the ears in the discussion of the pros and cons of his idiosyncrasy. The plant of the Messenger was replenished from time to time with Caudle-like auction purchases of type, galleys, racks, etc., until the outfit looked like a piece of typographic crazypatch work, and still Seward kept on.

Finally his editorials attracted attention, by degrees his paper grew in circulation, one by one he made friends (and he never lost any) and finally he was able to open a bank account. He got the official printing of the city and county, a good run of legal work from the Twin Cities and he was found to always be a man of his word. During the last few years the Messenger has paid more money to its somewhat erratic proprietor than all the other Stillwater papers combined and he has made money and had has a host of friends.

TRAGEDY IN WISCONSIN.

An Old Man in Chippewa Falls Shot and Killed His Wife.

CHIPPEWA FALLS, Wis., Oct 12.—In the town of Tilden Daniel O'Brien shot and killed his wife while she was sitting in a chair. He then tried to set fire to the house and cremate the body, but his daughter's arrival prevented this.

O'Brien started after her, chasing her up stairs, but she jumped out of the window and escaped, giving the alarm to the neighbors. Before assistance arrived O'Brien had escaped to the woods, taking with him the gun with which he killed his wife. The murderer is about 60 years old and is said to be demented.

A Fated Town.

MUNCIE, Ind., Oct. 12.—The Ohio wagon works, owned principally by George Edgerly, was destroyed by fire last night. Loss $20,000; insurance $16,300. This is the seventh of Muncie's new industries to burn recently.

His bondsmen are well-off and will pay the full amount to the company. McLean was a fireman at one time in St. Paul.

Investigating Boen.

FERGUS FALLS, Minn., Oct. 12.—M. D. Kenyon, public examiner, is here investigating the office of H. E. Boen, People's party candidate for congress. Boen has been charged with collecting and retaining fees illegally. The fees were collected but Boen claims he had the right to them.

Charged With Malpractice.

MARINETTE, Wis., Oct. 12.—Dr. Colter, who figured in the celebrated Gregory-Colter slander case at Marinette some time ago, was arrested and placed under heavy bonds on a charge of malpractice, preferred by the relatives of Mrs. Mary E. Duquet, who died in childbirth about a week ago. The body will be exhumed add a coroner's inquest held at once.

Fitz Will Fight Hall.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 12.—Bob Fitzsimmons signed articles of agreement with the Olympic club yesterday to fight Jim Hall early in February, at catch weights, for a purse of $15,000. The Olympic club has cabled Hall and wired Parson Davies.

A Spokane Defaulter.

SPOKANE, Wash., Oct. 12.—Wm. A. Myrick, of the firm of Myrick & Co., marble and granite works here, is a defaulter to the amount of $40,000. His victims not only include three national banks but almost a score of private individuals in this city.

Killed by a Brickbat.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Oct. 12.—A negro, Wm. Daniels, has been arrested charged with the murder of P. Shaffer, also colored. Daniels threw a brickbat which struck and fractured Shaffer's skull, from which injury he died.

A BALLAD OF "OLD GLORY."

It flutters from ocean to ocean
  High over the elements' roar,
The flag of our love and devotion—
  The star spangled flag we adore!
  It shall reign and shall rule evermore,
Far famed, both in song and in story,
  Today and for days still in store—
Hurrah for the folds of Old Glory!

Who can see without deepest emotion
  The stars that emblazon it o'er—
The stars that in war's fierce commotion
  Flashed triumph o'er sea and o'er shore!
  The banner confusion that bore
To despot and autocrat hoary,
  Striking tyranny right to the core—
Hurrah for the folds of Old Glory!

If a foe or false friend have a notion
  Its prowess and strength to explore,
It shall set all his nerves in a motion
  They never experienced before!
  Oh, 'tis stronger by far than of yore
When it crushed the vile plot of each Tory!
  Ho! fighting 'twill shimmer and soar—
Hurrah for the folds of Old Glory!

ENVOI.

Their light may its stars never pour
  For wrong on a battlefield gory!
May its eagle bird live but to score—
  Hurrah for the folds of Old Glory!

—Eugene Davis.

A PATRIOTIC PROGRAMME.

Plans for the Public School Observance of Columbus Day.

When the American superintendents of education at their Brooklyn meeting last winter appointed their executive committee to take charge of the national public school celebration of Columbus Day, they instructed them especially to prepare a uniform programme of exercises for all localities.

This official programme is now published. It provides specifically for a morning celebration in the school houses, and suggestions are made for afternoon demonstrations in which schools and citizens may unite. The morning ceremonies are to be as follows:

The schools are to assemble in their school houses at the usual hour on the morning of Oct. 21. All the rooms under the same principal, so far as possible, are to unite in the same exercises. Although it is a gala day, the discipline is to be precise, and the session is supposed to exhibit the results of careful, painstaking preparations.

The principal sees that everything is in readiness, gives his last injunctions and with his special guests waits the arrival of the detail of veterans who are to assist in raising and saluting the flag. The veterans are awaited at the gate by a color guard of pupils and are escorted with dignity to the main room and presented to the principal. Then the signal is given, and each room in turn, to drumbeat or other music, marches to the school yard, where the exercises are to take place and where seats have been arranged. The pupils are drawn up in a large hollow square around the flag, and the veterans and color guard take their places at the halyards.

The exercises are opened by the master of ceremonies, who may be the principal or an appointed person, reading the president's proclamation for the school celebration of the day, in which he urges that every school in the land shall fly the national flag. He orders the flag unfurled, and the veterans run it up the staff and lead the assemblage in three cheers for the stars and stripes. Then, led by the principal, the pupils give an impressive salute to the colors, pledging allegiance to the flag and to the republic for which it stands. This salute properly terminates in the singing of "My country, 'tis of thee!" by the whole audience.

Following this unique ceremony and an acknowledgment of Divine Providence come the specially contributed features of the official programme. The first of these is the song of Columbus Day by Theron Brown, the distinguished writer of sweet songs. This is to be sung to the old and majestic tune of "Lyons." Then follows the address of Columbus Day, which is a thoughtful and brilliant declamation prepared by The Youth's Companion as its special gift to the celebration. The final feature is the reading of the ode of Columbus Day. This new poem, by Edna Dean Proctor, is a masterpiece. It will take high and permanent rank as an American classic. The privilege of declaiming this noble address, and of rendering the superb ode, will be a coveted distinction among the pupils of our schools, and the assignment should be very carefully made.

This concludes the uniform features of the official programme. Following these are expected to come the local additions, such as historic representations, patriotic recitations and chorals, with which the schools may elaborate the exercises. It will also be the usual thing for addresses to be made by the eminent guests of the occasion, and for the familiar national hymns to be sung.

Preparations for the creditable rendering of this programme cannot begin too soon. The most careful arrangements should be made. Persistent rehearsing is imperative.

The families of all the pupils should be invited. Citizens generally should be expected at the school houses on the evening of Oct. 21. Seats for the assemblage should be provided out of doors, and a suitable room should also be held in readiness for retreat in case of storm.

Medina Temple of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine Erecting a Fine Building in Chicago.

Preceptory to be Arranged Like a Theater, With Seating Capacity for One Thousand Persons.

A Man Who Cannot Read or Write Held Eligible to Masonry if Otherwise Qualified.

The Medina Temple company has leased for ninety-five years the property at the corner of Jackson street and Fifth avenue, Chicago. It has a frontage of 110 feet on Fifth avenue and 115 feet on Jackson street, and a magnificent twelve story fire proof structure will be erected thereon, and the accompanying cut shows how it will look when completed. The building will cost $550,000.

The first two stories of the building will be devoted to store purposes, and the next eight stories will be fitted up for use as offices. The eleventh and twelfth floors are to be entirely utilized as a permanent home for Medina temple, and will be arranged particularly for the successful rendition of the impressive initiatory ceremonies of the order. The preceptory will be arranged like a theater, with parquet and gallery seating about 1,000 persons, and the stage and scenery will be as large and extensive as those of a regular theater.

A large banquet hall and a number of parlors, dressing rooms and smoking room will also be devoted to the comfort of the members of the order. Medina temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, is a branch of the Masonic fraternity, and no one is eligible to membership in it unless he has reached a high rank in that fraternity. The total membership of the Chicago shrine is now over 1,500 and is increasing at the rate of about 400 members per year, and the necessity of large and commodious quarters is apparent to any who have attended its recent sessions.

MASONIC.

Decision by the Grand Lodge of North Carolina—Trowelettes.

The grand lodge of North Carolina approved a decision that "a man who cannot read or write is eligible to the degrees of Masonry if otherwise qualified." It also ignores any man who has lost one hand or foot and otherwise physically sound "as ineligible or unable to perform the reciprocal duties of love and friendship."

The grand lodge of Utah authorizes the grand master to appoint 6 delegates to the fraternal congress at Chicago in August, 1893.

George Washington was appointed master of his lodge by Edmund Randolph, governor of Virginia, who was at the time grand master.

Louisiana has only 3 commanderies in that grand body—2 in New Orleans and 1 in Shreveport.

The grand lodge of Texas has passed a resolution declaring the grand lodge of Worthington, O., a clandestine body, and prohibits the members of the jurisdiction of Texas from holding any fraternal relations with them.

Bro. J. A. McKenzie, grand master of Kentucky, has made an official decision against admitting widows and children of suspended Masons into the Masonic home, Kentucky.

A lodge in Arkansas proposes to build a temple and asks for contributions of stones from the craftsmen, lodges and grand lodges all over the world.

The Masons of St. Louis, having been notified by the owners of the property to leave their Masonic temple, are actively considering the erection of a new temple.

The order in Philadelphia owns property aggregating in value over $2,500,000, with much less than $1,000,000 liabilities.

It is estimated that the annual income of the order is fully $25,000,000.

A good member of any order makes a true and devoted Mason, and vice versa.

One of the bedrooms of the Utica home is furnished by Harlem lodge, No. 457.

It is recorded that the first lodge in the United States came into existence in 1730.

An apron worn by George Washington is still in use. The fortunate possessor of this valuable relic is Bro. Rev. J. T. Smith, of Kansas.

Splendid Showing of the Widows and Orphans' Fund in Kentucky.

The widows and orphans' fund in Kentucky amounts to $300,000, a splendid showing for the Odd Fellows of that jurisdiction.

The sovereign grand lodge realizes over $40,000 annually on supplies.

Will our representatives please let our laws alone for ten years so that we can know what the law is?

There are now 429 lodges in Michigan, with a total membership of 2,500. There are also 119 encampments.

The Michigan grand encampment will meet in Detroit Oct. 11, and the grand lodge the following week.

The Odd Fellows' relief committee of San Francisco paid out for relief in that city last year the sum of $22,441.85.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

Development and Growth of the Order. Helmet Glints.

The order enters the twenty-eighth year of its existence with a splendid army of nearly 400,000 men marching steadily forward under the tricolored banner of Pythianism. No fraternal organization in the twenty-seventh year of its existence has ever been able to obtain such a percentage of increase. The development of the uniformed rank is a marvel. The record shows an increase of 153 new divisions during the past year, with a total membership exceeding 35,000, being an increase during the year of 6,000 members, or over one-fifth. The endowment rank is in a good condition and is entering a year of unparalleled prosperity. When the Pythian congress was last in session in July, 1890, the numerical strength of the order, as shown by the official reports for the year ending Dec. 31, 1889, was as follows: Number of grand lodges, 47; number of subordinate lodges, 3,724; membership of the order, 263,874. Official reports July 1, 1892, show number of grand lodges, 54; number of subordinate lodges, 5,366; membership of the order, 393,716, or an increase in the two years ending July 1, 1892, of 110,117, being at the rate of 39 per cent.

The number of active lodges in New York state at the close of 1890 was 212. During the calendar year 16 new lodges were instituted and 1 charter was restored. Two lodges forfeited their charter, leaving a net gain of 15, with a total of active lodges Dec. 31, 1891, of 226. Since Jan. 1 last 16 lodges were instituted, but there have been 3 consolidations and 1 surrender of charter, making an addition of 14 to the former number and giving at the time of this report 240 active lodges.

The new ritual prepared by the special committee, of which Walter B. Richie, the new supreme vice chancellor, was chairman, was exemplified and adopted without change. An important change was made in the management of the endowment fund, which separates it from the supreme lodge and vests the controlling power in a board of control.

The appropriation of $30 each per month to be paid to the two daughters of Justus R. Rathbone, the founder of the order, was passed by the unanimous vote of the supreme lodge.

The office of supreme secretary of the endowment rank was abolished and in its stead was created the office of endowment commissioner. W. B. Kennedy, the former supreme secretary, was elected endowment commissioner, in which office he will act as auditor between the supreme lodge and the board of control.

The returns show that in New York state there are 14,596 knights, 67 esquires and 94 pages—a total of 16,795.

The $50 jewel offered by R. S. White, supreme keeper of the records and seal, for the oldest Knight who participated in the parade, review and competitive drill, was awarded to T. J. McGinnis, of Indiana division, No. 2, Indianapolis. Mr. McGinnis is something over fifty-five years of age.

The lodges in New York state expended last year for constitutions and digests $199.75.

The receipts for jewels and jewel cases last year by G. K. of R. and S. Bro. Acker were $1,309.90.

Colonel S. O. McDowell, of the Second Kansas regiment, carried off the handsome colonel's cup offered for the commander of the best regiment in line during the grand parade.

The total membership of the K. of P. is close to 400,000.

There are 4,247 lodges in the order.

Past Supreme Chancellor George R Shaw is to be congratulated upon his wonderful record. The supreme chancellor on taking his seat said, "I want to come to the next session of the supreme lodge with an increase of 100,000 members." He came with 112,000.

The battalion prize of $500 has been awarded to the First Indiana, Colonel M. F. Haskell commander, who was given the $50 sword for the best commander.

A. O. U. W.

Progress of the Order in Ohio—More Rigid Examinations to Be Made.

The reports of the Ohio grand lodge show that the total membership of the order in that state is now 208,000, and that each member has an insurance policy for $2,000. An amendment to the bylaws changing the maximum age of new members to be admitted to the order from fifty to forty-five years was lost. A new form was adopted for medical examination of applicants, and the examinations ordered made more rigid, with particular reference to the use of intoxicants.

The receipts of the relief fund in July were $376.35.

The total membership of the order on July 1 was 292,941, of which Massachusetts had 30,110 and New York 31,483.

The A. O. U. W. is nearly twenty-four years of age. Some are still members who paid first assessment, and it has cost no one during all this time over $350.

Illinois had assessments 247 and 248 for August.

Montana paid a death claim in five days. Doesn't that beat all records?

Membership in fraternal insurance orders in the United States July 1, over 2,000,000. Of this number over 287,000 are members of the A. O. U. W.

Total number of deaths for 1891 was 2,570, an increase over 1890 of 74, but the increase of membership for the year makes the average death rate 62-100 of 1 per cent. less than 1890. The settlement of all these death losses has been made in the average time of two months and twelve days, an increase of length of time compared with 1890 of three days.

The A. O. U. W. not only confers blessings upon its members in the present, but softens their deathbeds by the knowledge that 300,000 loyal hearts will protect and provide for those whom they leave behind.

Iowa called assessment No. 9 for August.

Searching around for terse and appropriate meaning to which the letters A. O. U. W. may be applied, there might be food for reflection in the following: "Action Outdoes Ultra Wisdom."

The government of the A. O. U. W. is vested entirely in the members. They make its laws, control its finances, settle its policy and leave no stone unturned to make it a success.

Order of United Friends.

The assessment call for September, just received from the imperial councils, gives the notices of 14 deaths, which amount to $23,500. The total amount paid into the relief fund by the deceased members was $1,618.85; the smallest amount was $9.80, and the largest $256. The longest time of membership of any of the deceased members was 10 years and 3 months, and the shortest was 11 months and 23 days.

Carrying Many Passengers.

According to one of the street railway company stockholders, the Garfield avenue street car line has, during the two weeks that the line has been in operation, carried on an average 1000 passengers each day. At 5 cents a passenger, when the length of the line and the great number of trips one car can make in one day are remembered, most people would consider that line a paying institution.

TIM FOLEY IS PRESIDENT.

He is Placed at the Head of the North Star Construction Company.

Timothy Foley is in the city. Mr. Foley was elected president of the North Star Construction company about a week ago. There has been nothing published about the election and it seems to have escaped notice for some reason or other. The meeting was held in Baltimore. This company controls the Duluth & Winnipeg road which makes Mr. Foley for all practical purposes president of the road. The election was something of a surprise and somewhat unexpected. Mr. Foley was asked today whether the report of his election was true and admitted that it was.

WE'LL TELL YOU ABOUT OUR SHOE DEP'T.

A long time ago—as we count things out west—we opened a Shoe Department in our establishment in a small corner on our second floor. We began to sell Shoes as we sell everything else—AT A SMALL PROFIT—making 25 and 50 cents a pair where the regular Shoemen make from $1 to $2, and even $3.

It didn't take people long to find out that our Shoe Department was the place to get good "understanding" and trade here, like the famous peach seen by "Johnny Jones and his sister Sue," it grew, it grew, and of Shoes we sold a "slew," compelling us from sheer necessity to give it more room, until finally it outgrew the second floor quarters entirely and we moved it to our commodious basement salesroom where we are today doing the largest Shoe business of any house in the city. We carry all sorts of Shoes for all sorts of men and boys.

RAILROAD RUMBLES.

Matters of Interest Picked Up in the Yards and Depots.

One of the new steam shovels for the Mountain Iron property on the Duluth Missabe & Northern railroad was ditched near Grant yesterday. It will probably reach its destination tonight and be set at work tomorow afternoon.

Between three and four miles of rails have been laid on the Biwabik branch of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway and track laying operations are temporarily checked by the unfinished condition of a long trestle over a swamp.

The shortline passenger train on the Northern Pacific road collided with the Union depot switch engine yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, damaging the switcher considerably. No one was hurt.

Northern Pacific freight movement now runs about 150 cars of coal West and about 175 cars of wheat East daily in arrivals and departures at Duluth. Even passenger crews are pressed into service and make short extra trips.

About forty cars of private supplies are being hauled to the end of the track every day on the Duluth, Missabe & Northern. The town of Grant has more than doubled in size since the road has opened to that point. Fourteen new buildings were commenced Monday and those already framed are being finished.

City Ticket Agent Sisler, of the Northwestern, will be back next Monday from his wedding trip.

Northwestern Passenger Agent Walter Wyand, of the Michigan Central railway, and C. E. Miner, traveling passenger agent of the Mexican Central road, are in the city arranging some excursion rate matters.

A SUPERIOR SENSATION.

A Prominent Young Lady Has a Doctor Arrested For Attempted Abortion.

About three weeks ago Dr. Howison, a prominent Superior dentist, left the city very suddenly and it was then found that a warrant was out for him alleging bastardy, the complainant being Miss Kittie Bedford, a prominent young lady. The case created a great sensation. Dr. Howison had been moving in good society and had probably caused a flutter in more than one feminine heart. He is now in Chicago and refuses to return. Another chapter was added to the case Monday. Dr. N. L. Howison, of Rice Lake, Wis., was arrested upon a charge of attempted abortion, the complainant again being Miss Bedford. Dr. Howison had heard that such a warrant had been issued and was on his way to Superior when arrested. He was arraigned in the municipal court and pleaded not guilty to the charge. The case was adjourned to Oct. 26 and he returned home. Dr. Howison is a man of middle age and is given an excellent reputation. He has resided in Rice Lake for a number of years and has accumulated a large fortune. There is talk of getting out requisition papers for the dentist Howison, but it is not believed that he can be brought back upon such a charge.

DEMOCRATS HAVE WON

The New York Court of Appeals Decides Against the Republicans in the Apportionment Cases.

All Three Cases Decided in Favor of the Apportionment of 1892 by the Legislature.

Justices Andrews and Finch, However, Consider the Law Void on the Ground of Inequality.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 13.—The court of appeals has decided all three of the apportionment cases in favor of the apportionment of 1892 as made by the legislature. The cases and decisions are as follows:

The People, ex rel. Bond, as appellant vs. the Board of Supervisors of Monroe county. The court is asked to issue a writ of mandamus compelling the board of supervisors of Monroe county to redistrict the assembly districts in that county in compliance with the apportionment law passed by the last legislature. Orders reversed and motions for a mandamus granted with all costs.

Second case: The People, ex rel. Horn, appellant vs. the Board of Supervisors of Oneida county, the same proceedings as in the Monroe case. Orders reversed and motions for a mandamus granted with costs in all courts.

Third case: The People, ex rel. George C. Carter, of Utica, appellant, vs. Frank Rice, secretary of state. It asks the court to grant an injunction order restraining the secretary of state from recognizing the new apportionment law or sending out notices of election of members of assemby to county clerks under that law. Order affirmed with costs in all courts.

The opinions are written by Judges Peckham and Gray. Earl, O'Brien and Maynard concur, and Andrews dissents on one question in which Finch concurs. Judge Peckham writes the principal opinion in the three cases. It covers forty-six pages of typewritten copy. He says in it, after reciting the character of the three cases:

All the proceedings have for their object the decision of the question as to the validity of the apportionment act of 1892. This apportionment act of 1892, it is alleged, violates the provisions of the constitution in several particulars. While the questions in themselves are most important and far-reaching, yet we are compelled by the necessities of the case to decide them at the earliest moment. We, however, feel more competent to do this because, however important the questions may be, we think the proper and correct answers are quite plain and clear.

The rule which has governed courts since the adoption of our constitutions, both federal and state, in relation to the exercise of the power to declare an enactment of the legislative body unconstitutional, has been plainly laid down in many reported cases and has been rigidly adhered to by both the federal and state courts. Before courts will deem it their duty to declare an act of the legislature void, as in violation of some provision of the constitution, a case must be presented in which there can be no rational doubt. The incompatibility of the legislative enactment with the constitution must be manifest and unequivocal.

He cites the sections of the constitution relating to apportionment and says: It is contended, on the part of those who allege the invalidity of the law of 1892, that it was passed in violation of that provision of the constitution which directs the alteration to be made by the legislature at the first session after the return of every enumeration. The act was in truth passed at an extraordinary session of the legislature called by the governor and after the return of the enumeration of 1892. The point is made that an extraordinary session is not such a session of the legislature as is contemplated by the constitution. To my mind the objection is wholly without force.

An extraordinary session is nevertheless a session of the legislature. When it adjourns sine die, has not the session of the legislature ended? The term of office of its members may not have ended, but the legislative session has certainly terminated by an adjournment without day. It could not again assemble and perform any valid act, unless the governor, under the special power given him by the constitution, should convene it. When thus convened the legislature is in session, and it is clearly not the same session which was ended by a prior adjournment thereof without day. The constitution does not provide that the next legislature after the return of the enumeration and at its first session shall make this apportionment. It was a session of the legislature, and it was the first which was held after the return of the enumeration, and it was competent to deal with the subject because of the recommendation of the governor.

The second point, that the act was in violation of the constitution, because it was based upon an enumeration taken in 1892 instead of 1885, is held to have no force, because it was the duty of each succeeding legislature to make the enumeration until the said enumeration was made. To the third objection, that the apportionment was not based upon an equal number of inhabitants, excluding persons of color not taxed, it is the opinion of the court that, as it has not been shown that any persons suffer harm by the act, this objection also has no force.

The final objection to the act, on the ground that the senate districts do not contain an equal number of inhabitants, is stated to be really the only debatable proposition. The question of the inequality is considered at length, particularly in regard to the constitutional requirement, but the act of 1892 is declared valid and effective law for various reasons.

Justices Gray, Earl, O'Brien and Maynard concur with Justice Peckham in the decision. Justice Andrews writes a dissenting opinion, in which he says he is of the opinion that the apportionment of 1892 is void for the reason that, in apportioning members of assembly among the state, it violates the rule of equality established by the constitution. Justice Finch concurs with Justice Andrews.

RELIEVED FROM SUSPENSION.

Homestead Entries Allowed on Lands in Upper Michigan.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Acting Commissioner Stone has rejected the application of the Brule River Railroad company to select 60,000 acres of land in the upper peninsula of Michigan and directs the register and receiver at Marquette to receive entries therefor.

This action will be good news to the settlers, as it relieves from suspension a large number of homestead and other entries and applications, which have been pending before the general land office for many years. Other applications for selections by the company are in process of adjustment.

His assailant is unknown. He marched through the car swinging a sevolver and shot at random. It is said he left the train at Bennett's switch. The officers are looking for him.

SHE CANNOT RECOVER

Mrs. Ha[illegible] Wea[illegible] Slowly But Surely Growing no Immediate

Every Day She Drops [illegible] Longer Sleep, From Which She Awakes More Exhausted.

The Right Lung Has Ceased to Perform Its Function and the Left Lung Far Gone.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—With the passing of each day Mrs. Harrison grows weaker, imperceptibly it may be to the loving watchers at her bedside night and day, but surely weaker. With each day she drops more into sleep which lasts longer than the day preceding, but from which she awakes more and more exhausted. Her food, entirely liquid, assimilates less and less and the quantity is lessened.

The right lung has ceased to perform its function and the left lung is far gone; how far the physicians cannot say, as they have refrained from making a critical examination for fear of disturbing Mrs. Harrison when the examination could accomplish no good purpose.

Dr. Gardner said this afternoon that Mrs. Harrison was in no imminent danger. She is entirely conscious of her condition, and the president when he joined his invalid wife at Loon Lake was even then acquainted with the fact that she could not recover.

Henry Hayes, supreme trustee and secretary of the board, Camden, N. J.; C. E. Thompson, supreme trustee, Binghampton, N. Y.; G. C. Fountain, supreme trustee, Jersey City, N. J.; E. W. Rouse, supreme trustee, Baltimore, Md.

They are indicted on a charge of embezzlement of $400,000. The indictments are joint and are in two counts.

CONGREGATIONAL COUNCIL.

Relation of the Benevolent Societies to the Church.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 13.—One of the most important reports during all the sessions of the Congregational council was presented this morning. It is from the committee on the relation of the benevolent societies to the churches, and the old question of representation is thereby revived.

The report was made by a committee appointed three years ago. Six plans were presented for the change, by which the churches would become represented in all these bodies which have heretofore been more or less close corporations. The great American board is one of the main bodies.

Plan No. 4 was recommended by the committee. It provides that there shall be a readjustment by which the different board and societies may become representative bodies with two departments, one for home, the other for foreign mission work. This would make the American board elective very largely, giving 217 members in place of 250 as at present and effectually killing the close corporation idea.

In the afternoon there was a discussion of the matter. The New West education commission, it was reported, had already voted in favor of consolidation with the College and Education society.

This Morning's Drunks.

The sinful set that lined up before his honor in the municipal court this morning was meek and mild, each member taking his medicine with as good a face as could be expected. John Madden, John Purcel, Fred Jacobson, John Low and Dan Mahon were plain, unornamented drunks. Ten dollars and costs was the reward. John Kelly not only was drunk but he was disorderly. Twelve dollars and costs was considered a punishment that would about fit John's case.

Wm. Corby, Frank Norton and Jeremiah Griffin extended a plea of guilty to the charge of vagrancy and in return got $5 and costs. E. C. Carley and Charles E. Montgomery denied that they were guilty of disorderly conduct, whereupon bail for $15 each was accepted and the cases continued until 3 o'clock this afternoon.

COLUMBUS EXERCISES

The Official Program Will be Delivered in the High School Building on Friday, October 21.

In the Afternoon the Building Will be Dedicated and President Northrop Will Probably Speak.

Speedy Round Trips Which Were Recently Made by the City of Glasgow and the Majestic.

The school board will hold a meeting Saturday night in the rooms at the high school building. Unless the question of insurance on the central building comes up at this date there is nothing except routine business of an ordinary nature that will come up.

The workmen are placing the stone steps, finishing up the embankment walls and putting the last touches on the front yard grounds, so that a presentable appearance may be a feature of Columbus day. In the forenoon of that day, October 21, the official program will be delivered. In the afternoon, the exercises will be in the line of a formal dedication of the new structure. There will be songs by the High school choir, a review of the schools, the formal presentation of the keys to the board of education and then an address by some able and noted speaker. President Northrop, of the state university, has been invited to perform that part, but as yet no reply has been received from him. Some word, however, is expected very soon.

SOME SPEEDY TRIPS.

City of Glasgow Makes a Good Record But the Majestic is Better.

Some vesselmen are talking about the city today concerning the recent trip of the City of Glasgow, saying that her recent round trip was one of the quickest on record. They are away off in their figures as the following port records will show: The City of Glasgow, Capt. Hugh Stevenson, left here loaded with wheat at 9:45 p. m. Oct. 1, and returned with coal at 5:40 yesterday morning; her actual time between leaving and returning being 11 days, 7 hours and 55 minutes. The Majestic, Capt. James Lawless, left here Oct. 1, at 1 p. m. loaded with wheat and returned here Oct. 10 at 11:45 p. m., her actual trip being 9 days, 10 hours and 45 minutes, or 1 day, 21 hours and 10 minutes faster than the City of Glasgow with precisely the same kind of cargoes for both boats. The Glasgow's time, however, is quite fast, notwithstanding the evident superiority of the Majestic.

RALLY AT GRAND RAPIDS.

Maj. Baldwin, E. C. Gridley and Others Make Speeches.

The Democrats of Itasca county held a rousing rally at Grand Rapids Tuesday. In the afternoon the fatted calf and several spring pigs were barbecued on the fair grounds, Marion Stuart Cann being chief cook and presiding genius of the feast. Maj. Baldwin and Harry Hawkins were present in the throng of yeomen and made hosts of friends. At 8 p. m. the largest hall in the county capital was packed with interested citizens, who listened for two hours to Democratic gospel as expounded by Harry Hawkins, Maj. Baldwin, E. C. Gridley and J. Adam Bede. The meeting was presided over by L. H. Hawkins, a brother of the candidate for lieutenant governor. A goodly number of ladies were present. Maj. Baldwin was especially well received. After the speaking, another repast from the delicious barbecued meats was served in the hall. The speakers returned home yesterday and last evening Maj. Baldwin, J. Adam Bede and Harry Hawkins left for Wright conty.

FROM ACROSS THE BAY.

Superiorites Excited Over a Prospective Tin Plate Mill.

The Superior Leader says that an English syndicate representing $5,000,000 and employing 1000 men in the manufacture of tin plate wants to locate in that city. They ask fifty acres of ground, thirty for residence purposes and twenty for the factory and grounds. The Land and River Improvement company is corresponding with the syndicate.

The announcement is made that the Superior woolen mills, which have been in the hands of an assignee for two or three months, will open up again next Tuesday. Sixty hands will be employed and the old men will all be taken back.

WILL ROLL THE BALLS.

"North Stars" and "Whalebacks" Will Have a Bowling Match Next Week.

The bowling furore is growing in Duluth and the latest novelty is the match which occurs next week at Harvey's Alhambra between the "Whaleback" bowling club and the "North Stars," both of Duluth. The first-named organization is captained by Dr. Alden and the member are Ed. Lynch, Walter Armstrong, Geo. West, J. D. Ellis, P. Doran and two others whose names are not made public. The North Stars are composed of Grant Wyatt, who is also captain, W. J. Dunsmoor, J. R. Osmon, Harry Lamont, J. A. Gamble, S. Gordon, F. J. Barnhard and S. C. Henszey. Both clubs are putting in a good deal of practice work according to the rules of the American Bowling league which will govern the contest. There will be three money prizes added, three medals and H. H. Harvey will offer a fine diamond badge to the bowler making the best score during the contest. In order to claim the badge as personal property the winner must defend it against competitors and beat them three times in succession

Frank Houck Thinks Gentlemen Ought Not to be Confined With Thieves.

Frank Houck, the double murderer, is getting a little bit restive under confinement and his fastidiousness is somewhat surprising. He is cell-mate with young Howard, the boy who stole a horse a few weeks ago, and the other day while out for his corridor exercise walk he electrified Deputy Harry Armstrong by requesting that he be given another cell as it was "no place to put gentlemen in with horse thieves!" He still has the same cell.

SHOT IN THE HEAD.

A Chicago Bartender Murdered by His Mistress.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—Fritz Schmitt was shot and killed by Grace Smith at 1:45 o'clock this morning. Schmitt was a bartender, 22 years of age, and had lived with the Smith woman up to three weeks ago.

Last night they met on the street and Schmitt persuaded the woman to accompany him to Adolf Nowak's saloon at No. 459 Clark street. After sitting in the saloon for some time they went up stairs to room 12.

The couple were heard quarreling by the occupants of the adjoining rooms, but it was not until the sound of three shots rang out that anything wrong was suspected. When the people of the house rushed in they found Schmitt dead on the floor with three bullet wounds in the head and a 25-caliber revolver lying by his side.

EPIDEMIC OF DIPHTHERIA.

Three Hundred Cases in One Township in Ohio.

PLAIN CITY, Ohio, Oct. 13.—Jerome Township, this county, is one big hospital. Every school in the township is closed, and it is estimated that within a radius of four miles there are 300 cases of diphtheria. Scarcely a family has escaped.

All the surrounding country has quarantined against the township and patrols guard all the roads. Not a particle of business is being done and all farm work is suspended.

A Great Discovery.

QUEBEC, Oct. 13.—Blacksmith Allard, of Levis, who has discovered the secret of tempering copper, has tempered a piece of aluminum. The test was made at the demand of a New York firm. A renowned scientist tested the aluminum and testified that it was tempered as hard as steel could be.

Who will be the next president of the United States, but everybody knows that the electric lighted, steam heated vestibuled trains of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, leaving Minneapolis at 7:20 and St. Paul at 8 o'clock every evening, and arriving at Chicago at 9:30 next morning, are absolutely unexcelled by any train on this continent. I used it and will say it is the only remedy that gave me permanent relief and no bad results follow." For sale by druggists.

THE COLUMBUS MONUMENT.

Forty-five Thousand People Attend the Unveiling Ceremonies.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Fully 45,000 people witnessed the unveiling of the Columbus monument, presented by Italian citizens of America to the city of New York, yesterday afternoon. The monument was unveiled by little Annie Barsotti, daughter of the president of the monument association. She made a brief address as follows:

"In this solemn moment, when the glorious statue of Christopher Columbus appears in all its majesty and beauty before the eyes of the people of New York, I pray that God will grant two particular blessings. One for Italy, the mother of the great discoverer; one for America, the daughter of his genius, of his skill, of his perseverance. As a child of Italian parentage and of American birth, I can ask nothing greater than this: God bless Italy; God bless America, and may the friendship between the two countries and the two people endure and resist time as will the marble and bronze of this great and beautiful monument."

Miss Barsotti then pulled the cords which allowed the drapery to fall from the monument. After the unveiling Archbishop Corrigan blessed the monument. Charles Barsotti, the president of the monument committee, then presented the monument to James Grant Wilson, who accepted it in behalf of the mayor and the commonwealth. Baron Fava, Italian minister at Washington, then made an address.

The "historic and industrial night pageant" which closed the outdoor part of the Columbian celebration last night was something of a disappointment. The crowds of people were simply so vast as to be absolutely unmanageable.

WAS SHOT IN THE LEG.

Anarchist Bergmann Made a Futile Attempt to Escape.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 13.—Anarchist Bergmann who assaulted Chairman Frick, made a desperate attempt to escape from the Western penitentiary Saturday evening. He leaped from a wall to the pavement forty-five feet below and while staggering away was shot in the leg by a guard and recaptured.

Gaining the wall he lost no time in jumping over. The drop was forty feet and he landed in a heap on the cobble stones. By the time Bergmann got upon his feet and tried to hobble away, Guard Young had reached the place where the anarchist went over. Taking aim with his rifle he fired, striking the fugitive in the leg and bringing him down.

Bergmann was returned to the prison, and now lies in the hospital with a fractured limb.

The court, having decided that it had jurisdiction in the case, took a recess until 3 o'clock p. m.

The Weather.

U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, DULUTH, MINN., Oct. 13.—The storm that was central over Kansas yesterday has been nearly crowded out by an area of high barometer, but still continues with diminished energy and smaller territory.

Heavy rains have fallen in Colorado, Nebraska and South Dakota during the past twenty-four hours and still continue over Colorado and Missouri. The heaviest in inches was Denver, 2.58; Huron, S. D., 1.72; and North Platte, Neb., 1.20.

There has been a decided fall in temperature over Montana since yesterday, the coldest weather being reported from there this morning. At Fort Bufford it is 26°, and at Miles City 28°. The warmest place is Chicago, 66°.

The highest temperature here yesterday was 58°, the lowest last night 50°.

Individualism in Politics.

In a recent article under the above heading, the Kansas City Star says very truly that the great need of the time and of the country is the proper understanding by the individual citizen of his rights, duties, powers and privileges, and his intelligent and honest and fearless exercise of the same. It is his duty to stand by his country; but it is just as much his duty to stand up for his state, and to vote for the good of his county and for the honor and good fame of his city.

Any system, maintains the Star, which substitutes for these obligations another allegiance, as the duty of standing up for a political party or a society, or an order, secret or otherwise, or even a religious organization, where such support may be detrimental to the public interest, is wrong. The citizen who allows any of these influences to control his vote, in opposition to his own sense of what is right, to a certain extent ceases to be a free American citizen and falls short of his whole duty.

Under the sort of rule which unfortunately prevails where partisan rule is enforced to the subjection of everything else, there is a deal of whip cracking about "bolting" and "bolters," it being the understanding that a "bolter" is as altogether infamous as a deserter from his colors and his comrades in the army. With the reign of the individual citizen there could be no more of this sort of terrorism. Every man would be a possible "bolter" where an attempt was made to enforce party rule to the public injury.

These sound sentiments are presented to the consideration of Republicans in St. Louis county who are now hesitating whether to vote for Maj. Baldwin or Judge Searle. They know that the best interests of this city and county, as well as of the whole district, would be promoted by the election of Maj. Baldwin, but they are feeling the party lash and are somewhat afraid of being called "bolters" if they support Maj. Baldwin. Such a fear should not be entertained by them for a moment. The good of the city is of far greater importance to every person residing within its limits than is the triumph of any political party. This is an occasion when they should assert their independence and perform their full duty as citizens, and they can do that in no better way than by casting their votes for Maj. Baldwin. They are told that Judge Searle is a great and able man. The Herald will not decry his ability, though it has no evidence that he possesses any in a legislative direction, but it will assert that in ability to properly and efficiently represent the Sixth district, and especially Duluth, in congress, he does not compare with Maj. Baldwin. The Herald does not claim that the people of St. Louis county should vote for Maj. Baldwin because he is a resident of Duluth, but because he possesses a thorough knowledge of the subjects requiring congressional action in which Duluth is deeply interested and Judge Searle does not. This is one of the occasions to which the Kansas City paper refers, when it declares that it is the duty of the individual citizen "to vote for the good of his county." He can perform his whole duty in this respect by supporting Maj. Baldwin.

Mr. Arctander, who is one of the trusted leaders of the People's party, gave the Populists of St. Louis county good advice in his speech at Normanna hall Tuesday night, when he urged them to vote for Maj. Baldwin for congressman. Every vote cast for Parsons will be merely thrown away and will actually help Judge Searle, while the Populists can defeat him by voting for Maj. Baldwin.

The splendid reception which Maj. Baldwin got at La Prairie Tuesday night shows that Itasca county will cast a big vote for the Duluth candidate. This is as it should be, because all Itasca's interests are closely interwoven with those of Duluth, and what will help Duluth will help Itasca county. It will also help the whole Sixth district. Maj. Baldwin can do more than Judge Searle in congress for Duluth, and consequently for the entire Sixth district.

The funeral of Lord Tennyson was remarkable for the deep sorrow which was evidenced by people of all classes. It was an event of international interest, and the scene in Westminister abbey was truly impressive. As usual, The Herald distanced all its contemporaries at the head of the lakes in the complete account which it published of the solemn ceremonies.

The Boston Globe scored a great beat on its contemporaries in securing a report of the evidence collected by the detectives in the Borden murder case. It paid a detective $500 for the story, which was promptly denied by the police department. When the Globe published the detective's affidavit, the head of the department withdrew his denial.

Commenting on the statement in the St. Cloud Journal-Press that Judge Searle intends to resign the judgeship before election, an exchange says that the plan is that he shall send his resignation to the governor a few days before election. Then if he be not elected, the governor will decline to accept the resignation, and Mr. Searle will still have an office.

The Dispatch will be the name of the new Chicago evening paper to be issued by Joseph R. Dunlop, recently editor of the Chicago Mail. It will be an eight-page penny paper and promises to be bright and aggressive. Mr. Dunlop lifted the Mail out of an almost hopeless rut and under his management the Dispatch should attain success.

Judge Botkin of the Topeka, Kan., district has resigned after one of the most exciting terms of office which a judge ever experienced. He has had a stormy time and frequently opened court with a Winchester beside him and the court officers armed to the teeth.

It is wonderful how Duluth's marine business is increasing. On Tuesday after 2 p. m. twenty-six vessels of an aggregate tonnage of 52,000 went through the canal. This is one of the largest day's marine business on record.

The hearty applause at the Normanna hall Populist meeting when Mr. Arctander urged them to vote for Maj. Baldwin because there is no hope of electing Parsons, showed unmistakably the drift of sentiment in that party.

Congressman Breckenridge has declined to deliver the Columbian oration at Chicago, and Senator Daniel will be asked to fill his place. The Virginian senator is one of the finest orators in the country.

Tom Lucas is a candidate for congress in the Fifth district. If congressmen were elected because of the size of their mouths, Lucas would win in a canter.

The United States treasury now has a cash balance of $32,000,000. Uncle Sam has consequently got plenty laid aside for a rainy day.

The enthusiasm in the present political campaign appears to be largely what is called "pent-up enthusiasm."

The carpet cost $1.75 a yard when it was new, and his feet sinking into its sumptuous surface emitted no sound as he advanced across the front parlor and with a quick, heartfelt gasp folded the radiant maiden in his arms.

"At last," she murmured, and the light of sweet content suffused her glorious face.

"I came as soon as I could," he softly whispered, kissing her damask cheek and incidentally thrusting his nose into her eye.

They stood thus for a time. The gas was burning in a Bunsen lamp. Otherwise it might have flickered and sent elflike shadows dancing about the room.

"My girl"——

Considering his position his articulation was very distinct.

"——will you be my wife?"

"Yes."

He pressed her fondly to his bosom.

"And now to business," he muttered.

With a hoarse, fin de siecle laugh he disengaged himself.

"I can kill two birds with one stone," he declared.

With a proud glance at his health officer's badge he proceeded to make a sanitary inspection of the house and premises.—Detroit Tribune.

EXPRESS CAR ROBBED

Two Masked Men Hold Up a Train on the Denver Branch of the Missouri Pacific.

The Engineer Compelled to Draw the Express Car From the Rest of the Train.

Several Shots Forced the Messenger to Open the Safe and Its Contents Were Taken.

COFFEYVILLE, Kans., Oct. 13.—The night express on the Denver branch of Missouri Pacific railway was held up and the express car robbed between Caney and Tyro at midnight last night by two masked men. When the train stopped at Caney at 11 o'clock, one of the robbers secreted himself on the forward platform of the combination express and baggage car. Shortly after leaving Caney the robber climbed over the tender and with a heavy revolver ordered the engineer to stop the train.

The engineer brought the train to a standstill, and the robber cut the combination car from the train and compelled the engineer to draw the car to a deep cut, about a half a mile further east. Here the other robber made his appearance, and both began firing their revolvers. The express messenger was ordered to open the door of the car, and after several shots were fired through the panels he complied. One of the robbers entered the car while the other remained on guard outside.

The messenger opened the safe and the robber, hastily grabbing the packages and envelopes which it contained, placed them in a small sack and jumped from the car. They then ordered the engineer to back the car to where the train was left standing and, after firing a few more shots as a warning, disappeared in the darkness. Both robbers wore heavy black masks and their clothing was spattered with mud, indicating that they were mounted and had ridden hard.

The express messenger claims he does not know the value of the booty secured. The express officials and railroad men at different points along the line claim that the robbers did not secure $500, if indeed they got that much. When the train reached Tyro the watchman was told of the robbery, but no effort was made to get a posse and pursue the robbers. This morning the railway people sent a squad of officers to Tyro and will begin an active search for the men.

The dude was visiting the penitentiary accompanied by an official and a newspaper man, and the party were talking to one of the prisoners.

"Have a cigarette?" said the dude as they were about to depart, offering him a package.

"Much obliged," responded the prisoner, shaking his head. "I've stole hosses and robbed chicken roosts and broke into houses and killed a man or two and had four or five wives and made counterfeit money, but I never smoked cigarettes, and heaven helpin me I never will. So long," and the cell door went to with a bang as pronounced as the one the dude wore in his hair.—Detroit Free Press.

Some History Connected With Tim Foley's Elevation to the Presidency of the Construction Company.

The Wright Crowd Tried to Freeze Out the Foleys and Got Caugh in Their Own Trap.

After the Stock Was Down Foley Was Expected to Sell But Instead of That Bought.

There is some interesting history connected with the elevation of Timothy Foley to the presidency of the North Star Construction company, which in reality owns the Duluth & Winnipeg road. The election of Mr. Foley was a surprise to some parties, and a painful one, and was brought about by some very shrewd financiering. A few capitalists were balked at their own game and neatly, too.

The stock of the North Star Construction company was until lately in the control of A. W. Wright, of Saginaw, Mich., and Messrs. Wells, Stone and others, Mr. Wright being the ruling spirit. The Foley Bros. had large interests but were in the minority. Wright wanted it all and set about getting it by the customary freezing out process. He is one of the shrewdest of manipulators, but in this case left it to his subordinates to work the scheme, and now he is "kicking" himself for doing it. They proceeded to bear the stock and threw their stock on the market and pulled the price slowly but surely down. Tim Foley, however, is about as shrewed as wright and was not to be caught napping. He and his associates looked quietly on until the stock had gone down to about 50 cents on the dollar and then they jumped in and gobbled it up so suddenly that the other crowd was paralyzed.

The election was held about two weeks ago and Tim Foley was made president. The Wright crowd is pretty sore and will undoubtedly endeavor to play even. There is a general impression that Jim Hill was behind the Foleys in the deal.

THE JOKE IS TURNED.

Capt. McDougall Finds That His Own Boat Was Stolen.

Freight Agent Thomas, of the Northern Pacific road, has a boat on his hands. Some four months ago a man drove up to the Northern Pacific warehouse with a large metallic boat which he desired shipped to a point on the Northern Pacific east of here. The agent told him it would have to be prepaid, and the man went out of the building and has never since returned or been heard of. Capt. McDougall has been making fun of Agent Thomas' boat all summer, but the other day he was taking an inventory over at the shipyard and found he was one metallic boat short. He investigated and now finds that the very boat he has been poking fun at all the time is one of his own property, stolen from him without his missing it.

DOUGLAS COUNTY POLITICS.

C. A. King, of West Superior, is a Popular Choice for County Clerk.

Among the candidates in the political maelstrom across the bay who bid fair to receive the sanction of the people on election day, none is more worthy than C. A. King, who is the nominee of the People's party for county clerk of Douglas county and who is at present inspector in the city engineer's department.

Mr. King located in West Superior but three or four years ago, and in that short time has gathered around him by his ability and sterling qualities a host of warm-hearted friends. He is a brother-in-law of Hon. W. W. Erwin, the great criminal lawyer of St. Paul, who soon goes to Pittsburg to defend the Homestead strikers.

If Mr. King should be elected, and his chances look exceedingly bright, the people of Douglas county will have reason to congratulate themselves.

Several missionaries are to be present and a large number of delegates from abroad. A revival interest in the missionary cause is hoped. All services will be held in the First M. E. church.

Raising the Bunnell Block.

Workmen are busy this morning raising the Bunnell block on Lake avenue to the grade of the viaduct. T. J. Hunter, the printer, is occupying temporary quarters in the Bunnell brick block on West Michigan street and the other tenants are scattered. The building will be raised about twenty feet. There are over eighty buildings on Lake avenue which will be or have been raised to conform with the new street level.

Sentenced For Fraud.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—Inspector Hover of Garden was sentenced today to six months imprisonment for defrauding the admiralty.

To the Union and Non-Union Workingmen and Citizens of Duluth and Vicinity.

We, the undersigned Retail Clerks union of Duluth, respectfully appeal to you and ask your assistance and cooperation with us in our endeavors to obtain what we are honestly entitled to, a fair day's work. As you are aware, the clothing and dry goods merchants of this city entered into an agreement with us to close their stores at 6:30 p. m., except Saturday and Monday evenings. This agreement has been in most cases faithfully kept, and in some instances merchants close at 6 p. m.

Of late a desire on the part of some merchants to break away from this agreement has shown itself, and some have actually opened up evenings, notably the Bell Clothing store, Levine Bros., proprietors.

We ask you, on behalf of organized labor, fellow workingmen and citizens, to leave this establishment severely alone. Trade with merchants who are honorable enough to keep their word as men, and with your help we can easily settle with those who try to break in on our rights. Respectfully,

THE RETAIL CLERKS' UNION,
No. 3, R. C. N. P. A.

A Romance of 1900.

Extract from a dime novel of the future:

Then the pirate king shouted in excited accents: "What, ho! my lads! Here is the site of the buried treasure. Heave up yon bedded plate of brass and look beneath!"

The noble Don y Mackerel forced back the bandits, and with one mighty swing of his sword clove the brazen ring in twain. There, carefully buried away in a jeweled casket, lay two scuttles of coal, full to the brim!—Chicago News-Record.

A Great Interest.

When Grattan was a young student he was fond of practicing oratory in a certain wood, in a part of which was a gallows from which depended the rusty chains in which a criminal had been hung many years before.

When he was once apostrophizing this melancholy object a stranger came up unperceived behind him and said to him:

"How the devil did you get down?"

The young orator coolly replied, "Ah, sir, you have an interest in that question."—Bench and Bar of Ireland.

High Priced Butter.

A report made to the home government by the British consul at Guatemala calls attention to the excellent field open to the dairy farmer in that republic. He says that very inferior butter is now sold there at one dollar a pound, and notwithstanding that there is any quantity of available land to be purchased at moderate prices in the neighborhood of the large cities, well adapted to stock rearing and dairy produce, not much attention is given to the industry, and comparatively little butter is manufactured.

A Fine Display.

Exhibitions in British colonies are generally a success, but the South African and international exhibition just opened at Kimberley is especially interesting. It is the largest display of the kind ever held in South Africa, and is housed in handsome buildings, attractively situated in the public gardens. English people at home have contributed generously, and the loan collection of British pictures is very fine.

OPENS THIS EVENING

Presbyterian Synod Convenes Tonight and Rev. L. H. Morey to Talk on the School Question.

Rev. Mr. Waddell of Brazil Will Talk on Foreign Missions Particularly in South America Friday Evening.

Mrs. Haworth, a Missionary in Japan For Five Years Will Talk on That Country and Its People.

The Presbyterian synod for the state of Minnesota commences its session in Duluth this evening at 7:30 o'clock, at which time Rev. L. H. Morey of Stillwater will preach on the school question. A special train from St. Paul over the Omaha road will bring in the great mass of the delegates this evening and their assignment to places of entertainment will precede the address.

Devotional exercises at 9 o'clock will open the work for tomorrow. At 9:30 a. m. the business session will commence. At 12:30 lunch will be served in the church parlors. The board of education has invited the synod to visit the new High school building en masse at 1:30 o'clock and the acceptance rests with the body invited. If that visit is made, at 2:30 regular business will be taken up for the afternoon.

In the evening will be the address on foreign missions. Dr. Ringland is in receipt of a letter from Dr. Arthur Mitchell, of the board of foreign missions in New York, saying that business on hand and poor health will not permit him to be here but that he has sent in his stead Rev. Mr. Waddell, of Brazil, "a man of ten thousand," as the good doctor expresses it. Mr. Waddell is spoken of as the most remarkable man in his gifts that ever left Union college. He has had a home missionary experience in Southern California, is an expert civil and sanitary engineer, a teacher and "magazine" of knowledge on all South American affairs. Dr. Mitchell humorously adds that he expects Mr. Waddell will throw a "lime" light on South America.

Mrs. Haworth, who has been a missionary in Japan for five years, is already here and will give the address on foreign missions Saturday afternoon. A portion of her time in Japan was spent at Osaka, the city second in size but first in commercial importance in all Japan. The address will be devoted to a naration of the people, their habits, customs and other things of interest concerning that peculiar country, as well as much of interest concerning Mrs. Haworth's work as a missionary. It is bound to be most interesting from every standpoint.

Youthful Grammar.

The grammar of little children is oftentimes very amusing. A little four-year-old girl, who had that pretty matronly way that little girls are apt to assume with their younger brothers and sisters, was at the breakfast table with some guests, and wishing to show her superior knowledge and age she said: "My little brother Van said he had 'taked' two biscuits. He meant to have said, 'I have tooken two biscuits.' You know Van is only three years old. He doesn't always know how to say things."—Christian Union.

His Choice.

"Say, Billy, ef yer dad made yer go to work in vacation, what 'nd yer rather be?"

"Guess I'd be a school teacher."—Truth.

Cool.

"Madam," he insinuated, as he rapidly unrolled before the screen door a package of something, "I have here some of the most wonderful fly paper you ever saw. Every square inch of it is warranted to attract as many flies as can stand upon a square inch, reckoned to be, madam, in the neighborhood of thirty-two, without uncomfortable crowding. That would make on a sheet of this size, which contains 500 squares, 16,000 flies. Think of that, ma'am! And only the ridiculous price of a nickel."

"I don't care for any of it," replied the lady coldly.

"In case you keep boarders," he continued, unrolling a large piece, "here is a sheet containing 1,500 squares. That means 48,000 flies saved from falling into the soup or the butter, madam, and ought to raise the price of board perceptibly. Why, I can remember when I was boarding"——

"I do not keep boarders, and I do not want any of your fly paper," said the lady in a freezing tone. The fly paper man began to roll up his package.

"You will not take any today, madam. It is the last time I shall be in the city. I expect to pass on to the great eastern metropolises by tomorrow."

"You need not stay here on my porch any longer. If you do I will set the dog on you," and the lady drew herself up haughtily and began to close the other door.

"Just a moment, madam," put in the fly paper peddler. "It is an extremely hot day, but the coolness of the atmosphere in this neighborhood is so refreshing that I have enjoyed it more than if I had sold you two nickels' worth of the Incomparable Magnetizer and Fly Sticker. It has been like a drink of iced milk to the thirsty Arab in the great Sahara."

And as the door slammed he walked serenely down the steps.—Youth's Companion.

CAMPAIGN ISSUES

WILL BE DISCUSSED BY THE

HON. JOHN LIND

FROM A REPUBLICAN STANDPOINT AT THE

BIG TENT IN WEST DULUTH,

On Friday Evening, Oct. 14.

Mr. Lind is one of the most powerful speakers in the Northwest, and in his six years' services in congress from the old Second District of this state, has gained for himself a national reputation. Duluth has especially reasons to be thankful to Mr. Lind, as he has always stood up for her interests. He is one of the most logical talkers on the tariff and the upbuilding of American industries that will appear here this campaign.

Turn out and hear him shatter the rickety platforms of the Democratic and Peoples party. Listen to his convincing arguments upon the fallacies of the financial questions of the above parties, as compared with the Republican party.

Duluth Republicans and members of all other parties should attend. The Duluth City Band will be on hand. The FLAMBEAU CLUB will go to West Duluth in a body.

Remember, Friday evening, Oct. 14th, at 8 o'clock at the Big Tent in West Duluth.

THE DULUTH'S ANNUAL

Remarkable Increase in the Earnings of the St. Paul & Duluth Railroad For the Past Year.

The Report a Flattering One For the Company, Showing Great Strides Have Been Made.

The Reduction of the Grades Between Hinckley and Carlton to be Completed Next Year.

The annual report of the St. Paul & Duluth Railroad company for the year ending June 30, 1892, was issued yesterday from the general offices. The report is a flattering one for the company, showing that great strides have been made during the year.

The earnings in all the departments, except the express and miscellaneous, show an increase, the advance in the passenger, freight and mail departments reaching the comfortable sum of $316,912.15, while the decrease in the express and miscellaneous departments is only $4,340.32.

The increase in freight earnings is set forth as largely due to the movement of grain from connecting lines and from the driving and handling of logs.

The St. Paul & Duluth now operates 260 odd miles of track, of which 183 belong to the company, the remainder being leased. During the coming year the most important work to be accomplished is the completion of the reduction of grades between Hinckley and Carlton to a maximum of twenty-six feet per mile and the development of proper and independent terminal facilities in Minneapolis.

The gross earnings of the entire road during the year were $1,934,510.87, as against $1,621,939.04 last year, an increase of $316,912.15. The operating expenses were $1,234,617.62, as against $1,021,581.-4 for last year. The surplus earnings amounted to $699,893.25, an increase over last year of $99,535.55. During the year 931,782 passengers were carried and the total passenger earnings amounted to $496,742.72, an increase of $14,248.67. During the year $76,077.97 were spent for improvements in construction and equipment expenditures. The receipts from land sales, etc., aggregated $149,-90.44.

The entire income of the road, from gross earnings, rent, dividends and interest and exchange, was $1,970,912.16, and the balance, after deducting all expenses, was $181,611.32.

The assets of the road, in road and equipment, investments, general assets and accounts receivable, are $15,461,-41.30.

AMUSEMENTS.

Dialogue is Snappy.

Harrison & Bell's comedians will entertain Duluth theater-goers tomorrow evening at the Temple in "Little Tippett" as adapted from the French. The play rattles along at a very lively pace, and the interest is particularly well sustained until the fall of the curtain. The attractive quality is due to two reasons principally—the snappy dialogue and to the fact that the ultimate result of the complications, their unravelling, so to speak, is not clearly evident until near the close. The first act is full of farcical speech and positions, the second mixes up things with a vengeance, and the third, while it is expected to straighten out all crooked lines and bent points, does so most ingeniously, and is really very cleverly constructed.

Increase in Salaries.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 13.—Matters in the Missouri Pacific telegraphers' situation have so far shaped themselves that an agreement is expected to be signed today. The schedule is said to increase the salaries in nearly every office on the line, and to place the aggregate increase per annum in the neighborhood of $150,-00.

ALMOST A MIRACLE.

Our City Electrified by a Wonderful Occurrence.

Something Which Will Marvellously Interest Our Readers,

And Also is of the Utmost Importance to Everybody.

[From the Syracuse Herald.]

Something little short of a miracle has taken place in our city, and we believe that its importance demands the the publication of the facts far and wide.

It seems that a lady, Mrs. Hickok by name, who is 75 years old, was brought very low by disease, absolutely prostrated in fact, and, as all supposed, was on her death bed, she having been given up as incurable by the doctors. Very suddenly she was restored to perfect health.

Her son, the well known Charles F. Hickok of 411 Taylor street, Syracuse, N. Y., when interviewed in regard to his mother's remarkable and sudden restoration to health, said: "It is a fact that my mother, 75 years old, was raised from her death bed and made a well lady. Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy did it. She was weak and exhausted, her kidneys were very bad, and her back very lame and her appetite was very poor. She got over her pains in a few days under the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and kept gaining under the influence of this wonderful remedy, until she now is entirely cured."

Mrs. Charles F. Hickok, wife of Mr. Hickok, said: "I take great pleasure in testifying to the wonderful cure of my husband's mother by Dr. Green's Nervura blood and nerve remedy."

Mr. Charles Hickok, Jr., son of Mr. Hickok, spoke enthusiastically in regard to what he considers a most marvellous restoration to health after all hope was gone. "Why," he said, "the doctors had all given my grandmother up to die, but she is now well and strong, thanks to Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy!"

All the parties are well known residents of our city, and can be seen or written to at any time. The facts have come under our personal knowledge, and certainly the cure speaks volumes in regard to the efficacy of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy in overcoming disease and restoring the weak and suffering to health and strength. If it will thus save the life of a person almost on the edge of the grave, how much more surely and readily will it cure all the ordinary complaints which afflict humanity. Indeed, we have heard of a great many people being cured by this wonderful medicine, and the fact that it is the discovery of Dr. Greene, of 35 West Fourteenth street, New York, one of the most eminent and best known physicians in the United States, makes us unhesitatingly recommend its use to the sick.

Dr. Greene is probably the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, and can be consulted free, personally or by letter.

If you are weak, tired, nervous, run down and exhausted in nerve power or physical vitality, it will immediately restore you to health and vigor. If you suffer from headache, insomnia, nervous debility, dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, constipation or kidney and liver trouble, do not fail to use it, for it will certainly cure you.

Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is the best remedy in the world to strengthen the nerves, invigorate the blood, regulate the action of all the organs and restore our strength and energies.

If our readers take our advice they will take this wonderful remedy now—now when they most need it. You can buy it at any drug store for $1, and no one need fear to use it, for it is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless.

Woman's Winter Wear.

It is the wise woman who is planning her winter wardrobe now.

And she should remember how easy it is to use Diamond Dyes, and how inexpensive a dress will be when made from one recolored with their fast blacks. There are three kinds, for wool, for cotton, and for silk and feathers, but they are all alike in being absolutely fast, non crocking, and improved by washing with soap.

There will be a meeting held at Svea hall by the West End Democratic club, Thursday evening. The speakers will be Mayor d'Autremont and others.

The Little Citizen.

Having been called away by campaign engagements the publication of The Little Citizen has been somewhat delayed, but after this week I shall be at home and the only Jeffersonian paper in Duluth will thereafter appear regularly. Subscribe now and secure every number. J. ADAM BEDE.

Perhaps some of our readers would like to know in what respect Chamberlain's cough remedy is better than any other. We will tell you. When this remedy is taken as soon as a cold has been contracted, and before it has been settled in the system, it will counteract the effect of the cold and greatly lessen it's severity, and it is the only remedy that will do this. It acts in perfect harmony with nature and aids nature in relieving the lungs, opening the secretions, liquefying the mucus and causing its expulsion from the air cells of the lungs and restoring the system to a strong and healthy condition. No other remedy in the market possesses these remarkable properties. No other will cure a cold so quickly. For sale by druggists.

Notice to the Public.

Inspector Robinson, at the city hall, has the necessary appliances now for testing of gas and water meters, any parties desiring their meters inspected should notify him to that effect. The inspector can test water meters at the houses, thus saving the expense of taking them to his office at the city hall. THE JURY DISAGREED

No Verdict Returned in the Damage Case of Moses Elliott vs. Northern Pacific Railway.

The Jury Was Out Twenty-four Hours and When Brought in Was Discharged by Judge Nelson.

Session of the District Court Special Term to be Held Saturday Instead of Monday.

The jurors in the case of Moses Elliott vs. the Northern Pacific Railroad company were brought in today at noon and reported that they could not reach any agreement on questions of fact. Judge Nelson accepted this and discharged the jury. The case was in the jury's hands just twenty-four hours. It has already been tried twice and must now be tried again. The first time the jury came to an agreement too soon and the verdict was set aside.

In the case of J. W. Bell vs. C. E. Dickerman et al, the defendant was allowed until Nov. 1 to produce proof when the court will pass upon the materiality of the proof submitted. J. C. Flynn vs. Wilson & Thatcher, is on trial now. D. T. Calhoun, of St. Cloud, is the plaintiff's attorney.

No Special Term

The special term of the district court, usually held on Saturdays, will not be held until Monday morning at 9 o'clock, as Judges Stearns and Ensign will be absent until then.

THE MIND CONSCIOUS OF RIGHT!

THAT'S THE SECRET OF a contented and well-regulated life. Old Horace knew it, and sang it amid the corruptions and dissipations of the Roman empire. It's not confined to any one sphere of life activity. The poorest man that walks the streets, if he have it—and he may have it for the trying—will be cheerful ever in the midst of grinding poverty and adversity. It's a law of right living that should permeate trade as well as social relations—indeed, there can be no righteous law that discriminates in its application. It applies to our dealings with you—our customers. The whole vital history of THE BIG DULUTH is a tale of constant effort to be entirely honest to our friends and to ourselves—of constant watchfulness of your necessity and of any possible error on our part. If you have recognized this fact as characteristic of us—and we believe you have—then you will be tempted by these prices.

BLINDED BY THE SNOW

An Austrian Miner Walked Into a Shaft of a Colorado Mine and was Killed Instantly.

For Two Days the Severest Storm Ever Known on the Union Pacific Has Been Raging.

A Conductor Blown from a Train Down a Deep Embankment, but Saved by Deep Snow.

DENVER, Col., Oct. 14.—At Central City, Ratisco Ebilie, an Austrian miner, blinded by the snow and wind, walked into a five-foot shaft yesterday and was instantly killed. The Republican's special from Cheyenne says for nearly two days the severest storm ever known on the Union Pacific railroad has been raging there and as far west as Ogden, Utah. In all directions telegraphic communication was cut off until late last night when this dispatch was sent through on a temporary wire.

All railroads have been blocked, the cuts being filled with snow, which in some places was piled up eighteen feet. Rotary snow plows have been hard at work between Granite and Laramie, the snow being five feet deep on the level at the latter place. A half dozen westbound trains have been tied up here, but left after the return of the snow plow last night. Today three coach loads of people pulled in from the West in three sections with more to follow.

The Cheyenne Northern is entirely blocked, telegraphic communication being cut off. No one knows where the belated trains on it are. Two days have elapsed since the road was snowed in. At Granite Canyon, Conductor Roberts yesterday was blown off the platform of a car and hurled down a fifteen foot embankment, the deep snow saving his life. Reports are being received of immense loss of cattle and horses in Northern Colorado and in Wyoming. Thousands of dollars worth of these animals are known to have perished and it is estimated that almost a third of the cattle and horses on the ranges have been destroyed by the storm.

An unknown dead man was found by the side of the track near Greely, Col., today. He had perished from the effects of the storm.

LOSS BY PRAIRIE FIRES.

The Ranching District of the Canadian Northwest Devastated.

ST. PAUL, Oct. 14.—A special to the Dispatch from Winnipeg says: The western half of the Alberta ranching district of the Northwest has been devastated by prairie fires. Thousands of tons of hay and many buildings have been burned and it is feared many cattle perished.

Ranchmen on the plains were compelled in numerous instances to mount horses and ride for their lives, such was the rapidity and fierceness with which the flames were swept over the country by the high winds. Unless the ranchers can find new ranches they will scarcely be able to tide their stock over the winter and the consequent loss will be enormous.

A Liberal Defeat.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—An election took place today in the Cirencester division of Gloucestershire to fill the vacancy in the house of commons caused by the death of Arthur B. Winterbotham, Liberal member for that division. It resulted in the election of Col. Chester Master, Unionist, who received 4,277 votes against 4,274 for his Liberal opponent, Harry Lawson. At the last general election the Liberal majority in the district was 153.

A Judge's Sanity.

OMAHA, Oct. 14.—Judge Scott has secured an order restraining the Bunt county insanity commission from inquiring into his mental condition. This is the result of the court troubles of Tuesday, when Scott jailed an attorney for refusing to argue a demurrer after the case had been continued by stipulations. Friends of the attorney assert Scott is insane.

Jealousy Caused a Murder.

POMEROY, O., Oct. 14.—Henry Jenkins and Wesley Lowery, two young men of Harrisonville, had a fight with pocket knives last night and Lowery was so badly injured that he died before morning. Jenkins received seven cuts but will recover. The trouble arose regarding a young lady.

May Have Foundered.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 14.—The steamship Bokhara, of the Peninsular and Oriental Navigation company, left Shanghei for Hong Kong on Oct. 8, but has not yet arrived at the latter port. As the usual time between the ports is but three days, it is feared that she has foundered. She carried many passengers and a heavy mail.

Was Temporarily Insane.

VICTORIA, B. C., Oct. 14.—The coroner's jury in the case of Dr. J. W. Cox, the expert accountant of New York, whose body was found near the George road, Wednesday, returned a verdict last night that Cox committed suicide while temporarily insane.

Another Record Broken.

DAYTON, Ohio, Oct. 14.—Kittie Bayard, in the free-for-all trot yesterday at Piqua, broke the world's record on a half-mile track. Time, 2:12¼.

Mrs. Harrison Weaker.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Mrs. Harrison's condition shows no decided change. She is weaker and sleeps a good deal of the time, both of which are bad symptoms.

A BOLD PENSION FRAUD.

One of the Worst Cases on Record Found in Maine.

DOVER, N. H., Oct. 14.—Samuel W. Green, of Wells, Me., slept last night in jail here charged with one of the worst cases of pension fraud ever perpetrated.

Samuel Green, of Wells, Me., enlisted in Company K, Fourteenth Maine regiment, Nov. 14, 1861, being 40 years of age, and was discharged March 27, 1862, at Augusta, by reason of the loss of three toes on each foot before he enlisted.

He never applied for a pension and was run over and killed by the cars at Damariscotta, Me., while intoxicated eight years ago. He had a son, Samuel W., who filed a claim for a pension July 24, 1890, at Saco, Me., under the name of Samuel Green, alleging that he enlisted Dec. 17, 1861, Company K, Fourteenth Maine regiment volunteers, and was discharged by taking cold at Augusta and that he had heart trouble and he had been disabled half the time since

The claim was granted, giving $12 a month from the date of application. The pension department found that there were some discrepancies between Green's statement and the record, and referred it to Charles Fairbanks, special pensioner examiner of New Hampshire, with the above result.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The Coney Island Athletic club has succeeded in signing Joe Goddard and Peter Maher for a fight to a finish with four-ounce gloves, Marquis of Queensberry rules, for a purse of $7,500, the fight to take place some time next month under the auspices of the club at the club house on Coney Island.

It was announced last night that Goddard's manager had accepted an offer from the Eldorado company to meet Maher on Thanksgiving day, but this was positively denied by Secretary Eckhardt of the Coney Island Athletic club.

FATAL COLLIERY EXPLOSION.

Five Men Killed by Falling Coal and Rock.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 14.—As a result of the explosion of gas in the Philadelphia & Reading company's Sterling run colliery at Shamokin, five men are known to have lost their lives while six others are so badly injured that their recovery is almost impossible.

The dead bodies were found this morning under a pile of debris. The unfortunates were caught under the heavy fall of coal and rock displaced by the collision. There were many narrow escapes of miners working in parts of the mine near where the explosion occurred, but all the men are now out.

Two of the men were Charles Henry and William Gillen, of Boston Springs, N. Y. The others are unknown. The engineers and firemen of both trains jumped from their cabs and escaped injury. Both locomotives were badly damaged and several cars were smashed into kindling wood.

TO MEET ON THE COAST

The Congregational Council Voted This Morning to Meet on the Pacific Coast Next Year.

Whether the Meeting Will be Held in San Francisco or Tacoma Will be Decided Later.

List of the Members Appointed on the Provisional Committee for the Next Three Years.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 14.—This morning when the Congregational council relieved the soberer parts of its work by allowing the advocates of the different cities who wanted the next meeting, a chance to speak in favor of their respective cities, wave after wave of laughter and applause rolled up from the auditorium at the humorous speeches made.

The matter came up on the report of the committee on place and time of next meeting, which was in favor of the next meeting being held on the Pacific coast, either at San Francisco or Tacoma. Dr. Brown, of San Francisco, said that the city of San Francisco had long waited for the holding of this or some other body of the church, and he hoped now that the council would decide on his city. They had done well to come to this Eastern city of Minneapolis, falsely called a Western city. It was 500 miles east of the center of the continent.

At last the council voted by a large majority to meet on the Pacific coast, at the point to be decided upon by the provisional committee after further consideration.

The committee on nominations reported the following provisional committee for the next three years and the council endorsed the recommendation: H. S. B. Capen, G. H. Wells, H. A. Hazen, Arthur Little, W. H. Moore, S. B. Forbes, A. H. Quint, A. J. Merrill, H. A. Hill, J. M. Sturtevant, M. W. Montgomery.

The European Crops.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—Figures obtained from official reports made to government in every wheat producing country in Europe show that, excepting for British and Italian, the crop averages nearly 15 per cent better than last year, says the World's London correspondent.

UNITED STATES COURT.

Attorney Jenswold's Client Married Again and There Were no Damages.

In the United States court this morning, A. E. McManus and H. B. Didell were admitted to practice. Judge Nelson made a new rule of practice for future terms in this district. All cases will be set for trial on the opening day of the term and they will be taken up in the order of their filing. This will do away with any lost time in future, although the attorneys do not like the arrangement. Attorney Jenswold, in the case of Liza Johnson, who wanted $5000 from the Northern Pacific company for killing her husband, reported that his client had gone away without his consent and married again, hence he did not think she was damaged very much and he asked that the action be dismissed which was done. The case of the Duluth Transfer Railway company vs. W. P. Martin et al., was remanded to the state courts. A motion for a new trial in Malcomb Campbell vs. Gustave Herman et al., was taken under advisement.

For want of further business the court then adjourned until 10 o'clock tomorrow when the case of Carl J. Danielson vs. the Northwestern Fuel company will come up. Danielson claims he was injured $20,000 worth by reason of a defective trestle on the defendant's coal docks.

Trades and Labor Assembly.

The regular meeting of the Trades and Labor assembly was held last evening and the retail clerks were heard. A committee was appointed to see the parties who are not observing the early closing movement. A committee was also appointed to visit Dr. Salter and learn why a contract on the Bethel building was let to a firm not in sympathy with organized labor.

Will Endorse Moer.

The Democratic judicial convention meets tomorrow afternoon at the city hall. There is considerable talk concerning the candidacy of Judge Spencer, whom some people are urging, but leading Democrats say that S. H. Moer will be endorsed. The candidacy of Judge Spencer, it is believed, is being forwarded by the Minnesota Iron company, which is not entirely satisfied with Mr. Moer's nomination.

Kimberly Takes It.

The Ohio mine lease has been transferred by Messrs. Weimer and Sheridan to P. L. Kimberly & Co., the Sharon, Pa., syndicate, the consideration being $105,000. As the advance royalty paid by Weimer & Sheridan was $15,000 they make a cool $90,000. The Ohio lease, too, was one of the best for the company which has been made on the range.

He Denies It.

D. T. Calhoun requested a Herald reporter today to deny the interview credited to him in this morning's News Tribune. He says that he made no such statement and can prove it by witnesses if necessary.

THE SCHOOL QUESTION

Rev. L. H. Morey, of Stillwater, Attacks the Roman Catholic Church on Its Attitude Toward the Schools.

He Declares that it is Seeking to Romanize the Public Schools and Secure Control of Them.

Rev. John Barbour is Unanimously Chosen Permanent Moderator of the Presbyterian Synod.

The annual meeting of the Presbyterian Synod of the state of Minnesota opened last evening at the First Presbyterian church in this city. The fore part of the evening was taken up with a regular church service, music by the regular choir, congregational singing of hymns, prayer and then a sermon. In the absence of the regular moderator Rev. Mr. Murphy was chosen temporary moderator. After the sermon the roll call was the first matter of business. Dr. Adams then moved that Rev. John Barbour be chosen permanent moderator. After seconds from several enthusiastic brethren, the doctor's motion prevailed, Rev. C. H. Johnson, of Willmar, was chosen clerk and after a partial report from the committee on arrangements as to the order of exercises for Friday, Saturday and Sunday, and a notice to all who had not up to that hour been assigned places of entertainment that they would be given attention at once, a motion to adjourn until 9 o'clock the next morning prevailed.

Because of a promise made to the absent moderator, Rev. L. H. Morey, of Stillwater, spoke upon the subject of "Rome and the Public School," for his text taking the fourth verse of the twelfth chapter of Daniel—"Knowledge shall be increased." He spoke as follows:

"The common school is a prized and cherished institution among us. By it knowledge is diffused and popularized. If there be any people or sect to which this is inimical, so much the worse; but the fact remains the same. No apology should be needed in Minnesota for a subject of this kind before an ecclesiastical body. The separation of church and state does not mean that a Presbyterian should be dumb when a political-religious organization is plotting to rob the public treasury. Home, church and heaven are words dear to all—which are you willing to blot out? There are many who ascribe the fear of Romanism to bigotry or childishness. Swords need only to be crossed once with the Roman hierarchy to disprove that belief. Italy, Germany and France are revolting and turning to light and liberty. Mexico was lately compelled to curtail the power of the Roman church and confiscate some of her possessions. The president and whole congress of Brazil were lately threatened with excommunication unless certain action was taken. Despite all this, Americans smile and fear no harm. The very freedom of this republic renders us especially susceptible. Our land has a special charm for the Pope.

"For years, Rome has forbidden under penalties, the attendance of her children in public schools and has reared by the side of each public school a parochial school. Then the next step has been to denounce our public schools as godless and heretical. Rome's first assault was against the use of the Bible in our schools. Our forefathers decided that the Bible was not a bad thing in the public school. The Catholics then alleged that the schools were too sectarian, and despite the belief of even agnostics that the Bible should have a place in our public schools as a text book of morals, the prevailing sentiment grew to be that no state school must use it. Complaints then poured in thicker and more arrogantly than before. The second cry was that our schools were godless. I make no charge of double facedness, but mention this to refresh your memories. No political party, however, could survive such inconsistency. It would be swept into a hopeless minority in less than three campaigns. Within twenty years, right here in Minnesota particularly, those who opposed the Bible and cried sectarianism, have demanded and in some cases have filled our schools with professed servants of the church, who at the same time wore the garb of a servant of the church."

The speaker then narrated the history of the trial in Stillwater of what is known as the Faribault system; spoke of the pope's tolerating edict as oil poured on the troubled waters but considered it a worthless subterfuge because of the mental reservations; the church of Rome has been noted for her mental reservations and because of this the Faribault plan is a whole tissue of falsehoods. If that is untrue, then why did not the edict include schools in several towns in New York, about twenty in Stearns county this state and others that might be named? In closing Mr. Morey said:

"It is the sole purpose of the Faribault plan to Romanize the public school, not to Americanize the parochial school. For see, a papal encyclical says: 'Public schools open to all children for the education of the young should be under the control of the Romish church and should not be subject to civil power, nor made to conform to opinions of the age.' Last January our genial Northwestern prelate was summoned to Rome to give personal account of his Faribault plan. After a while the papal 'tolerrri potest' was wired back. Now does any one imagine that after the papal announcement that 'public schools should not be subject to the civil power nor made to conform to opinions of the age,' Archbishop Ireland could have secured the papal 'tolerari potest' if there had been the remotest thought in the pope's mind that the plan was an honest effort to Americanize the medieval school?' No; the very mission of Archbishop Ireland to Rome was to convince his holiness that the Faribault plan was no such thing as the bishop's critics had represented, but was an honest effort on his part to take advantage of the magnanimity of the American people to Romanize the public school. It the distinguished prelate had had the faintest thought of secularizing the parish school and it could have been proved against him in the Roman court he would have been far more likely to have come home stripped of his bishopric than he was to come with his Latin 'tolerari potest.'

"Strike down Rome's hush power and the Faribault plan would be instantly rejected in any community in the country where Catholics are not actually in the majority. This hush power of Rome is simply appalling, and the most appalling feature of it is that the very people who are the most humiliated and galled by it are afraid to hint above a whisper the existence of the potent night-mare that rests upon them.

"You are all aware that the scheme has failed in Stillwater. When the deep under-current of opposition finally broke forth its power was irresistible, and many of our best Catholic citizens themselves frankly admitted that the scheme involved an unjust discrimination in favor of the Catholic church. And yet—almost incredible to believe—when the board called for teachers' applications, behold, five sisters of charity came also. I think it was that sign of boldness, not to say effrontery, that roused our board of education to reject them, and to go a step further and adopt a resolution against the leasing of any more church property for school purposes by the present board."

THE PINE LAND RING.

It is Claimed the Ring Wants Judge Searle in Congress.

St. Paul Globe: Searle is the congressional candidate of the great pine land ring. The interests of the pine land ring of this state demand a member of congress at Washington.

The members of this combine, after having gobbled up all the timber outside the reservations in Northern Minnesota, have now set their avaricious eyes on the splendid pine forests of the Red Lake add Indian reservations, the timber on which is now being estimated, but which, under the present law, will go only to the members of this great combine. The people will have no show whatever to get a stick or a foot of it.

Much of this timber lies in the Sixth congressional district, which the ring intends shall, after the 4th of next March, be represented in congress by Judge D. B. Searle.

From the day that Judge Searle announced his candidacy for congress until the present the people of the district have been puzzling their heads to find some reason for this move. His place on the district bench all knew was secure, owing to the make-up of the judicial district. Judge Baxter, a Democrat, being on the bench, made it easy for him to secure re-elections without opposition on the ground that the judiciary should be non-partisan. His position on the bench any sensible man would infinitely prefer to a seat in congress, and many of his friends told the judge this before and after his nomination. But these gentlemen were unable to move Judge Searle. Without giving any reason for his candidacy he told them that he wanted the nomination, and he obtained it.

The friends of Hon. H. C. Kendall, whom Judge Searle defeated for the nomination, claim that the honor cost the St. Cloud man no less than $30,000.

Large as this sum is, it is a mere bagatelle to the amount of money that is now being spent to secure the election. From all parts of the district come the report of lavish expenditures of money by the managers of the Searle campaign, and the politicians are wondering where it is all coming from. It is a well known fact that Judge Searle, while worth considerable money, can not afford to make such a campaign. But the appearance of Senator W. D. Washburn in Duluth and other points in the district with his carefully prepared interviews, booming Judge Searle, has shed a world of light on the situation, almost as much as is furnished by the warm support that is being given the judge by N. P. Clarke and H. C. Waite, of St. Cloud. All these men are interested in pine lands, and none of them has ever being accused of working and spending his money for his health.

WHAT CALHOUN THINKS.

Stearns County Democrats Are Loyal and Will Stand by Maj. Baldwin.

David T. Calhoun, who was chairman of the convention that nominated Maj. Baldwin, is in the city attending court. He says that Maj. Baldwin will get a large majority in Stearns county and will not run behind the party ticket. Stearns county Democrats, he says, whatever they may do in county politics are always loyal when it comes to the national, state and congressional tickets and roll up about the same majority no matter what influences are brought to bear. The Searle men are working tooth and nail and making a great fight, but said Mr. Calhoun with a smile, "Searle is hampering his committee badly by insisting on making speeches." This is a humorous allusion to the judge's lack of oratorical ability which, by the way, will be displayed at the Temple opera house tomorrow evening..

Want the Local Train.

The Jobbers union at its meeting yesterday afternoon considered the proposal of the Northern Pacific road to make the afternoon train out of this city a local train instead of connecting with the transcontinental train and decided that it would be advisable to have the change made. At present all parties from the Red River valley must wait over at Staples five or six hours before making connections for Duluth. The proposed change will remedy this but will make the same long wait necessary for parties going from Duluth westward on the transcontinental train.

WAS WILD WITH FEAR.

The Town of Coffeyville, Kas., was Afraid that the Dalton Gang Would Make a Raid.

A Report Current that They Wanted Revenge and Intended to Wipe Out the Place.

The Citizens Were Armed to the Teeth and Stood Guard, but no Attack was Made.

COFFEYVILLE, Kas., Oct. 14.—The town of Coffeyville is wild with excitement over a reported attempt to burn the town and kill the people out of revenge for the killing of the Dalton gang last week. The report started from the robbing of the Missouri Pacific train at Tyro, near Coffeyville, Wednesday night, The mayor of Coffeyville telegraphed the report to Parsons, and the superintendent of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas road at once fitted up a car with a posse and rifles and sent it to Coffeyville as a special.

When it arrived at the town last night the place was wild with fear and excitement. Doors and window were barricaded and everybody was armed to the teeth. All of the rifles in the town were in readiness and every man stood waiting for an attack. The car from the Missouri, Kansas & Texas at Parsons stood at the depot barricaded and armed. The mayor conferred with the railroad officials and wired to Parsons that the people here could care for themselves, as the number of the attacking party was greatly magnified and that a matter of a few hours would result in their capture.

Ben and William Dalton and many of their sympathizers have been loitering about Coffeyville for days. Tuesday Emmet Dalton's wounded body was removed to Independence. Ben and William and their mother accompanied him. Since then nothing has been heard from them here. A bonfire was started last night in the plaza of the town to furnish illumination.

The information of the approach of the Daltons was conveyed to the people of Coffeyville by the force under Detective Dodge, of the Wells-Fargo company, who is scouring the Indian territory for members of the gang. One of his men heard it and wired the mayor of Coffeyville, who asked for help from Parsons and got it. The plan was for George Dalton and forty whites and half-breeds, completely armed, to ride into Coffeyville at 9 o'clock last night and wipe out the place. No mercy was to be given, according to Dodge's information.

Upon the receipt of the notice of the impending raid, the people assembled at the public square and were told off in detachments. A portion of them were held in reserve at the jail to go to the aid of any point that might be attacked. Others dismounted, established a cordon around the village, guarding every approach to the town, making it a matter of practical impossibility for anyone to reach the city without being observed. In addition to these precautions a mounted patrol was sent out a distance of four miles into the country, where a most vigilant watch was kept up.

All the citizens were well armed with rifles and revolvers and plenty of ammunition. As in the case at all border towns, more especially those on the Indian territory line, the people possess an abundance of imported firearms and ammunition and an excellent idea of their use. The patrol consists of men who have been in more than one fight, who are cool, determined fellows, ready to face death if need be.

The country in this vicinity is open to a great extent, and the only hope of the gang would be to catch the guards unawares. This is made the more difficult, as the old campaigners who control their movements directed the guards, both mounted and on foot, to carefully avoid the roads, to keep in the back ground and thus head off any cross country flank movement. While the roads are seemingly unoccupied, it would be utterly impossible for any living thing to move in the direction of the town without a challenge, swiftly followed by a shot if not heeded. It is probable that the outlaws have got word of the reception awaiting them, and have postponed their raid.

DANIEL HAS DECLINED.

He Will Not Speak at the World's Fair Dedication.

SENATOR, Oct. 14.—Senator Daniel, of Virginia, who was asked to deliver the dedication oration, has declined the honor. After Mr. Breckinridge declined to take part in the ceremonies telegrams were sent to Senator Daniel asking him to come to the assistance of the exposition.

Commissioner J. W. St. Clair sent a personal telegram pleading with the Virginian to accept. President Palmer sent the official request and to that he last evening received a negative reply. Senator Daniel, after declining the proffered honor, added that he would reply more fully by mail.

Judge Massey, when seen last evening, said: "This leaves us minus an orator, but we will not mind that much. The program was too long and this cut will be welcome. I think no other gentleman will be asked to deliver the oration. Chauncey Depew will now be the principal speaker."

YOUTHFUL INCENDIARIES.

Two Little Boys Set Fires Causing Heavy Loss.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 14.—Martin Leahy, aged 10, and Thomas Ledwith, aged 9, were arrested last night for setting fire to Hascom's shipyard a few nights ago.

The police say that they can trace the big fire at the Holcomb carriage factory early in July to these little fellows and several other boys whose names are withheld for a purpose.

The loss at the Holcomb fire was over $50,000. The boys arrested have made a confession, but the boys will not talk as to its nature.

ELECTRIC CAR WRECKED.

Peculiar Accident on the Street Railway in Boston.

BOSTON, Oct. 14.—About 7 o'clock yesterday a crowded electric car, while going down a steep grade on Broadway, South Boston, became unmanageable owing to the slippery rails, and when between H. and I. streets the forward truck left the track.

This broke the swivel bar, which went up through the car and through the roof, injuring quite a number of passengers. None of them were sufficiently injured to necessitate their removal to the hospital.

Among the wounded were: Lizzie Bradley, 35, left shoulder and right hip hurt; Mrs. Mary Barry, 70, cut on right side of face, also right hand hurt; M. T. Sadler, 35, scalp wounds; M. J. Plunket, cut over the eye. Half a dozen others received bruises more or less severe. The car was considerably damaged.

ROW OVER AN EDITOR.

A Case That May Cause International Trouble.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 14.—What may develop into an international row began here yesterday. Detective Murphy, of Pittsburg, and Constable Gallagher, of Wilkesbarre, seized P. V. Ravannick, editor of a Hungarian paper, forcibly rushed him from his office, and are now on the way to Wilkesbarre, Pa., to put him in jail.

He was charged with criminal libel by Rev. Father Kossaloko, a Slav priest. In the crowd that gathered was the Austro-Hungarian consul, Max Schamberg, who recognized in the prisoner a subject of the government he represents. He objected to the kidnapping and demanded Ravannick's release. He offered to go the prisoner's bail in the sum of $50,000, but the officers only laughed at him as the train pulled out.

Schamberg will petition the authorities at Washington for the prisoners release and the prosecution of the officers.

MADE A POLITICAL POLL.

A Missouri Man's Charges Against the Census Bureau.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 14.—Charges have been made by Isaac Isaacs, of Kansas City, ex-secretary of the Missouri State League of Republican clubs, to the effect that the census of 1890 was made the occasion of making a political poll of the state in the interest of Maj. Warner, present candidate for governor on the Republican ticket.

Isaacs charges that the secretary of the interior and Chief Census Enumerator Brock were cognizant of the deal, and that he has documentary evidence to support his statement in the shape of poll books returned by the census enumerators and letters from Washington informing county committeemen what had been done and directing them what action to take.

DIPHTHERIA IN OHIO.

Fears That There May be a General Epidemic.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 14.—Secretary Probst, of the late board of health, returned yesterday from New California, Union county, where he went to investigate an epidemic of diphtheria. He greatly fears a general epidemic of the disease.

People in the vicinity of New California are panic stricken, but firm steps are being taken to stamp out the plague. Plain City, four miles away, has guards on the road and permits no one from New California to enter the village. There are mounted officers to quarantine a house if the diphtheria appears in it.

A CLEVER DETECTIVE.

Three Members of a Virginia Gang Are Now in Jail.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—A special to the World from Covington, Va., says: Keadle and the two Birchfields, members of the Hatfield-McCoy gang who, on Oct. 4, ambushed and killed a farmer named Meadows and one of his sons, near the West Virginia line, have been arrested and are now in jail here. Through the strategy of a detective, named Wm. Napier, alias "Kentucky Bill," they were captured without bloodshed.

A MACKAY DIVORCED.

Judge Andrews Parts a Fashionable New York Couple.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Oct. 14.—Judge Andrews has granted a divorce to Mrs. Margaret Mackay, of New York, from Archibald Kennedy Kearney Mackay. The plaintiff is allowed $5300 alimoney. Her child is given to the custody of her husband's mother.

The decree is granted on the charge of cruelty. The testimony shows that Mrs. Mackay was struck repeatedly over the eyes and mouth and was knocked down by her fashionable husband.

The Victim Buried.

STILLWATER, Oct. 14.—George Peters, the murderer of V. C. Seward, was arraigned yesterday, but asked for a continuance so that he can consult an attorney. The funeral of Mr. Seward occurred yesterday afternoon, and a large number of friends from all parts of the state, notably newspaper men were in attendance.

Settled to the Bottom.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Oct. 14.—The steamer Onoko, bound down, last evening struck at the Red Stake above the canal. When she reached the canal piers she struck a shallow shoal, causing another leakage, and settled to the bottom. She will lighter about 200 tons of wheat. She lies crosswise in the canal.

A Bad Fire.

QUIET IN ARGENTINE.

Senor Pena Has Taken the Oath of Office as President of the South American Republic.

The New Venezuelan Government is Anxious to Secure the Recognition of the United States.

It is Expected that Admiral Walker's Flagship Will Soon Sail, Peace Having Been Restored.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—The Herald correspondent at Buenos Ayres says that Senor Luis Saenz Pena took the oath of office as president of the republic yesterday. Everything was quiet in the city despite the fears of trouble. The cabinet as announced is as follows: War, Senor Victoria; foreign affairs, Senor Anchorena; justice, Senor Torres; finance, Senor Romero.

Gen. Roca will in all probability be sent to France as Argentine minister. Nicholas Calvo will go to the United States to confer with President Harrison in regard to the relations between the two countries. The deficiency in the Argentine revenue is $8,000,000 in paper and $127,000 in gold. A case of cholera has appeared at Boca. Buenos Ayres has concluded a three days' festival in honor of Christopher Columbus.

The Chilean journals say that President Montt's message sent through Minister Egan to the United States is an expression of good feeling towards Americans, but it is in no sense to be regarded as a personal compliment to Mr. Egan or the administration of President Harrison.

The leading papers in Santiago had a good deal to say about what they call the bluster of Argentine officials, and say that neither Chile nor any of the South American republics need enter into any fratricidal war.

News comes from Montevideo that a law has been passed providing for the coinage of $3,000,000 of silver. It is feared that this exceeds the needs of the country and may derange business affairs. There is little probability that the French loan will be perfected. Yellow fever has appeared at Santos, Brazil.

AFFAIRS IN VENEZUELA.

The New Government Has a Firm Hold on Power.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—A cable to the Herald from Caracas, Venezuela, says: "I have learned that Generals Crespo and Bustamento are very anxious to secure the recognition of the United States for the new government. They have already requested a private conference with Minister Scruggs and are anxiously awaiting a favorable answer from the Washington authorities.

"Crespo has asked Rojas Paul to return to Venzuela. Senor Michelena has declined the appointment as minister to Madrid. Either Saluzeso or Abreu will be appointed to the post. No selection has as yet been made for consul to New York under the new government.

"El Radical has been established in Caracas as a ministerial organ. The mails are declared inviolable. It is expected that Admiral Walker's flagship, the Chicago, will soon sail."

The Weather.

U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, DULUTH, MINN., Oct. 14.—Rain has at last come to this section after a dry period of thirty-one days, a longer time without rain than is shown by the previous records at this station; the longest period without rain in former years was in 1872 when there was no rainfall from Oct. 3 to 30.

The storm that has been in the southwest for the past two days has moved North and is central this morning over the Dakotas, with greatly diminished energy. Rain has fallen all along its path, the heaviest being over Dakota, with well scattered showers in all other parts of the Northwest.

The temperature remains about the same, but cooler may be expected to follow the storm.

The highest temperature here yesterday was 62°, the lowest last night 54°, the rainfall up to 7 o'clock this morning was .02 inch.

DULUTH, Oct. 14.—Showers followed by clearing tonight, fair tomorrow, slight change in temperature; northeast to southeast wind.

B. H. BRONSON,
Local Forecast Official.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—Forecast till 8 p. m. tomorrow: For Wisconsin: Local showers; southerly winds, becoming variable; cooler in northern and western portions. For Minnesota: Light showers, variable winds; clearing by Saturday morning.

Rev. L. H. Morey's Prejudice.

All fair-minded and unprejudiced people who listened to Rev. L. H. Morey's address to the Presbyterian synod last evening on the public school question must have been disappointed. Mr. Morey has allowed prejudice and intolerance to lead him to an extreme position on this subject. The religious animosities which were aroused in the fight at Stillwater in which he took a leading part, have created a prejudice that prompted him to make numerous statements last evening which will not be accepted by Presbyterians who are not worked up into a passion on this question and are not disposed to regard their Catholic fellow-citizens as disloyal to the republic and its institutions or plotting to overthrow them.

The Herald has never approved what is known as the Faribault plan. It has regarded it purely as an experiment, in which possibly might be found a solution of the school question as between Protestants and Catholics, and it has given Archbishop Ireland credit for an honest and sincere desire to find a satisfactory solution of this troublesome question. It cannot therefore subscribe to the opinions expressed by the Stillwater clergyman, who points the archbishop as a scheming, designing, Jesuitical prelate who is seeking to Romanize the public schools, and would have his hearers believe that when the archbishop praised the public school system in an address to the National Educational association at St. Paul a few years ago, he was playing a part and did not mean what he said.

It will take far more than the insinuations and denunciations of Rev. L. H. Morey to destroy the high esteem in which Archbishop Ireland is held by the people of all religious denominations in the Northwest. His whole life has been permeated by an intense Americanism that some of his critics have never exhibited, and all his actions have demonstrated his loyalty to the state and to the republic. He is a thorough believer in the education of the young, he has seen the growth of the public school system and admired it, and it was undoubtedly with a view of developing a plan whereby Catholic children now in parochial schools could obtain the benefits of the public school system that he instituted the Faribault plan as an experiment. That this was an attempt to Romanize the public school cannot be maintained for a moment, save by the creation of religious feeling and the employment of peculiarly ecclesiastical prejudice.

When Rev. Morey asserts that the press of America is controlled by "Rome's hush power" he offers an insult that could be expected only from one who entertains such unreasonable prejudice. If his views and feelings be interpreted aright he would drive the Catholic citizens of America into some corner and keep them there beneath the muzzles of Protestant Winchesters. He would not extend to them even that poor privilege of a Protestant "tolerari potest," but would force them to subscribe to his beliefs or suffer the consequences. This is the same spirit that animated the Calvinistic fathers who many years ago burned men and women at the stake because they refused to renounce the Roman faith. It is the spirit of mediævalism. It is un-American. It is un-Christian.

It is not the "hush power of Rome" nor the scheming of Catholic prelates that the republic has most to fear from at the present time. It is the manner in which the principles of our government are gradually, but surely being subverted by the very men who are loudest in denouncing the Roman prelates. It is a Protestant religio-political combination, at whose instance the constitution is being over-ridden, which aspires to exceed in this country even the power and supremacy which Rome has had in some of the European and South American countries. This religious hierarchy has already made subservient tools of the judicial, the legislative and executive branches of the government. It is seeking to establish a national religion and to compel all people within the borders of the republic to obey laws which, in direct violation of the federal constitution, are framed in the interest of that religion. It is time that the people became alive to the dangerous character of this religious conspiracy which strikes at the very foundations of our government.

The Saturday Herald.

Last week so thoroughly demonstrated the superiority of the Saturday edition of The Herald over the Sunday morning paper that it is hardly likely that the question will ever be raised again. The Herald's superiority was shown to be not in quantity alone but in that more important feature, quality. Tomorrow's edition will be conspicuous by the first-class quality of its special articles that will supplement all the latest news, both local and telegraphic.

There will be articles tomorrow that will interest the ladies from the pens of Fannie Edgar Thomas, Eliza Archard Conner and Mel R. Colquitt, while in Mate Leroy's contribution regarding fashions a lot of valuable information will be given about bonnets, wraps and gowns suitable to the season. Four handsome illustrations will accompany this article.

Bill Nye will tell in his humorous way of his unsuccessful attempt to get employment at light work. He also gives a letter from a correspondent who wants a wife and his experience with the matrimonial papers. In the theatrical columns, in addition to notes about coming attractions at the Duluth houses, there will be a gossipy, illustrated letter from Octavus Cohen, dealing with John Drew's appearance as a star in New York, the reopening of Daly's theater, with a new play, and Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's latest dramatic work, "Love's Young Dream."

Besides O. P. Caylor's always interesting baseball letter, which is particularly chatty this week, there will be a budget of general sporting news, accompanied by the usual chess and checker column, that will be a regular feature of the Saturday edition hereafter. Then there will be something about the latest books and magazines, a budget of society news and several special articles. All these articles, above enumerated, will receive their first publication, when they appear in The Herald tomorrow, being furnished by a literary syndicate to The Herald exclusively in this city.

The Superior Call is agitating the question of an ice palace and winter carnival. Somebody should send the fool killer across the bay at once. That is not the sort of advertising that would benefit Duluth and Superior, as St. Paul people will readily testify from their own experience.

Senator Daniel has declined to deliver the World's fair dedication oration at Chicago, and consequently the commissioners are minus an orator. Dr. Chauncey Depew, however, will be on hand and his oration ought to prove sufficient.

In another column will be found a list of the boundaries of the new election precincts in the city. Find out what precinct you live in and then register next Tuesday.

Mr. Arctander must have said something that hurts, judging from the way in which the News continues to advertise him by denunciation.

The communication from "One Interested" will appear in tomorrow's issue. It was received too late for publication today.

Register or you cannot vote on November 8. Previous registration does not count this year.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Little Tippett" Tonight.

Of "Little Tippett" which be will produce at the Temple this evening the Philadelphia Inquirer says of an appearance in that metropolis:

The play was a genuinely farcial comedy called "Little Tippett," which has kept all Paris laughing for the past two years, and which is intended as a companion piece for "Niobe." The latter is known as one of the greatest successes of this and last season, and the selection of "Little Tippettt" as a running mate—to us ea sporting phrase—showed rare judgment and decision.

Last evening's performance, after making allowance for a first night, was sufficient to convince even the most captious and fault finding critic that the new play would make as supreme a triumph as its predecessor. Apart from the value of the comedy the production was notable for the bringing together of a really excellent company of comedians, each of whom scored an individual hit. This was not only due to the intrinsic merit of the play but to the capabilities of the artists themselves. Each presented his or her role in that breezy and light fashion born of experience and confidence, and the result was an entertainment that was remarkable for depth, feeling and finish.

They Will do the Business.

The Duluth Decorating company is the title of a new wall paper and decorating firm who are to engage in business in the handsome new building, 17 Lake avenue north. Mr. Fred Engels, the well-known decorator, who is now in the East selecting a stock, will be manager of the concern, and that is a sufficient guarantee that the work done by them will be of first-class order. The intention is to carry a very fine stock of everything usually found in a first-class house decorating store, which will be sold at much lower prices than Duluthians have been asked to pay in the past. If you contemplate having any work done in the above lines it will be to your advantage to figure with this firm, who will be ready for business early next week.

HE DOES "STEEPLE WORK."

Chat with an Expert Climber About His Business.

Aleck Wiggins wears the belt as the champion climber of Chicago. A New York man too! He had been doing all sorts of high climbs in New York for years, and hearing that a man was needed to put up and paint the flagpoles on the World's fair buildings he went there at once. The managers were delighted to see him, as no one else had applied for the job. He has a monopoly indeed, but not what people generally would call a "soft snap," though he earns fifteen dollars a day. "There aren't many of us in the business now," he said sadly in a recent interview. "Old Jimmy Ferguson was killed not long ago. He slipped off the tower of the Albany penitentiary and was mashed on the ground. But Jim was too old for this business. I say that when a man gets to be fifty-six years old he wants to quit climbing steeples. Charley Shaw was another. He dropped too. He worked on the stack of Clark's thread mill at Newark, and the papers were full of it at the time."

ALECK WIGGINS.

Aleck went to sea at the age of thirteen, and soon became noted even among sailors as a climber. His first exploits on land were so well paid that he quit the sea and now for twelve years has been doing "steeple work," as it is called by the "profession." His achievement on the Manhattan Athletic clubhouse in New York was the wonder of the time. The flagpole is forty-five feet long, and it starts from the crown of a cupola forty feet high, so the top of the pole is just 300 feet above Madison avenue. He painted the pole entire in two hours and got twenty-five dollars for it. Speaking of his method, he says:

"I use what's called the boatswain's chair in going up. It's a board with a rope through it. The rope comes up and winds around the pole. Then I have a strap down under the chair for a foot rest. This strap goes around the pole, and I just push myself up and then fasten the rope that holds the boatswain's chair.

"Liberty pole in Philadelphia was a good job. That is 187 feet high and the pole is only four inches through at the top. I went up that, and Logan square was full of people expecting to see me slip off, but I fooled them. I finished that job in three days and got seventy-five dollars for it."

An Unbiased Criticism.

A Portuguese boy in a Malacca public school was told to write a composition telling all he knew about the English. This is what he wrote, the spelling being amended except in the one marvelous word "docut," which means dogcart:

English is very proud and very white. They are mostly governors, schoolmasters, policemen, magistrates, and a few are lawyers and doctors and banks and many other things. They never work. They wear hats and boots and ride in docuts. Some English goes to church, but only once. They are clever tennis and ball games and drinks much brand; and other things. Some are married. They eat a much quantity of many things. One of their great delights smoking cigars and shooting and raining coming home in it. English is clever at all things. My father says Portuguese is black and ugly and catch fish, but English is white and pretty and eats fish what is caught. Father is black and ugly, but making nets. English is very fierce. If anybody does something they swear dam. English women is few. They ride and play the music and sing and make faces. It is easy no work nor little houses. I don't know any more English. That is all I know.

The small community of Englishmen in Malacca looks upon the circulation of this composition as a very bad joke, but the residents elsewhere say that it is so true that if this Portuguese boy could only be taught spelling he would prove a second Rudyard Kipling.

THE SYNOD IN SESSION.

The Regular Business is Taken Up This Morning and the Standing Committees are Appointed.

A Protest Against Opening the World's Fair on Sunday Goes to a Committee—Other Matters of Interest.

Seventh Annual Meeting of the Women's Synodical Home Missionary Society Also Opened This Morning.

The first day of actual business for the Presbyterian synod opened at 9 o'clock this moring with a half hour devotional meeting led by Rev. D. E. Wells, of Minneapolis. The morning was dark and rainy but despite that, fully a hundred were present, which goes to prove the assertion that good Presbyterians are not afraid of cold water.

At 9:30 the newly elected moderator, Rev. John Barbour, claimed the floor and called those present to order for the regular business of the synod. The "stated clerk," Rev. Maurice Edwards, called the roll, adding the names of those present who did not respond to the roll call last evening. The docket was read and adopted as read save that on motion of Dr. Block the question of the division of the St. Paul presbytery was made a special order of business at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The chairman of the committee, Dr. Green, announced that the members of the committee would meet in the gallery at 1:30 p. m., after which numerous vacancies were filled.

The standing committees were announced as follows:

Bills and overtures—Rev. W. M. Kinkaid, N. H. Bell, S. A. Jamieson; elders G. D. Dayton and Thos. Cochrane, Jr.

Judicial business—Rev's. L. H. Mitchell, T. M. Findlay; elders, C. T. Thompson, A. R. Moore.

Minutes of general assembly—Rev's. F. C. Bailey, G. C. Pollock; elders, J. W. Wheeler, H. A. Brewster.

Narrative—C. Y. Reynolds, O. H. Elmer; elders, John McCullough.

Correspondence—D. E. Wells, S. R. Ferguson; elder, B. F. Jenness.

Finance—Elder J. N. Treadwell, O. S. Clark, J. H. McCullom.

Presbyterian Records—Duluth, J. C. Robinson and Elder B. C. Baldwin; Mankato, D. S. McCaslin and Elder A. Sharp; St. Paul, S. W. LaGrange and Elder J. W. Smith; Red River, J. A. Paige and Elder A. J. Wright; Winona, H. C. Cheadle and Elder W. T. Donaldson.

Rev. John Pringle of the synod of Manitoba; Dr. Van der Lippe of Dubuque, Ia. and Rev. J. H. Myers were admitted as corresponding members. An overture protesting against opening the World's fair on Sunday was referred to the committee on Sabbath observance.

An hour was given to free conversation on the condition of religion by various pastors at large from the different Presbyteries. Some told earnest, interesting stories of their work in pioneer settlements, communities dead as to religious interest or special features in their work in churches more favoraby situated.

Dr. Adams, in behalf of the trustees of Albert Lea college, presented the report for that institution. The past year has seen some anxieties and discouragements. The attendance was slightly in advance of the year previous, but was disappointing. The teaching force has been reduced, and the whole work contracted by lack of funds. In proportion to the available finances, Albert Lea college is a good school and is doing a good work, but unless some definite and certain steps are taken to insure funds for the future, the school must be closed. That matter depends on the synod and, as the report said, mere resolutions will not suffice. The last item of business before noon was the report of the synodical missionary.

This evening there will be a popular meeting in the interests of foreign missions. Ruling Elder G. D. Dayton will preside, there will be reports from the Women's Synodical society and an address by Rev. W. A. Waddell, of Brazil. Something very entertaining and instructive is expected from that address.

ANOTHER ANNUAL MEETING.

Women's Synodical Home Missionary Society Also in Session.

The seventh annual meeting of the Women's Synodical Home Missionary society of Minnesota was opened in the church parlors at 9 o'clock. The devotional hour was led by Mrs. L. H. Mitchell. After that Mrs. A. W. Ringland read a most appropiate address of welcome, reviewing the formation and history of the society, skillfully showing the large field in Minnesota in which to labor and the great importance of work being done and finally with words most kind, welcoming all the delegates. A response written by Mrs. L. J. Taylor was read, in which the members of the society were encouraged and exhorted to the good work.

Next came the reading of the minutes and then the Presbyterial reports. The report from the Red River Presbytery was read by Mrs. Brush, the Mankato report by Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Carver reported for the Duluth Presbytery, Mrs. Mitchell reported for that of Winona and the report for the St. Paul district was read by Mrs. J. C. Hall. Mrs. J. C. Hall also rendered the Synodical report. Mrs. D. R. Noyes rendered the treasurer's report.

Lunch was served in the parlors by the ladies and from 1:30 to 2:15 o'clock the synod en masse visited the new High school in response to an invitation accepted at the morning session.

THREW ON THE LIGHTS.

New Elevator Electric Lighting Plant Started Up Last Night.

The independent electric light plant which has been put in to light the elevators was started up last evening for the first time. An 800 light Thomson-Houston incandescent alternating dynamo is used and is driven by a 100 horse power compound Westinghouse engine. The plant is located in the elevator pump house and everything works in a fine manner. It was just ten minutes before 6 o'clock when the lights were flashed on and some of the elevator employes were greatly startled and thought that a fire had broken out. With the lights turned on the elevator is lighter than in daylight. Elevators D, E and H, the primary houses, are all running now.

HAVE CLOSED A LEASE.

Pennsylvania & Ohio Coal Company Has Leased the Williams, Daugherty & Upham Dock.

Will Operate Independent of Any Combine and Has Its Own Boats and Coal Fields.

The Establishment of Coke Ovens a Part of the Plan—Dock to be Enlarged Soon.

Williams, Daugherty & Upham late yesterday afternoon closed a deal which has been pending for over a year for the lease of their dock at Oneota. The lessee is the Pennsylvania & Ohio Coal company recently organized. This is the corporate name under which will be operated the coal business of the Columbus, Shawnee & Hocking railroad and the Sandusky & Columbian Shortline. The latter line has just been built into Sandusky and is building coal docks there. It owns its own coal fields, mines its own coal and will handle everything itself up to the time it goes to the retailers. A line of boats will be built to run between Sandusky and Duluth and the entire business will be operated independent of any other coal company or combine.

The lease just closed is for a long term of years and means more to Duluth than the location of two or three flouring mills. Under the terms of the contract Williams, Daugherty & Upham are to complete the dock ready for use and will commence work next Monday. The superstructure is to be done in time so that the coal company may put in its machinery before the opening of navigation and the contract obliges the company to put $30,000 worth of machinery on the dock. More than this, Williams, Daugherty & Upham are to double the capacity of the dock in the next two years.

Not only does the Pennsylvania & Ohio Coal company intend to operate a coal dock here, but its plans contemplate the building of coke ovens within a year or two. Altogether the operation of the business will necessitate the employment of fully 200 men.

In connection with the consummation of the deal Senator Daugherty says: "The people of Duluth have no idea of what a big thing for Duluth the Duluth Transfer railway is. If it had not been for it we could never have closed this deal. The company acted most reasonably and I must say that it is deserving of most anything the people of Duluth can give it."

No sooner did the Superiorites learn that this deal was on the tapis than they were over here in force and made large offers to the officers of the company to induce them to make a deal over there.

TO SUCCEED GILMORE

The Probability is that His Former Lieutenant Will Now Lead the Famous Musical Organization.

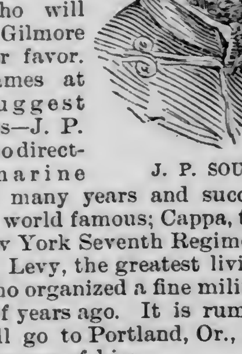
Sergeant Freudenvoll is Quite a Young Man and Has Always Been in Gilmore's Employ.

Speculation Rife as to the Musical Conductor Who Will Succeed Gilmore in Popular Favor.

It is likely that the organization for so many years headed by the late Patrick Sarsfield Gilmore will be directed, as long as it remains in existence, by Sergeant C. N. Freudenvoll, who has been for many years the famous leader's lieutenant and substitute. Sergeant Freudenvoll received most of his musical experience from Gilmore, and naturally his methods greatly resemble those of his preceptor. Mr. Freudenvoll was born in Boston, Nov. 1, 1855, so that he is quite a young man to have charge of such an important musical organization. His first reputation was made as a clarionet player in the orchestras of New York theaters. He there attracted the attention of Mr. Gilmore, who engaged him. Since then he has never been in the employ of any one else.

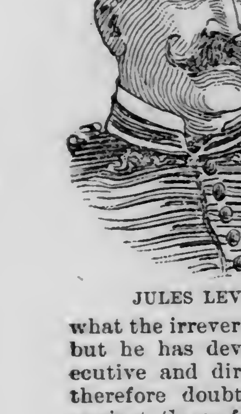
C. N. FREUDENVOLL.

While Gilmore's band may remain intact and continue to be known by the magic of the name which made it famous, it will not be the same organization to the general public, now that the great director has passed away. Speculation is therefore rife as to the musical conductor who will succeed Gilmore in popular favor. Three names at once suggest themselves—J. P. Sousa, who directed the marine band for many years and succeeded in making it world famous; Cappa, the leader of the New York Seventh Regiment band, and Jules Levy, the greatest living cornet player, who organized a fine military band a couple of years ago. It is rumored that Cappa will go to Portland, Or., to locate, so that disposes of him.



J. P. SOUSA.

Sousa's new Chicago "Marine" band is an excellent musical organization, composed of carefully selected performers. The band has been making a tour of the principal American cities, and has never failed to give satisfaction. Levy's aggregation of players, while not comprising so many instruments as Sousa's, is not inferior in quality (numbers considered) to any band in the United States. The great cornet player is what the irreverent would term "cranky," but he has developed an unexpected executive and directorial ability. He will therefore doubtless make a strong bid against Sousa for the unique position so long held by the late lamented Gilmore.



JULES LEVY.

SPORTING NOTES.

In 1890 Monroe Salisbury brought out a green pacing mare, Cricket, and sent her into winter quarters the fastest in the world by virtue of her record of 2:10. Last year he did a like feat, only with a stallion —Direct, 2:06—and it begins to look as if he will complete the all around record by adding a gelding to the list, if Flying Jib keeps on a little longer.

There is a movement on foot to have the four greatest pacers in the world come together at Cumberland park, Nashville, during the fall meeting. A good sum will be put up for a race for Hal Pointer, 2:05; Flying Jib, 2:07; Mascot, 2:04, and Guy, 2:06¾. Guy recently defeated Flying Jib and Mascot.

Flying Jib paced a second quarter in Terre Haute in 30 seconds flat. This breaks the world's race record.

Jockey Tom Cannon, the famous English rider, seldom uses the whip, and never on a going horse. "Too much whipping," he says, "and too soon, will cause a horse to come back. The whip, when used, should be drawn quietly, and never before seven or eight strides from the wire. This gives the horse a sudden effort. If used too early in the race the horse goes off his stride."

Martha Wilkes recently lowered the world's trotting race record to 2:08¼ in Indianapolis.

Willie Windle has broken the world's bicycle records for three, four and five miles against time. The five miles were covered in 11m. 41s., the best previous record—12m. 2-5s.—having been made by Zimmerman Sept. 8.

Schaefer and Vignaux have two matches on, which are to be played at Paris in November. One is to be at balk line billiards and the other at caroms, and each will be for $1,000 a side.

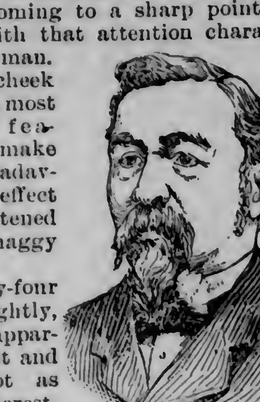
George F. Slosson is suffering from his old enemy—insomnia and stomach trouble.

A rare visitor to English shores is interesting Sheffield naturalists—a dusky petrel, believed to be the only live specimen in England. The bird was found flying about inside a fish truck, which arrived at Sheffield from the north, and it is supposed that it was attracted by the smell of fish—its usual food—and was shut in accidentally. Though the stormy petrel is common enough in north Britain, the dusky petrel is scarcely ever seen so far away from its usual habitat—the west coast of Africa and the Mediterranean. Every care is being used to preserve the bird alive.

THE SENECA GENERAL.

Interesting Notes of the Career of Grant's Indian Secretary.

General Ely S. Parker, the famous Indian who was General Grant's private secretary at Appomattox and elsewhere, is chief of the supply bureau of the New York city police department and as striking a figure as ever. He is a full blooded Indian, and may be considered in a sense the successor of the famous Red Jacket. He now wears side whiskers and a goatee, the latter coming to a sharp point and cared for with that attention characteristic of the man. His high cheek bones are his most prominent features. These make him almost cadaverous, their effect being heightened by big, shaggy eyebrows.



GENERAL E. S. PARKER.

His sixty-four years sit lightly, and he is apparently as erect and firm of foot as ever. An interesting point in his reminiscences is that his account of the famous interview at Appomattox differs materially from that of General Grant. The latter says that General Lee was startled at the appearance of the Indian, supposing at first that he was a mulatto; but General Parker adds that General Lee's face flushed with indignation, and that it seemed to him (Parker) that the negotiations were very likely to be broken off abruptly. General Lee evidently thought that a mulatto had been called on to do the writing as a gratuitous affront.

Of the 300,000 Indians in the United States about 6,000 are in New York state—viz., Seneca, 3,500; Onondaga, 400; Tuscalora, 400; Mohawks, 75; Cayuga, 75; straggling Mohawks, 200, with others unaccounted for. There is much difference of opinion as to their progress and capacity. General Parker is a Seneca, and as at the beginning of the war it was thought well to recognize that race he was encouraged to apply for a commission. He asked to be appointed as an engineer, but was refused, and went home greatly disappointed. A few weeks later he was surprised to receive a commission as adjutant from Secretary Don Cameron. He immediately started for Washington and was assigned to General Grant's staff. General Parker and General Grant were very close friends all during the former's service as the general's private secretary. It was his duty to write all General Grant's dispatches to staff officers and to the government, and they became such warm friends that when General Grant became president he appointed General Parker commissioner of Indian affairs.

THE CONFEDERATE VETERANS.

Those Who Sleep in a Chicago Cemetery to Be Honored.

There is in Chicago an association that is not perhaps widely known to the people at large. It is founded on the events of the war of more than a quarter of a century ago, and its membership is made up of participants in that great conflict. There is good reason for the slight knowledge of this organization. While it numbers in Chicago nearly 7,500 members, 7,300 of these are sleeping their last sleep in Oakwoods cemetery, and the 200 survivors of the United Confederate Veterans have resolved, before they pass away, to erect a monument over the remains of their old comrades in arms.

AFTER APPOMATTOX.

This resolve, says the Chicago Herald, has passed the stage of resolve. The design for the monument has been accepted, the site selected, the money raised and the contract awarded. The monument will consist of a granite base sixteen feet square at the ground, gradually diminishing by a series of steps to a highly ornate square pedestal eleven feet high, above which rises a shaft surmounted by a decorative cap supporting an 8-foot bronze figure of a Confederate soldier. This figure represents an infantryman at Appomattox. He stands bareheaded and disarmed, his empty canteen and haversack on his right hip, his arms folded and his right hand grasping his broad brimmed hat.

The whole monument will be forty-six feet high. On the four sides of the pedestal there will be inserted bronze panels representing, respectively, "The Seal of the Confederacy," "The Call to Arms," "The Lost Cause," "The Eternal Sleep." The four corners of the die are broken into groups of polished granite columns with flat Romanesque capitals. Just below the die, in raised letters of polished granite, is the inscription, "Confederate Dead."

The contract calls for the delivery of the completed monument ready for unvelling July 1, 1893, although the exact date for that ceremony has not yet been fixed. It will take place during the month of July, however, and will no doubt be the occasion of the assembling of many thousands of the "boys in gray."

Lafitte and His Men.

The freebooters commanded by the famous Lafitte, who terrorized the Gulf of Mexico for several years subsequent to 1806, called themselves subjects of the republic under the flag of which they sailed. They elected one freebooter "judge of the admiralty," another "administrator of the revenue," a third "secretary of the public treasury," a fourth "marine commandant" and so on. But Lafitte was king, and his word was law. The man who held the high sounding office of "judge of the admiralty" had occasion, years afterward, to make a statement about this colony. It was to the effect that "the sole view and object of the persons comprising the colony was to capture Spanish vessels and property, without any idea of aiding the revolution in Mexico or that of any other of the revolted Spanish colonies." The island went by the name of Snake island, because of the number of serpents.

Costs Money to Hunt.

About £4,500,000 are spent on hunting in Great Britain and Ireland independent of the expenses of carriage horses, covered hacks and traveling expenses. There are 330 packs of hounds, and about 100,000 horses are required to follow them.

HAD CRUMPLED HORNS

That was the Only Thing that Saved a Famous Man from Being Gored by a Cow.

England's Foremost Politician was Recently Downed by a Frisky Bovine that was Subsequently Shot.

A Few Stories About Other Cows that Have Figured Either as Benefactors or Destroyers.

From the time of Homer until the present day the cow has been celebrated for various deeds both good and bad. In the old Greek days bovine eyes were considered an attribute of divinity, and there is a rather unprintable story about Pasiphae and her progeny, the Minotaur.

TOM BAILEY. PAUL JONES.

In these later days every child is familiar with the story of the "cow with the crumpled horn," and the older children and grown people know how the cow figures in railroad history. Said the doubting capitalists to Inventor Stephenson, "But suppose a cow gets on the track in front of this engine you want to build, what will happen?"

"'Twull be mighty bad for the coo," he responded in his broad northland dialect.

It is, by the way, to a cow from the district which bred Stephenson that we owe the practical immunity from smallpox with which the present generation is blessed. The famous Dr. Jenner—he wasn't famous then—noticed that the milkmaids were contagion proof and inquired the cause. The result was a study of cowpox, a test of vaccination and a consequent triumph over one of the world's greatest pests.

Again, there is the famous Chicago cow that lived on the West Side, belonged to Mrs. O'Leary and objected to being milked after dark to the extent of kicking over a lamp. The great fire of Oct. 9-12, 1871, followed, and the cow and her owner are as secure of fame as the man who "fired the Ephesian dome."

The latest bovine to figure in permanent history possibly meant no harm, but has lost her life because she fooled with a prime minister. Near Hawarden, the residence of Mr. Gladstone, lives a farmer named Paul Jones. At a recent fair he purchased a cow, which proved to be a very wild animal. The beast escaped from its owner's land and made its way into the woods of Hawarden park. Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone went for a drive in the park, and in accordance with a not unusual practice Mr. Gladstone alighted from the carriage with the intention of walking back, Mrs. Gladstone driving home alone

The premier, who was unattendsd, then strolled along one of the carriage drives, and had not proceeded far when he came across the escaped cow, which was lying quite near the roadway. Mr. Gladstone stopped to look at the animal, which suddenly rose to its feet and furiously charged the prime minister. Mr. Gladstone, taken completely by surprise, was unable even to step aside, and he was knocked down and trampled upon. Fortunately, after standing over him for a few seconds, as though it would gore him, the beast trotted off, and Mr. Gladstone, retaining his presence of mind and seizing the first favorable opportunity, regained his feet and succeeded in getting behind an adjacent tree. In this position he would have been fairly safe in any event, but as it happened the animal made no further attack, and finally ran off at top speed.

Luckily for Mr. Gladstone the beast's horns were turned in such a way that goring was next to impossible, and the premier escaped uninjured. But naturally he was alarmed and shaken. He drove out later in the evening, however, apparently none the worse for his adventure, and during the day attended church. The cow was shot by Mr. Tom Bailey, of Hawarden. A report to the effect that the cow had also attacked another member of parliament turns out to be incorrect. The person attacked was a local resident.

It was obvious that the above mentioned cow was destined to become historic. Accordingly an enterprising artist of The Pall Mall Budget took an early train to Hawarden. "Alas!" he writes, "short as the interval had been, the cow had already been shot and pickled. Arriving in Hawarden at dusk I explored the one narrow street that winds through the charming old village in search of a tavern, finally pitching upon the Fox inn, as quaint and old fashioned a place, both inside and out, as any Yankee tourist could desire. Saturday isn't the right day to land in Hawarden, for the limited accommodations of the taverns are tried by numbers of visitors who run down from Chester and Liverpool to attend service at the church where Mr. Gladstone usually reads the lesson. Mr. Bailey, who shot the beast, was not aware at the time that it had attacked Mr. Gladstone—much to his subsequent sorrow—for not until it had been skinned and cut up and sent to Chester did he learn from the papers, with the rest of the village, what a treasure he had parted with."

He had been sent for to shoot the animal because it was reported by the gamekeeper in the park to be quite mad and unapproachable, having during the day knocked down and badly used up some one crossing the park, this being the individual who got into the newspaper accounts as an M. P.

It was nearly dark when the animal was discovered lying in a patch of tall ferns, with only the top of its head visible. A bullet high in the forehead stunned it, and then another behind the shoulder settled it. It was hauled away, and a butcher who had purchased it from the owner, Paul Jones, sent it up to Chester. As soon as Bailey discovered the inner facts concerning the cow he made for Chester post haste to secure the horns, which had been promised him. He was so lucky as to get the hide as well, and with his booty in a bag he dropped into a saloon.

There were a couple of cattle dealers in there at the time. When he told them what he had one of them asked what he would take for the hide. As he had only just given two guineas he said he would take a fiver. "Done," said the other party instantly, and he was minus the hoofs and hide, it dawning upon him at that instant what there might have been in the animal as a speculation. While they were talking another old party who had heard the conversation slipped out, and running to the butcher's shop near by bought the jawbone and lower teeth. This was followed by a general stampede, and in an incredibly short time every pound of meat and bone in that heifer had been bought and held for speculation. Mr. Thompson, a cattle dealer living at Denby, the purchaser of the hide, bought out the others, and is now the proud possessor of the hoofs, tail, skin and the calf which the heifer left to inherit her fame. He desired to have the animal stuffed to send to the World's fair along with her calf, but as no offer of filthy lucre will induce Mr. Bailey to part with the horns and the skin of the face it is probable that the calf will be obliged to go without his mamma's stuffed remains.

Says a visitor to the scene of the trouble: "Accompanied by Mr. Herbert Gladstone I crossed a bridge over the little stream which for centuries has turned the wheels of the historic old Glynne mill, and climbing the slope beyond came out upon an open hilltop covered with high and dense clumps of furze. The path here skirted the furze on one side and the hill inclined sharply on the other, the boughs of the great oak behind which Mr. Gladstone took shelter nearly touching the ground close by. There was a deep swath trampled in the furze where the beast had lain some four or five feet from the path.

"Mr. Gladstone explained that his father shook his stick at the animal after looking at her a moment, when she jumped to her feet with a snort and charged him before he could take a step toward escaping or defending himself. The ground just here was of soft, rich mold, and it is to this fact that the premier owes largely his escape from injury through the shock of his knockdown. All about were the deep hoof marks of the mad creature, and fragments of turf that it had dislodged lay upon the path.

"It seemed a veritable miracle, looking at the marks left of the scrimmage, that the affair had the ending it did. The tree was at least twenty feet down the slope from the path, and he could not have reached it if he had made for it the instant he saw the cow. The peculiar shape of her horns was the other means of saving him—they were short, bent very much forward and curving in."

Animals That Tipple.

The taste for alcohol is not confined to human beings. Animals with a little practice become topers. A scientific writer says that he has never seen a dog that could resist bread soaked in beer, and Richardson tells of a cat that was taught by some children to drink wine. "She would amuse a company by taking her share of old port, and becoming first excited and then very stupid, unsteady and sleepy." The poor beast became dropsical and died of liver disease, but then it had been drenched with drink far beyond the limits of moderation, and the usual results followed.

Richardson also tells of how he was driving near Canterbury, England, when the horse stopped short at a public house. "I asked the driver what that was for. 'The horse,' said he, 'always stops here for his beer. He wouldn't go by on no account. You couldn't whip him by, sir, till he has had his beer. His former master taught him to drink beer and invariably treated him to it, and here he'll stop till he gets it.' It was the fact. A large tankard of beer was brought out for that horse, and he disposed of the fluid with as much relish as his master, and then went his way."

Fight Between Wolf and Eagle.

"I once witnessed a battle between an eagle and a big gray timber wolf," said Lieutenant Charles E. Crittenden to a St. Louis reporter the other day. "The wolf had singled out a lamb for its midday meal, but just as he was preparing to gather it in an eagle swooped down upon it. Before the bird of freedom could rise into the air with its burden the wolf attacked it viciously. For about a minute the air was full of feathers and hair, and then the combatants separated and seized each other. The wolf came to the scratch, but I regret to say that the emblem of this great republic showed the white feather unmistakably. Instead of coming up with that never-say-die courage with which it is accredited, it spread its wings and flew screaming away. I do not believe that a bird that a thieving wolf can chase away from a square meal is a fit emblem for the greatest nation on earth. I would rather see a game rooster on our standard."

Kentucky's Big Man.

The largest man in Kentucky is said to be Ross Skaggs, of Lawrence county, who weighs 521 pounds and is six feet eight inches tall. His arms measure two feet in circumference and his thighs three feet. He is thirty-one years of age.

More Costly Than Ever.

Champagne will be dear this year. The vintage now beginning in the champagne districts promises a much smaller yield than usual, although the quality is excellent.

FORECAST FOR OCTOBER 14

Local forecast till 8 a. m. tomorrow. Showers followed by clearing tonight.

THE DULUTH ANNUAL.

Election of Officers and Directors For the Ensuing Year.

The annual meeting of the St. Paul & Duluth Railroad company was held yesterday in the general offices of the company at St. Paul. The meeting was called to order about 10 o'clock, and lasted until nearly 12. The following directors were elected for three years:

C. S. Day, New York; James Smith, Jr., St. Paul, and A. H. Stevens, New York. These gentlemen, with those following, constitute the board of directors: R. S. Hayes, New York; Thomas Denny, New York; E. W. Peet, St. Paul; A. B. Dodson, New York; W. C. Tuckerman, New York, and A. B. Plough, St. Paul.

No other business of importance was transacted. Immediately after the annual meeting had adjourned the directors met and elected the following officers: President, R. S. Hayes, New York; vice president, A. B. Plough, St. Paul; secretary and treasurer, G. G. Haven, New York; assistant secretary and local treasurer, W. H. Coleman, St. Paul.

No change was made in either officers or directors.

Gibson-Burbank Wedding.

Miss Frances C. Burbank, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Burbank, and Mr. Edmonds Gibson, of New York city, were married yesterday at high noon at the residence of the bride's parents, No. 109 West Fifth street. Dr. Salter performed the ceremony and only a few close friends were present. The bridal couple left on the afternoon train for New York. Mr. Gibson is chief illustrator for Life. Miss Burbank has lived here for years and has many friends in Duluth whose best wishes will follow her.

A Townsite Company.

The Northwest Improvement company held its annual election of officers at St. Paul, resulting as follows: Directors, F. C. Clarkson, Duluth; William H. Fisher, Mark D. Flower and R. C. Judson, St. Paul; C. F. Hubbard, Red Wing. Officers, R. C. Judson, president and general manager; F. C. Clarkson, vice president; C. F. Hubbard, secretary, and W. M. Fields, treasurer. Mr. Fields is of Cedar Falls, Ia. The company has been handling some of the valuable townsite property on the Duluth & Winnipeg railway.

She is Haggerty's Mother.

N. F. Hugo returned from his Western trip yesterday. While in Tacoma he looked up the relatives of John Haggerty, who was killed at West Duluth by Franck Houck, who were said to be living there. He found an aunt, Mrs. George Moses. Through her it was established beyond doubt that the Mrs. Haggerty in Kingston, Ont., is the mother of the murdered man. The first reports were therefore correct, although some doubts afterward arose.

SMOOTH AND SLIPPERY

Andrew O'Neal Represented Himself as Being with a Grand Forks House and Proceeded to do the Town.

Duluth Dry Goods Donated Twenty-Five Dollars to His Assets and the Ohio Coal Company Heard from Him.

Ordered Three Thousand Dollars Worth of Lumber from Duncan, Brewer & Co., Which They Did Not Ship.

It was a bright, cheery day, with just sufficient breeze to blow into the city of Duluth, a gentleman of pleasing address answering to the name of Andrew O'Neal, hailing originally from Partenham, Can., but for practical purposes in the present, representing himself as belonging to C. H. Woodbury & Co., Forest River, N. D. After satisfying the cravings of the inner man at a leading Duluth hotel, he sallied forth for prey and found it in the way of a prominent dry goods house, to whom he gave a flattering letter of introduction from a Grand Forks house, and on the strength of which, together with being a C. H. Woodbury & Co. man he soon placed $25 in his inside pocket.

Duncan & Brewer received a call and an order for $3000 worth of lumber was placed which, to their good fortune, was not shipped. The fickle goddess was less propitious towards the Ohio Coal company who sent as fast as steam could carry two cars of coal, which seemed to the Woodbury company a gift of double value, in the face of cold, hard winter approaching.

Before things grew unpleasant and board bills oppressive he had reached Buffalo, N. Y. From there on Oct. 10 a telegram was sent to the "Stone-Ordean company," Duluth, requesting that concern to honor a draft of $50 followed by another telegram from Rochester, N. Y., saying, "Not identified at Buffalo, wire me $50 here."

A consultation with the gentlemen of Duluth's detective force resulted after several telegrams in the information that the man whose scalp so many deluded people were anxious to possess, was within the reach of the law and the punishment he so richly deserves, when the county attorney refused to come forth with the requisite amount for transportation purposes, probably because he was afraid the board of county commissioners would not allow it.

This is unfortunate, as in a letter received the information is given of O'Neal that "he has been doing criminal acts all his life and no one ever gets hold of him." He will probably sever his connection with Woodbury & Co. while in the East, and it is quite among the possibilities that he will represent himself as an emissary of some of Duluth's establishments.

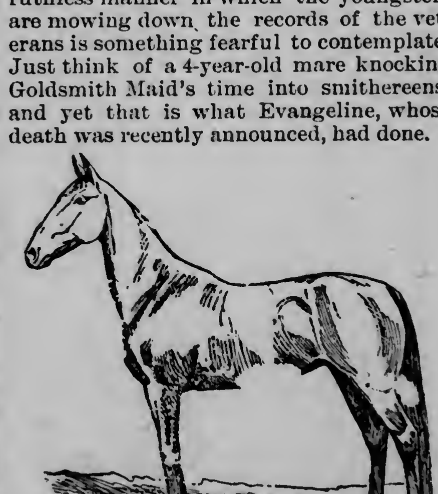
A Flier of the Turf.

The trotters of today seem to be no respecters of time honored records, and the ruthless manner in which the youngsters are mowing down the records of the veterans is something fearful to contemplate. Just think of a 4-year-old mare knocking Goldsmith Maid's time into smithereens, and yet that is what Evangeline, whose death was recently announced, had done.



EVANGELINE, 2:11¾.

Evangeline was a daughter of the great Director, 2:17. Her mother was Fanny H, by Red Wilkes, so she combined two great trotting strains. Evangeline gave evidence of her great speed at an early age. Her 3-year-old campaign closed with a record of 2:19, which she reduced in 1892 to 2:11¾. A great many persons believe that had Evangeline lived she would have succeeded Nancy Hanks (2:04) as queen of the turf.

A New York Mystery.

A young lady belonging to one of the first families of New York returned from a walk. Her mother, who is very strict with her, asked:

"Where have you been?"

"Alone?"

"Alone."

"Are you sure of it?"

"Of course I am. Why do you ask?"

WAS A LIVELY TILT.

The Congregational Council Had a Warm Discussion Over the Too Previous Publication of Reports.

Approval of the Home Missionary Society's Plan Not to Start Churches in Occupied Ground.

A Resolution of Sympathy With President Harrison and Wife Adopted by a Standing Vote.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 15.—The fourth day's session of the national council assembled this morning in excellent numbers. The finance committee reported through Galen C. Moses of Bath, Me., whose main points were these, indorsed by the committee: First, that the treasurer be authorized to abate the back dues of 1889 and previous; second, that the assessment of the next three years be the same as in the past, 1½ cents per capita per annum for the membership of the churches.

There was a lively tilt over the question of further publication of the reports of the society in advance of the meetings. The report of the committee on the American Home Missionery society was made through Rev. T. B. Makepeace of Massachusetts. He showed that there was a large increase of contributions over the past three years. The following was recommended to be adopted and was indorsed:

Resolved, That we recognize with hearty approval the faithfulness of the executive officers of the American Home Missionary society to the rule of the society not to plant a Congregational church or mission on ground which in the proper sense of the word is cared for by other evangelical denominations, and our confidence that in this matter the judgment of the superintendents will not be influenced by sectarian zeal.

The council paused in the midst of its deliberations to adopt by a standing vote a resolution of sympathy with President Harrison and wife.

OLD SETTLERS' EXCURSION.

Three Hundred, Including Ladies, Go Over the Missabe Road.

The old settlers' excursion to the new town of Grant and to the wonderful Mountain Iron mining properties left the Union depot at 8:15 o'clock this morning. The party are guests of the Merritts and they have with them a baggage car loaded with eatables. Carl Thiel, the old settler photographer, is along and will "shoot" the party at Mountain Iron mine. There are four big passenger coaches and they are thoroughly filled with about 300 well-known people, at least half of whom are ladies. Mayor d'Autremont and a lot of the city officers and their wives, the district court judges and their families, the Rays, the Marvins, the Spaldings, the Wieland, the Jeffersons, the Careys, the Poiriers, the Thompsons, and, in fact, pretty nearly all the real old settlers are in the party. They were joined at West Duluth by about forty of Superior's pioneers and they have been putting in a thoroughly lively day of it.

The program for the day includes a trip over all the main line and branches of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern, a thorough ramble over the big iron mines and the town of Grant, and views of the party will be taken en masse at different points of interest. They will see the big steam shovels at work on the different properties and some of the more venturesome of the ladies have announced their determination of going down the test pits in an ore bucket and it is safe to presume that several hundred pounds of ore specimens will be brought back this evening. The party expects to return about 8 o'clock.

MANAGER FISHER DENIES.

He Says There is no Trouble in the North Star Construction Company.

General Manager Fisher of the North Star construction company says that all of the published statements and allegations of trouble in the company at the recent election of officers are totally false and untrue. "All relations between stockholders," he declares, "are amicable and always have been. Mr. Foley was elected president because it was unanimously agreed to elect a Western man. Mr. Wright never threw a single share of stock on the market. What stock he sold was at private sale and he did not make a sale until he had notified all the large stockholders of the company. Some of Mr. Wright's partners are still stockholders in the company."

Railroad Rumbles.

Frank Dean has been appointed depot master in place of Wm. Bates who has gone elsewhere.

A. L. Tetu has been appointed fireman of the Union depot coach cleaning yards.

A. B. Plough escorted President Hayes and a large party of the directorate of the St. Paul & Duluth road to Duluth last night. They had a number of ladies with them and dined "en famille" at the Spalding in one of the private rooms.

THE WEEK IN SOCIETY

Nothing Notable Took Place in Social Circles This Week and Very Little in Prospect for Next.

A Number Duluth People Will Go to Chicago and a Few Will Attend the Dedicatory Ball.

There Were a Few Marriages and Some More to Take Place Next Week—Society Topics and Personals.

Society matters have rather succumbed to numerous church conventions, church fairs and other matters of that ilk during the week, and the social leaders who have not been employed in that manner have been busily engaged in the bustle of preparation for the dedicatory ceremonies of the World's Columbian exposition at Chicago, which takes place next week. Something like 300 prominent Duluthians will attend as spectators and about 100 as invited guests. The ball at the Auditorium promises to be the biggest attraction for the ladies and it is expected that about twenty Duluth ladies and their husbands will attend. It will be a very brilliant affair no doubt, but as for real pleasure it will be a dismal failure. All such affairs are. There will be an enormous crowd, all nice people to be sure, but comparatively all strangers, but it will be a decided novelty for some of the Duluth ladies. The diplomatic corps, the cabinet, army and navy officers, and the governors and staffs of all the states with their wives will be present and form a gathering which will be new to most American people.

Pro-Cathedral Fair.

A fair for the benefit of the Pro-Cathedral fund is to be given October 25, 26 and 27 and preparations are now being made. A gold watch is to be given to the most popular young lady and Miss Julia Donovan and Miss Kate Shannon will compete for it. A fancy chair will also be given to Miss Higgins or Miss Currier, whichever secures the most votes. The booths will be in charge of various ladies. The Japanese booth will be presided over by Misses Dunn and Matthews; the dolls booth by Mrs. Frank Burrows and Miss Huot; Rebecca's well by Miss Philomena Shannon; the postoffice by Miss May Murphy, with Frank Dacey and Eddie Murphy as carriers; fruit stand by Miss Owens; young ladies' fancy table by Miss Harney; married ladies fancy table, Mesdames Kenna, Dacey and Foley.

Social Mention.

The Ladies' Literary class met with Mrs. W. W. Billson Tuesday afternoon. Macaulay was discussed.

The French fair proved an attraction for a large number of ladies and gentlemen at the Howard block this week.

The wedding of Mr. L. Nesbitt, of New York, to Mrs. Minnie M. Leddell took place during the week and the happy couple have gone East.

The Young People's concert at the Pilgrim Congregational church parlors last evening was a very pleasant affair. The Arion quartet assisted materially.

The Cliff Dwellers election of officers Wednesday evening resulted in the retention of the old chiefs: President, W. A. Abbott; secretary, C. E. Starkey, and treasurer, E. F. Blowers.

Mr. A. G. Strong was married at Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 12, to Miss C. E. Bassett, of that city. The bridal party is touring for a few weeks in the East, after which they will be "at home" in Duluth.

The marriage of Miss Anna Grace Ready of this city and Edward Kennedy, of Minneapolis, will be celebrated Wednesday morning at the Pro-cathedral at 9 o'clock. Bishop McGolrick will perform the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Bailey's residence at 1617 East First street was the scene of a reception given by the Unitarian ladies to Rev. F. C. Southworth, the new pastor, Tuesday evening. Refreshments were served and the occasion was a very pleasant one.

The Saturday club had a musical meeting this afternoon, at which Mrs. J. F. Segog was leader. Donizetti, Gounod, Weber and opera singers, operas and opera writers were dissected. The second part of the program was devoted to miscellany.

Bassett and A. W. Hartman. THE NEED OF AN ARMORY.

An Earnest Plea For An Armory For Company A.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I observed in the columns of a contemporary the other day a communication regarding the old question of an armory for Company A, and am inclined with your permission to add a few words here. The neglect of the proper authorities in making no effort to provide a suitable hall or building after the overtures made them, amounts, to say the least of it, to consummate niggardliness, seeing that the place in dispute is highly advanced, flourishing Duluth, the Zenith City, which prides in liberal institutions of various kinds. The present apology is a dingy, unventilated, dusty, damp cellar where it is impossible to keep a gun from rusting, and the measurement of air in which would not sustain fifteen men in as many minutes in a healthful condition. If such treatment is to continue it would be much better to disband.

The winter is near at hand and although soldiers are understood to rough it, the most ignorant must know that a large enough roof at least is necessary to cover them for the purposes of meeting for business, social, manual and other exercises in inclement weather. As it is, there are few men in the ranks in propostion to the population. There is positively little or no attraction for an intelligent class of recruits to join the ranks. That the company exists now is due to the energy of the older members, who are thorough soldiers and the backbone of it. No doubt the busy city, which indulges in little or no recreation, partly accounts for the paucity of numbers, yet it cannot be disputed that the want of a comfortable military hall is the main reason of the unpopularity of the profession of arms in Duluth.

This is far from being the case in other cities. We find even in West Duluth two companies not long organized, but nevertheless due respect shown them by the erection of an armory. We are far behind them in point of numbers, though not in enthusiasm, and we have now seen so much procrastination that our enthusiasm is ready to burst out. The authorities of Duluth have looked upon the small band of patriotic militiamen depart for the scenes of riots, take their share in the hazardous work of restoring peace, come home again covered with the praises of sheriffs and citizens, yet refuse to outstretch an arm of gratitude or thankful recognition, and besides lend a dumb ear to the request for an armory. It is not my intention to moralize on the grave results possible by an outbreak at any time among the large gangs of men employed in the surrounding country. That such has occurred with alarming aspects here and elsewhere is now patent to all. History will surely repeat itself.

Duluth therefore, especially from her situation, cannot afford to be regardless of her armed citizen soldiers. She holds a position in relation to commerce and in juxtaposition to a foreign country, of strategical importance. The foresight of Duluthians in taking advantage of interests in various ways according to the city's progress is marked. In the matter of an armory, however, there is contined apathy—a chronic void. True a lot of comfortable dimensions was bought some time ago. The grass on said lot still grows green and that the memories of the authorities who be, may also be kept in this refreshed condition in the matter of an armory is the earnest desire of ONE INTERESTED.

BARRETT'S "GREAT" SPEECH.

The Wonderful Address He Made for Searle at St. Cloud.

There was a "great" Searle meeting in St. Cloud three nights ago. A torchlight procession was to escort the speakers, C. A. Towne, of Duluth, and Dr. Barrett, of Tower, to the hall, but the St. Cloud Times reports that there were only thirty-three men in line, which does not seem to show marked enthusiasm for Judge Searle in a city claiming 10,000 population. Mr. Towne is credited by the Times with making a very good speech, from a Republican standpoint, but the following report which it gives of Dr. Barrett's speech is not so flattering:

The second speaker was introduced as "Doctor Barrett, of Duluth." He had not been advertised and nothing more is known about him except that at the hotel he registered as "Fred Barrett, of Tower." Many in the audience evidently had a presentiment of evil and left the hall. Before he finished fully one-third of the crowd had left, and no wonder. He explained with much gusto: "I am a Republican. I am a Republican for the simplest reason in the world: that the Democratic party makes me tired." This profound declaration by the political economist from Tower tickled "Bill" in the front seat and the laugh went round. Then the "doctor" got mad and began to froth at the mouth, declaring that all the Democratic party was after was votes and cited as an illustration the action of the Democratic state central committee in placing four of the People's party presidential electors on its ticket. "It is a rotten old party, and puts me in mind of a mule—it has no beginning and no end. They went out of business when they fired on Fort Sumpter and they have never done anything since." This sally made the cold chills run down Frank Searle's back, and more people in the audience left. So he continued, defending the force bill, and saying that if Judge Searle was sent to congress he would support it. The Democratic state central committee had stolen four votes from Harrison, and "unless that damn blot is taken from the escutcheon of our state, I will never vote the Republican ticket again. It is Judge Searle's duty to do his share towards taking out that damn blot." His whole speech consisted of such assertions and to say that even the Republicans were disgusted is putting it mildly.

STORIES OF THE TOWN

The Life of the Railroad Claim Agent is Not a Happy One, as Experience Shows.

Awful Hardships of a Former Duluth Lady Whose Lover Was Killed by Shipwrecked People.

Amos Shephard's Recent Debut as a Big Medicine Man Among the Indians Near Rainy River.

What a peculiar position, with any common carrier corporation, is that of the unfortunate individual who has to hunt up "lost freight." The work sometimes comes under the supervision of the claim agent and then that individual has no peace until he gets the matter off his hands in some manner. People who lose freight are not always strict adherents of the truth when they place their values on their missing property and the general run of claimants will aver that their goods are "all brand new" or that they "were only just unpacked," or something of that sort. There was one case which happened at Marinette a little while after the rails reached there. A female keeper of a boarding house shipped up several carloads of furniture and household utensils from Milwaukee and a stove, which could not be squeezed into her cars, was shipped in a way car in company with some other freight. In course of time it was missing and the woman haunted the freight office looking for her lost stove. After a couple of weeks, earnest search on the part of the road's officials it was decided to send the claim agent up to interview the woman and settle with her.

He went to Marinette, saw the irate landlady who insisted her stove was a new Charter Oak stove which had cost her, with the usual stove furniture, $72 a few days before being shipped and that it had never been used. She also claimed damages for the detention of the stove for every day above three, at the rate of $2.50 a week, that she had been deprived of the useful article. The result of the claim agent's negotiations was that he settled with the woman for $50 in cash, free freight on all her goods (three car loads) and a new stove and stove furniture. This was all received and the woman signed a "quit claim" or satisfaction. About a week afterwards the missing stove was found down at Oconto in a presumably empty car! Well you ought to have seen that stove! It was in the same state in which it had been shipped, but it was one of those chestnutty affairs known years ago as the elevated oven stoves, and it had been used for at least three or four years. There were no breaks in it, but it was not worth to exceed $10, and the only stove furniture with it were several dripping pans and a dilapidated coffee pot. The stove was set up at Oconto and photographed and was afterwards given to some employe. The photographs found their way all over the United States and bore this inscription:

This is Not a CHARTER OAK STOVE
but it cost the
C. & N. W. R. R. Company
$313.00.

Poor "Vic" Seward is dead! Murdered by a discharged employe at Stillwater, and the Messenger, which he pulled out of poverty and seclusion, will pass into other hands. Seward was a strange fellow anyway and used to be full of whims. Had he been very rich he would have made a famous philanthropist, but in his earlier days, when the wolf snarled at all his doors, he used to divide what little he had with others who were less fortunate than he. He and W. F. Gorrie, now of this city, undertook to reform old "Doc" Howe, a drunken printer, who strolled into Stillwater a number of years ago. Seward fed the old chap, clothed him and Gorrie took him to church and got him a chance to sing in the choir, and after a week or so Seward gave him a little work posting some bills and distributing some hangers. "Doc" distributed the hangers first and he got one in nearly every saloon window in Stillwater and worked the bartenders in nearly every place for a drink. Mr. Seward had gone to St. Paul for the day and so "Doc" thought he would try a hand at posting up the bills without any directions from his employer. He started out with a pail of paste, a lot of three-sheet stands and a brush. The play which he was heralding was entitled "Over the Hills to the Poorhouse." The bill posting novice got a few extra drinks aboard and he tackled his first stand at the doorway of the old Staples Opera house. He tore up two or three efforts and finally succeeded in getting the stands all up so they read like this:

OVER THE
TO THE HILLS.

Somebody remonstrated with the old man but he kept right on until he got near the Messenger office when he met another crowd of objectors. Then the old man went to the office, unlocked the door, took all the type that was in sight, dumped it all into a barrel of paste and slid out of town and was never seen there again! Seward came home that night and when he saw the ruin and waste old Howe had wrought, he mentally resolved never to aid another tramp or bum printer.

Engineer Dan Campbell, of the court house, went out hunting with a friend the other day and they had bagged quite a few chickens, etc., and as they were nearing town on the way home they heard a noise in the bushes and pretty soon a large black object was seen coming their way. Dan didn't stop to investigate but dropped his gun and fled to the nearest tree, up which he "shinned" with surprising agility. His friend started to run also, but discovered that it was a big Newfoundland dog; so he thought he would have a little fun with Dan, and he made believe he was going to climb a tree, so he shouted out "get on the end of the limb, Dan; the bear can't get you there!" and Dan sought the end of the limb, and his friend cried "further, further!" and Dan edged out a foot or more and the limb broke with a sudden crack and Dan came to the ground with plunk like the recent drop in wheat. Just at that moment the dog came into full view. Dan picked up his gun while his friend roared. The journey home was made in silence, but Dan feels a little sore now and is supposed to be hatching out some deadly conspiracy to get even for his bear scare.

The experience of Capt. O'Brien and his sailor companion who were on the wrecked steamer C. W. Wetmore on the Pacific coast for ten days was rather tough, but they didn't go through a tenth part of the hardships that a Mrs. Saunders, a grandmother of Mr. W. A. Hicken of this city, did. It was nearly eighty years ago and she in company with several other ladies and a number of passengers were coming from Liverpool to Nova Scotia on a sailing vessel. There were between thirty and forty people in all and the ship was beaten away out of her course by a frightful storm, her masts broken and her sails blown away and to crown the misery of the voyage the ship waterlogged and became a helpless wreck upon the ocean. Days rolled into weeks, weeks fled by into months, provisions were all gone and fresh water was long since a thing of the past except such as could be caught in bits of canvas from occasional rain storms. Strong forms grew wan and thin and hollow faces watched eagerly and longingly for aid.

At last hunger was no longer bearable and the famine-stricken little crowd were compelled to resort to the dreadful expedient of casting lots to see who should die to furnish food for the others. The fatal lot fell upon a young man about 22 years old who was the early sweetheart of Mrs. Saunders, then a young girl of about 20 years. He was given a few hours to make ready for death, and then one of his companions plunged a knife into his throat and his blood was caught and drank by the famished wretches. His body was hung up and little by little it was devoured by those on board, until so little of it remained that it was only a question of a few days when another life would have to be sacrificed in like manner for the same object. But a sail hove in sight, but the party, then only numbering nine, were rescued, and some years afterward the young girl, the only female survivor of the number, married and became Mrs. Saunders. She was well known by several residents of Duluth and lived to be about 90 years old, and died ten years ago.

There is lots of fun at the court house now and Amos Shephard is the cause of it, although the story would not have leaked out had it not been for Judge C. E. Shannon, who recently visited the scene of Shephard's debut as a medicine man. Some weeks ago Amos and a few friends, while they were scouting for murderer Lewis, visited an Indian camp in the northern part of the state, near Rainy Lake. An Indian told them his squaw was "heap sick," and the party went to see the suffering woman. Her "complaint" was one not at all infrequent with married women, and Amos looked very solemn, shook his head, bummed and hawed and finally turned away. The Indian husband noticed the peculiar actions of the Shephard and as soon as one of the party told him that Shephard was a mighty medicine man among the whites a delegation of Indians was sent after Shephard and he was told he must treat the woman or take the consequences.

That settled it, and he then and there took charge of his first and only human patient. He felt the woman's pulse, shook his head and looked at her tongue, shook his head again and examined her eyes, and then taking a sheet from his note book he wrote a prescription which called for a very little whisky and lots of Wizard oil—the only two medicines which the party possessed. One of the party went after the "doctor's" pack and a spoon was found and Amos was about to administer a dose of Wizard oil, water and sugar, when the husband interposed. He was not satisfied with the extent of the examination and demanded that the medicine man should undress his squaw and examine her minutely from head to foot. Amos kicked and the Indian grew threatening, so finally he yielded and the graceful girl of the "Gitchee Gummi" following soon was revealed in a costume beside which Eve's first dress was full wardrobe. Amos rubbed the woman with Wizard oil but in the fright caused by his inexperience and the novelty of the situation, he unintentionally dropped some of the oil in her eye!

Wizard oil burns like the dickens even on the hardest part of a person's flesh, but in the eye the smart must be tenfold greater. With a yell like a whole tribe of angry Indians the woman bounded from the tent perfectly nude and ran screaming into another teepee near by, while Shephard and his friends went to their camp near by. They thought it was an excellent joke until a friendly Indian came and told them that the Indian husband was making up a party to kill them and would probably call that night. Amos did not stop very long after receiving the news, and with his party made all haste to reach a white settlement. Shephard is not going to send his patient any bill for services rendered, but is anxious to know the outcome of his treatment.

The Weather.

U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, DULUTH, MINN., Oct. 15.—All the stations in the north and northwest are missing this morning, and in consequence the forecasts are somewhat indefinite. Light rain has fallen over the Northwest and along the lakes, the heaviest was .06 inch at Marquette.

The temperature remains much the same in the region from which observations have been received, but the reports last night from the extreme Northwest showed rather cold weather in that section, as at Edmonton and Calgary, N. W. T., the thermometer did not get above freezing at any time during the previous twenty-four hours. The coldest places shown on the charts this morning are Helena, Mont., 32 and Huron, S. D., 36, the warmest is 66 at St. Louis.

The highest temperature here yesterday was 64, the lowest last night 50, the rainfall since the beginning amounted to .12 inch.

DULUTH, Oct. 15.—Slight change in temperature, if any cooler; northwesterly winds becoming variable.

B. H. BRONSON,
Local Forecast Official.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—Forecast till 8 p. m. tomorrow: For Wisconsin: Generally fair; westerly winds; cooler Sunday morning, followed by stationary temperature. For Minnesota: Incomplete telegraphic reports make forecast uncertain; reports received favor fair weather.

Protection to Home Industries.

The morning organ of Judge Searle winces considerably under the terrible lashing which the St. Paul Globe is administering to the Minneapolis wheat and pine land ring, whose willing tool is now a candidate for congress in this district. It whines that the campaign should be conducted solely on party lines, and that "measures, not men," should alone be considered. "It will not be to Maj. Baldwin's interest to have this manner of personal abuse continued," exclaims our morning contemporary. The guilty man, turning to his accuser, says: "Why do you accuse me? I have not accused you." It is not at all likely that Maj. Baldwin is consulted by the Globe, or the other papers in this district which are showing up so clearly Searle's connection with the Minneapolis pine land ring and the railroad interests he represents.

"Let us support Searle on the ground of 'protection to home industries.' Other issues have no part in this campaign," says the organ of the plutocrats. Judge Searle's idea of protection to home industries is protection to Minneapolis and St. Cloud industries. That is "home" to him. The Twin cities see the rival growing up at the head of the lakes, and they realize that it is only a question of time when she will assert her supremacy. Duluth grows in spite of Jim Hill and the roads he represents, not by reason of them.

Duluth never obtains legislation by the assistance of St. Paul and Minneapolis, but in spite of them. "Protection to home industries" in Duluth, means a vote for Baldwin. A vote for Searle means "protection" for Minneapolis and St. Paul. Searle and his speakers have passes over all the railroads in the district. Baldwin's request for transportation was refused. This shows which way the wind blows. The corporations are behind Searle and they expect to get "value received."

In a recent editorial we made a canvass of the district from the best data obtainable. Our conclusions were so favorable to Baldwin, and yet so fair, that they failed to arouse criticism. We proved conclusively that if Baldwin runs as well as Whiteman did two years ago, in the counties formerly in the Fifth district, his election is practically assured. In twenty counties Whiteman's majority over Comstock was 700. In the remaining four counties, now in the Sixth district, the Republican majority was about 550. Comstock carried this county by 1560. He is conceded to be much stronger here than Judge Searle. The same is true in other counties.

Let St. Louis county do her duty and "protect HER home industries," by giving Maj. Baldwin such a vote as will make his calling and election sure.

Duluth will be well represented on the stump throughout the Sixth district next week. There is no lack of speakers who are anxious to assist Maj. Baldwin in his campaign, which now appears to be certain of a successful conclusion. Among the Duluth people who will speak for Maj. Baldwin next week are Mayor d'Autremont, Alfred Jacques, J. H. Grahamer, H. F. Greene, George L. Spangler, T. E. Bowen and John Rustgaard. During the same week he will also be aided by Hon. Roger Q. Mills, Daniel W. Lawler, H. H. Hawkins and Cyrus Wellington.

When Dr. Fred Barrett spoke recently at St. Cloud he exclaimed: "The Democratic party is a rotten old party, and puts me in mind of a mule—it has no beginning and no end." To this the St. Cloud Times replies: "Probably all the Democratic mules in the county will now vote for Searle, probably not. If they do, they deserve to be 'kicked' by such mules as this Tower importation." Judge Searle should secure more judicious speakers if he hopes to get that "big Democratic vote" in Stearns county.

Judge Spencer.

In referring to the Democratic judicial convention a local article yesterday said it was believed that the Minnesota Iron company was urging Judge Spencer's candidacy. The Herald believes that this statement does Judge Spencer an injustice, as he is not the man to take a nomination for which he would be indebted to any corporation.

There is no abler jurist than Judge Spencer in Duluth, and his record upon the Dakota supreme bench was one which reflects credit upon his judicial ability. Should he at any time be elected to the bench of this district, the people would have an honest and upright judge, who would do equal and exact justice to all, and whose decisions would command respect.

Pool's Manual of American Street Railways, which has just been issued, show the great progress which this country has made in street railway transportation, Minnesota makes a good showing having 274,30 of street railway, of which Duluth has 29 miles of electric. The capital stock of the Minnesota companies is stated to be $20,640,000, of which the Twin City company, has $20,000,000 and the Duluth company, $300,000.

Returns from all parts of North Dakota are said to indicate that it will go Republican by from 4000 to 6000 majority. Leading Democrats are everything repudiating the fusion ticket. It will be similar in Minnesota. There will be no break in the solid Northwest this year.

James G. Blaine has spoken at last, and with no uncertain sound, as his recent letter warranted everyone in expecting. Mr. Blaine warmly endorses President Harrison's administration. His words will have great effect.

The commercial agencies make very favorable reports regarding the condition of business. Trade is larger than it was a year ago, while there is extraordinary activity in all lines of manufacturing.

Go to the Temple tonight and hear the next governor of Minnesota, Hon. Knute Nelson. He was always a staunch friend of Duluth, and he should get an enthusiastic welcome here.

Don't forget to register next Tuesday. Every man must register or he cannot vote.

DO NOT WANT IT EXCLUSIVE.

West Duluthians Want Their Armory to be a Public Hall.

The armory question is again being discussed by the militia and business men and the general opinion seems to be favorable to the village erecting a suitable place in which the local militia may have its quarters, but it is against the building of an armory, pure and simple. It is suggested that the village build in a convenient locality a building that may be used as a public hall and drill room and that it be so arranged that a public library and reading room may be put in at any time. As it is at present there is no suitable place for public meetings and the need of such a place is felt every week. Such a building, as is suggested above, will be a help to the village, and the time is short now until suitable quarters for a public library will be a necessity and the village can certainly build cheaper now than later.

Town of Biwabik.

Of the number of new towns started in Mesaba range, Biwabik is taking a very prominent place, and for rapid and solid growth and future prospects it is exceeded by none. The first building was started in August and now there are up and under contract to start at once forty-one buildings which embrace residences, dry goods, drug and hardware stores, bank and hotel.

Thomas J. Jones, superintendent of the Biwabik mine, is building a very neat cottage. Capt. Sakreson, of the same mine has put up a two story twelve room house. Nick Bergovitz has built a two story house on the lot presented to his daughter Anna Biwabik, the first white child born in that locality. The Iron Range railroad is expected to reach the town the coming week and the Missabe & Northern very soon after, when the building boom will be much accelerated. A village incorporation is under way and will start off with a population of between 300 and 400. Some good money has been made on advance of lots and the field for investment seems good. D. W. Scott, office, First National Bank building, Duluth, has charge of it.

Mrs. F. C. Cone, at Paris left this letter: "My husband—Forgive me if I cause you trouble, but I suffer so. You do not know what these long, wakeful, wretched nights are to me, and I am so tired, darling—the pain will never be better. It is not easy to take my own life, but I have been sick so long. Goodbye, my husband, I love you—your wife." This is but one of thousands that give up, instead of using Dr. Miles' restorative Nervine, and being speedily cured of their wretchedness. LONG CONTEST ENDED

St. Paul and Minneapolis Presbyteries Divided After Much Discussion and Parliamentary Battling.

The Debate Was Spirited and the Vote on Division Was 58 to 34—Other Changes in Presbyteries.

Women's Home Missionary Synodical Society Resolves Against Opening the World's Fair on Sunday.

Subsequent to a very pleasant hour spent in viewing the beauties and conveniences of Duluth's matchless high school building, immediately after lunch yesterday, the members of the Presbyterian synod again turned their attention to the order of the day. Rev. Dr. Abbott of Albert Lea started the procession by reading a report of things done and undone in the educational fields last year by the Presbyterian schools and churches in Minnesota.

Dr. Vander Lippe of the German Theological school at Dubuque, Ia., was given a special opportunity of fifteen minutes to state the claims of his institution. The general assembly voted that $50,000 be raised for the Dubuque seminary and the doctor eloquently and ably presented reasons why the synod and churches of Minnesota should lend a hand in raising that amount. He said that the Germans are a religious people, many of good old Calvinistic tendencies and that so strong are their social characteristics that they are most effectively reached through the mother tongue. Hearty applause met the statement that "When a German is Presbyterianized, he is Americanized, which is the best, cheapest and shortest way."

The adjustment of boundaries of the presbyteries in general and the question of the division of the St. Paul presbytery in particular had been made a special order of business for 3 o'clock p. m. After some delay the committee made a report, somewhat altering one or two presbyteries and recommending the division of the St. Paul presbytery. A minority report objecting to adding Goodhue and Rice counties to the Winona presbytery at the expense of the St. Paul presbytery and the division of the St. Paul presbytery was presented.

Then commenced the tug of war. The parliamentary moves were made thick and fast. One brother thought his way was better than one just proposed, or that he could carry his point at the expense of the other. Tangles were imminent at every turn, and Dr. Ringland, who had been invited to the chair by the regular moderator, Rev. Mr. Barbour, had to watch how he put down his feet. Finally it was decided to adopt those parts of the majority report upon which there was practically no differences.

The Red River Presbytery was given thirteen counties—those of Wadena, Beltrami, Becker, Kittson, Marshall, Polk, Norman, Clay, Wilkin, Otter Tail, Grant, Douglas and Hubbard.

Duluth Presbytery came second. To it were given the counties of Lake, Cook, St. Louis, Itasca, Cass, Crow Wing, Aitkin, Kanabec, Carlton and Pine, the only difference over the old arrangement being the accession of Kanabec from the St. Paul Presbytery and the loss of Beltrami, Hubbard and Wadena counties to the Red River district.

Mankato Presbytery remained unchanged, still retaining the counties of Lac Qui Parle, Yellow Medicine, Lincoln, Lyon, Redwood, Brown, Blue Earth, Watonwan, Cottonwood, Murray, Pipestone, Rock, Nobles, Jackson, Martin, Faribault, Le Sueur and Nicollet.

After much pleading from the St. Paul Presbytery and the churche at Red Wing, and despite the fact that the Winona Presbytery wanted new blood and new territory, Goodhue and Rice counties were left in the old St. Paul Presbytery. That gave the Winona district the counties of Winona, Freeborn, Mower, Fillmore, Houston, Olmsted, Dodge, Steele, Waseca and Wabasha.

After a spirited debate, in which there was much earnestness, logic, wit, eloquence and sentiment, by a vote of 58 to 34, the synod decided to divide the St. Paul presbytery into two parts, allowing one part to retain its old name and calling the other the Minneapolis presbytery. That gives the old part the counties of Scott, Dakota, Washington, Ramsey, Sherburne, Anoka, Chisago, Isanti, Goodhue and Rice. The Minneapolis district will comprise the counties of Hennepin, Wright, Carver, McLeod and Sibley.

A seventh district, called the St. Cloud presbytery, was formed from the counties of Todd, Morrison, Mille Lacs, Benton, Stearns, Pope, Stevens, Traverse, Big Stone, Swift, Kandiyohi, Meeker, Renville and Chippewa.

It was 5:15 when the afternoon session adjourned.

THE EVENING SESSION.

The Subject of Foreign Missions Occupies the Time of the Synod.

The evening session was opened by the report of the board of foreign missions delivered by the Chairman, S. H. Murphy, of Chatfield. During the year the board received about $15,000 in contributions. Of that, $1,174 came from women young people and children, and $5,544, from church collections. Out of 194 churches 80 gave nothing last year and this year 92 gave nothing. $491 were given by the Duluth presbytery which contains 1295 persons. The 2394 members in the Mankato presbytery gave $2,197, Red River with a membership of 886 gave $325. St. Paul's presbytery has 8,883 members and from them was received $8,963. Winona presbytery possesses 1503 members who donated $743 in all. The average per member in the state synod was 85 cents.

Mrs. J. B. Donaldson, of Minneapolis, read the report from the woman's auxilary board. The total receipts for the year were $7,174 an increase of $614.93 over the year before. The board contains 88 societies and of those, 31 decreased and 35 increased their gifts over the previous year. Duluth was the banner presbytery this past year, its 196 members donating $340.72 an increase of $140.

Rev. Mr. Waddell delivered an address on "Continental Missions." He has had a home missionary experience in Southern California and now is engaged in Brazil. His remarks were opened by a statement of religious matters 400 years ago. He pointed to the progress at the close of each century up to the present time and prophesied the grandest results and conditions at the close of the century to come. A closer union of the South American powers and the United States was firmly predicted and, as the speaker said, while our flag may not float over the South American states, there will be a blending of the stars and stripes and the Southern cross. The educational condition was next impressively portrayed. Ignorance, superstition and corruption hold a sway most firm down there. Eighty-five per cent of the male population can neither read nor write, and yet there is an educational requirement attached to the right of citizenship and suffrage. Mr. Waddell said that what Brazil needs and listens to is men of convictions. The revolution of 1889 was bloodless because men without convictions do not fight and all the convictions on truth, justice and liberty in Brazil were in the head of one man. The great need of Brazil, the speaker said, is men of brains and if a candidate for missionary service has not brains, he had best remain in the United States.

HOME MISSION SOCIETY.

Resolutions Passed Protesting Against the Opening of the World's Fair on Sunday.

The meeting of the Woman's Home Mission Synodical society was continued in the afternoon. Mrs. L. H. Morey, of Stillwater spoke on "Priestly Perils." Mrs. C. E. Walker, of the Woman's Executive committee, was present from New York and delivered a splendid address as also did Miss Alice Greene, a teacher and home missionary stationed at Gunnison, Utah. The following resolutions were adopted by the society:

Resolved, that we renew our protest against the opening of the World's Fair on the Sabbath day, declaring that the action of the Woman's Auxiliary Board of Minnesota does not correctly represent the sentiment of the Christian women of this state; that we urge our state commissioners at their meeting October 18th, to support the action of our congress in closing the doors of the Columbian Fair on the Sabbath day, and that a copy of the resolutions be sent immediately to said commissioners.

Resolved, that we record our gratitude for the encouraging reports from sister workers throughout our state, and the special privilege of having with us Mrs. Walker, of the woman's executive committee; also the additional pleasure and profit of listening to tidings from the field through our missionary worker, Miss Greene, of Gunnison, Utah.

Resolved, that we tender our thanks to the ladies of Duluth for their gracious and kindly reception of us into their homes, their abundant entertainment at lunch, and giving especial recognition of the song service rendered by the young ladies at both sessions.

Resolved, that we carry to our homes the keynote of our meeting; that our gifts and hands must go hand in hand in order to accomplish the greatest good in our home mission work throughout our whole land.

On the one side the changing about of prices from day to day up and down, as the case may be, necessarily selling goods to some customers at higher prices than others; necessarily making it a guess whether any customer gets full value for their money, actually making it impossible for anyone but an expert to be safe in purchasing anything; to mark goods right at first; to buy goods that are right; to sell them at the same price first, last and all the time; to make it an utter impossibility for anyone to get aught but full value for their money, rich or poor, high or low; to have one price on Right Goods, and that right.

OR

The Latter Embodies Our Principles in the Store,

And we commence Monday to FULLY ILLUSTRATE BY ACTUAL FACTS AND FIGURES BY COMMENCING TO SELL MERCHANDISE THAT WILL CONCLUSIVELY CONVINCE ANY FAIR-MINDED PERSON THAT OUR PRINCIPLES ARE JUST AND RIGHT, AND THAT THE LOWEST PRICES ARE ON GOODS HERE AT ALL TIMES.

NOT TO BE COMPARED

N. F. Hugo Says That None of the Greatly Boomed Coast Cities Are in it With Duluth.

He Gives His Opinions on Spokane, Seattle, Tacoma, Portland and the Country in General.

More Mechanics in West Duluth Than in Washington Outside of Railroad Shops and Sawmills.

N. F. Hugo returned this week from a trip of four weeks or more on the Pacific slope and especially among the Puget Sound towns. His trip was made not for pleasure alone, but to learn. He says that the one thing for which he most went was to compare the Sound cities about which so much is heard with Duluth. He is more than satisfied with the comparison and says that any man who looks over the cities out there carefully cannot but make up his mind that in prospects for the future they are not in it with Duluth.

Mr. Hugo first went to Spokane. This place, he says, is ten years ahead of itself. After the great fire the insurance company put up new buildings, and these are of the finest. It will be years before the city catches up to them. "Spokane will be a good inland town, nothing more," says Mr. Hugo. "There are some good farms about it and on the whole it is well located. While there I met Thomas Vigars a former Duluthian who is now in the livery business there; also Joe Stanton who was on the Trlbune here. The electric light plant in Spokane is run by water power and the light is cheap. From Spokane we went up into the Pewallup valley, the finest and only farming country in Washington.

"Next we went to Seattle and remained six days. I had always thought that no place could be in it with Duluth on hills but Seattle is worse. It is a succession of hills and the choicest residence property is on the top of each hill. Seattle has been built entirely out of opposition to the Northern Pacific road which is booming Tacoma, and the way the people there pull together and stand shoulder to shoulder is a lesson to many a city. If the buildings in Spokane are ten years ahead of the city those in Seattle are thirty years ahead. There are no buildings in New York better built than those of Seattle. The park system is elegant and is located on the shores of Lake Washington. This body of water is twenty miles long and is excellent for yachting. The water supply of Seattle is procured from this lake, and by the way, their water rates are 25 per cent lower than ours. While there I met Dr. J. P. Sweeney, president of the council and one of the brightest and brainiest young men I ever ran across. He is the watch dog of the treasury and has an eye on everything.

"As regards street car lines, Duluth does not compare with the Western towns. Seattle has thirteen independent lines and cables run up nearly every other street. There is, however, no transfer system and the people think they see a way out of it. The franchises only run twenty years and for this reason only three out of thirteen have been able to sell their bonds. They must have them extended to forty years and this furnishes the council a lever with which to force the transfer system on them and the council is also demanding a portion of the gross revenue. I find that the transfer system is causing considerable trouble. Denver is also fighting for it.

"From Seattle I went up to Victoria. This is a dead old town, but one of the prettiest places I have ever run across. While here I saw an interesting sight which I would not have missed for anything. My wife and I took the street car out to Esquimault. Gathered in the harbor here were five great big warships of the British navy. The Warspite, one of the largest in England's fleet, was here, and we went all over her. She has the latest improved guns of every description and carries as a crew 780 men. She is at Esquimault waiting to be repaired, having run on to a reef out there. Something in connection with this exhibited to me the contempt which the English seem to have for the Canadians. This vessel had torn off four or five plates, a break which Capt. McDougall could repair in two weeks, but this ship sent all the way to Chatham, England, for a man to come and repair her and expects to be there three months. While at Esquimalt I saw what I then considered to be a most wonderful thing. The Hyacinth, one of the war vessels, was practising. A steel buoy was placed out in the water quite a distance from the vessel. There was a slight swell on and both vessel and buoy were rising and falling gently, but in spite of this, although they fired at it for over an hour and a half, the buoy was never missed once.

"From Victoria I took the steamer down to Tacoma. I didn't like Tacoma. It is a railroad town and has been boomed for all it is worth. There are no manufactories, except a smelter, employing forty men, a few sawmills and the railroad shops. Everett I went to next and here I found one of the most flattened out booms ever heard of. Then I went down to Portland. This is a different kind of a city, not a boom town, but old and well settled, with splendid wholesale houses. Here is the first bridge said to have been built in direct opposition to the government and they have now got the approval of the secretary of war for two more. C. H. Mennsdorffer, president of the bridge commission created by the state legislature, advises Duluth to take an appeal from the United States engineer's decision to the secretary of war.

"Salt Lake City was next visited and we arrived there during the time of the Mormon conference at which 13,000 were present in the temple. It was there decided to complete the great temple on which $3,000,000 has already been spent and to have it ready by April, 1893. From Salt Lake City we came home and just escaped the blizzard.

"Some facts which I can give may astonish people. There are more mechanics employed in the car works at West Duluth than in the whole state of Washington outside of railroad shops and saw mills. There is more farming land in Blue Earth county, Minn., than in the whole of Washington. I was shown a piece of land by the chief right-of-way agent of the Northern Pacific road which he told me it had cost $158 an acre to clear. A crop of hops was being raised on it.

"By the way I might mention that Spokane and Tacoma are just finishing investigations of boodle cases which turned out just about as ours did here."

LAW AND JUSTICE.

A Claim That the Houck Verdict Was Just and Right.

To the Editor of The Herald:

It is surprising to note the different opinions on the verdict in the Houck trial. The public decide without any consideration of the facts, farther than that Houck killed two men, and from this they say he ought to be hung. They scarcely admit the question as to whether it was justifiable homicide, but pronounce it murder at once. I felt that way myself until I heard the evidence.

And now, I have no sympathy for Houck or any man or set of men who engage in the unholy and infernal business carried on in saloons, but after hearing the evidence (as I did the most of it), I can scarcely imagine what could constitute a clearer case of justifiable homicide. I know nothing about any of the parties in any way connected with this affair, but had I have been on that jury, sworn to decide according to law and the evidence produced in court, I would have decidedly favored acquittal, even on the evidence produced by the prosecution, if there had not been a particle brought in by the defense.

If, after one man had been shot, and another of the aggressive party was rushing for Houck and Houck, with revolver in hand, warned him repeatedly to keep back or he would shoot, if, I say, after all this, he had no reason to fear great bodily harm, I fail to understand what would constitute a good reason. If I am any judge of law and evidence Murphy and Haggerty got simply and fairly what they themselves invoked and have no one to blame but themselves for the result. OBSERVER.

SHOT BY THE PROFESSOR.

Fatal Shooting Affray in a St. Louis Dancing Academy.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 15.—Last night at a dancing academy, corner of Jefferson and Washington avenues, Professor Maurice Adams shot and fatally wounded William J. McKenzie, 22 years old, and living at No. 409 Montrose avenue. The shooting grew out of an alleged insult offered by Professor Adams to a young lady with whom McKenzie was dancing.

The hall was filled with nearly 100 couples and the pistol shot precipitated a riot. Men shouted and struggled and women screamed and fainted. A mad rush was made for the doors and soon the young people were converted into a struggling mass of humanity. Women and boys were trampled under foot.

Finally a dozen of the more collected of the men succeeded in restoring order. In the meantime Professor Adams had escaped, but was captured after a run of half a dozen blocks. A mob of nearly forty men surrounded him, and for a few moments it looked as if he would be lynched.

Finally the officers rescued him from the mob and locked him up. McKenzie is a young man of excellent reputation. His wound is probably fatal.

A FAVORABLE REPORT.

Trade Throughout the Country Larger Than Last Fall.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review says: Once more it must be said that trade indications are entirely favorable. Even the shrinkage in exports has ceased, an increase of $1,400,000 appearing here last week, while imports continue surprisingly large, and foreign exchange declines,

Trade throughout the country is somewhat larger than a year ago, and in all the branches of manufacturing there is extraordinary activity. Money is in greater demand in almost all commercial centers, but there is seen nowhere any stringency, the supply being ample for legitimate business and collections as a rule are exceptionally good,

The business failures during the last seven days number for the United States, 189, Canada, 26 a total of 215, as compared with 220 last week, 208 the week previous to the last, and 259 for the corresponding week of last year.

J. WILKEY.

IS ST. LUKE'S CHURCH.

The Handsome Edifice Which Has Been Erected at the West End by the Episcopalians.

Name of the West End Mission Changed From Church of the Holy Spirit to St. Luke's.

The Church Will be Opened for the First Time Tomorrow—Program for the Day.

The new Episcopal church at the corner of Nineteenth avenue west and First street, which has been erected by the people of the West End mission under the energetic direction of Rev. H. J. Sheridan, is to be opened for divine service tomorrow. The name of the mission has been changed from the Church of the Holy Spirit to St. Luke's church, and it will be known hereafter by that name.

Tomorrow's services will be held at at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m., Rev. Mr. Sheridan preaching in the morning and Rev. Mr. Barker at the night service. St. Paul's church will be closed in the evening to enable the rector and choir to be present at this service. The new church is a handsome structure and is an ornament to the West End. The following description is taken from the Parish Messenger, published by the rector of St. Paul's church:

"We congratulate the good people of the West End on the completion of their beautiful new church on the corner of First street and Nineteenth avenue. After holding services in public halls and stores for some years what a pleasure it will be to have possession of one of the most churchly buildings in the city. Mr. Sheridan's unceasing hard work has accomplished what nearly everyone thought impossible. The building has cost about $1200, and will seat 200 comfortably. Most generous gifts have been received from carpenters (three of whom gave one week's work apiece), lathers, stained glass makers (the beauttful wheel window in the chancel is the gift of a Duluth firm), bricklayers (the chimney is the gift of one bricklayer), painters, laborers and the entire iron work from one blacksmith. The account of the work on this building reminds one of the gifts made in the old days of Solomon's Temple where everyone had a share in work and gifts. On entering by a broad elevated platform from the avenue side, passing through the quaint vestibule, we see a church 60 feet long by 20 feet in width, with six lancet windows of cathedral glass on either side and a large wheel window over the altar. The roof is quite steep and shows the timber construction on the inside. Wainscoting three feet high extends all round the building. The chancel is 20 feet deep. The robing room is on the right side of the chancel. The entire building is lighted with electric lights, towards the furnishing of which a generous gift was made by a local company. A good sized basement provides furnace room and a place for general storage. The outside of the church is painted a dark olive, the roof black, and the buttresses and basement and trimmings an Indian red. A neat cross is seen on the roof at either end, and the general effect is thoroughly satisfactory. It is a credit to any town and by far the best building for church purposes in the West End. Many towns of 5000 people would do well to investigate the plans of this church. The people of the West End have contributed in the most generous way to the work, but every one will acknowledge that the building would have been impossible but for the enthusiastic hard work of Mr. Sheridan. We heard of him as a church builder before he came and now we know the report was true."

They Will do the Business.

The Duluth Decorating company is the title of a new wall paper and decorating firm who are to engage in business in the handsome new building, 17 Lake avenue north. Mr. Fred Engels, the well-known decorator, who is now in the East selecting a stock, will be manager of the concern, and that is a sufficient guarantee that the work done by them will be of first-class order. The intention is to carry a very fine stock of everything usually found in a first-class house decorating store, which will be sold at much lower prices than Duluthians have been asked to pay in the past. If you contemplate having any work done in the above lines it will be to your advantage to figure with this firm, who will be ready for business early next week.

BRIGHT DAY DAWNING

Real Estate is Getting Quite Active and a New Hope is Filling the Bosoms of All Duluthians.

Improved Property of Any Kind Need Not Go Begging, But Can Easily Find a Purchaser.

A "Stunner" Propounded by a Business Man Relative to the Mesaba Range Iron Discoveries.

The real estate market in Duluth is undergoing a decided change, not a sudden, but a steady and sure one and there is evidently dawning a much brighter day than has been seen here for some time. It is a quiet, steady awakening and one which brings increasing confidence in the future of the city. Foreign capital is coming in, but one of the brightest features is that the majority of the purchases are made by Duluth citizens themselves and most of them are all or a large part in cash.

Duluth citizens are in better shape financially than they have been for some time and are constantly getting better. No better evidence is needed to prove this than the bank statements just published. The total deposits on Sept. 30, the date of the calling of the statements aggregated about $5,350,000. Every bank had increased its deposits from $50,000 to $300,000 over those shown by the preceding statement called less than three months before.

There is not a piece of improved property in the city which need go begging and the sales of improved property during the past month would aggregate a large sum. The number of cash deals is unusually large. A feature particularly to be noticed is that some investors are purchasing improved property so as to get better rates of interest than they can or loans. The Davis building on Michigan street recently sold is an illustration of this. It was sold to a man who has loaned money in Duluth for years. He paid $33,000 cash because he can not get over 6 per cent on loans. Money is actually a drug on the market in Duluth now and any amount of it can be had for 6 per cent. It is not so everywhere and it is but reasonable to infer that it is due to the confidence which exists elsewhere as to the prospects of growth of the city. Capital is always placed for investment, not particularly in localities which will bring the highest interest, but in those which can give gilt-edged security; where there will be no depreciation of values.

The amount of building now being done in Duluth is enormous, not particularly on Superior street, but residence building. Houses are going up by the hundred, and yet as fast as they go up they are filled, and no others seem to empty in their places. The Merriam flats recently built on Fifth avenue east are entirely full and it is the same everywhere. The question then arises where are the people coming from? There has been no perceptible increase in the number of industries or in the number of men employed by them. The explanation of it simply is that the steady growth of the business already here is more than Duluthians generally have any idea of. More people are being employed every day and all establishments are branching out and growing in strength and prosperity. Employes are building homes of their own. Many of them are building on subdivided lots and monthly payments.

People who lived in Duluth in the great days of '87 will remember that the great boom began by just such a period of prosperity as is dawning now, not there will be any such excitement as there was then, at least not for a few years, but it commenced with just such a quiet movement as this which finally became general.

In connection with the prospective growth of Duluth and real estate values, a prominent business man yesterday propounded a "stunner" to a Herald reporter, but it is enough to set people to thinking and there is a world in it. He said:

"We hear a great deal about the great Mesaba range and how much it means for the future of Duluth. Now give me an estimate of what you think will be the entire amount expended at the head of the lakes in the next ten years through the iron discoveries on the range. I mean in the payment of royalties, the operation of the mines, the machinery to operate them, the building and equipment of the railways, the land, the ore, the building of ore docks, the establishment of towns, the erection of houses for men, the establishment of plants for working the iron and manufacturing and a thousand other things. Now what would be your estimate."

The reporter scratched his head, gave it up and of course asked his questioner to name a figure

"Well it must be wild to attempt it" "said he," but I should say $100,000 000. This I think will be a low estimate. Now if that amount is expended at the head of the lakes in ten years just pause and think what it means to Duluth. It cannot help but increase the value of every piece of Duluth real estate five or six times over and I think history will bear me out."

There is a good deal of food for thought in this although it would be pretty hard to get anything like reliable figures.

A Brakeman Killed.

HINCKLEY, Minn., Oct. 15.—Thomas Swift, of St. Cloud, a brakeman on the Great Northern, while working Thursday night near Pokegama, was cut in two. The link broke and the train separated and the man stepped over the end of the box car. He has been married only six weeks and was 23 years old.

Watterson Will Speak.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 15.—Henry Watterson, the brilliant editor of the Courier-Journal, and known everywhere, has accepted an invitation to deliver the dedicatory address at the World's fair. The invitation reached him by telegraph yesterday afternoon and he replied by wire, agreeing to take it.

Nothing Succeeds Like Success.

An appreciative public will not refuse to look
At the past spread out before them, like a plainly printed book,
Showing up in solid capitals, that he who runs may read
THE GLASS BLOCK STORE in business, has always held the lead.

We began the WAR ON PRICES, and pushed them to the wall,
Till we forced them to a basis, within the reach of all.
And we 'Held the Fort' serenely, with success our countersign,
Till competition rallied and 'tumbled' into line.

In our buying and our selling, we have always kept beyond
All the Rustlers in our city by the 'big unsalted pond.'
They may follow in our footsteps as we proudly march along,
But "still there's more to follow" is the burden of our song.

More wonderful surprises for our customers in store,
More goods and Lower Prices than were ever known before;
More 'careful imitations' of the work we have begun,
More efforts to out-do a firm that never was out-done.

Old stock goes off at special rates, to leave us room for new,
And a mammoth exhibition at 'Our Opening' is in view,
While the crowds that come to see us in friendship and good-will,
Are bound to leave, rejoicing that we are LEADERS STILL.

CAUGHT BY HER HUBBY.

A Local Scandal Tears Social Circles Wide Open at Hecla.

ABERDEEN, S. D., Oct. 15.—The town of Hecla, in this county, is in the throes of a great social sensation. James Holborn, a banker and leading business man, has been holding improper relations with a Mrs. Head. The irate husband, with a revolver in his hand, was one of the party to discover the pair. Holborn has fled the country, leaving a wife and family.

Mr. Head has long suspected that his wife was too intimate with Holborn and set a trap for their detection. He let a friend into his secret and both watched. They saw Holborn go to Mrs. Head's rooms and in a short time they forced their way in.

Holborn was badly frightened and made his escape, carrying part of his clothes and leaving a part. When Mrs. Holborn was apprised of the situation she ordered her husband to leave the house, which he did.

SENSATION IN KANSAS.

Mrs. Lease Advises Populists to Vote For Harrison.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—A special to the Times from Topeka, Kas., says: The sensation of the day in Kansas is the interview with Mrs. Lease, who has been accompanying Gen. Weaver in his tour through the Southern states. She recites the indignities they were subjected to, and then declares that if a vote for Weaver is in reality a vote for Cleveland in this state, her desire is that the Populists scratch their ticket and vote for the Harrison electors.

Mrs. Lease is one of the strongest leaders of the Kansas Populists, and her expressed wishes have caused great consternation not only in her own party, but among the Democrats.

She concedes every Southern state to Cleveland and therefore at this late day indicates her preference for Harrison. Her advice will be followed by many, but at this time it is impossible to say to what extent.

READY TO MEET THEM.

An Expected Attempt to Rob a Train in Missouri.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 15.—Yesterday afternoon the local manager of the Southern Express company received a telegram from Superintendent Fagan, of the Kansas City, Fort Scott & Memphis railroad, dated at Kansas City, stating that he was informed that an attempt would be made to rob the train leaving here at 5 p. m., and that the attempt would be made somewhere between this city and Thayer, Mo., 175 miles northwest of here.

When the train left last night, Sergeant Horn and three policemen were aboard all heavily armed and ready to repel any attack by robbers. Up to a late hour last night, nothing had been heard of an attack.

North Dakota's Vote.

JAMESTOWN, N. D., Oct. 15.—Conservative and reliable reports to the Republican state central committee from thirty-six counties, all but six in the state, show that Governor Burke will be re-elected by at least 4000 majority and that the Harrison electors will exceed that figure by 2000.

Jupiter's Satellites.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Professor Pickering, of Harvard, telegraphs to the Herald from Arequipa, Peru: "Jupiter's fourth satellite is very dark now. The third satellite is girdled by a very dark belt in the northern hemisphere, inclined twenty degrees to orbit. It can best be seen during transit. The second satellite is probably not spherical. The first satellite is egg shaped and revolves end over end."

Mr. Levine Replies.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Inasmuch as you have published a letter from the Retail Clerks' Union wherein they ask the public to boycott us for keeping our place of business, known as the Bell Clothing store, open evenings, I presume you will not deny me the privilege of stating our side of the case.

In the first place I may say I have been in the clothing business nearly all my life, rising to the proprietorship of our present establishment only through long years of hard and patient work, careful economy and by scrupulously following out the dictates of my own judgment.

I was a clerk myself for a long time but while in that position strove to serve the interests of my employer instead of trying to cripple his business; tried to learn what I could as well as make what I could and directed all my efforts in the hope of some day becoming a proprietor instead of remaining a clerk all my life. By pursuing such methods I have climbed from a clerkship to my present position, and have maintained that position by close attention to business and directing it as I thought best, and so far, wonderful as it may seem, I have managed to exist without courting or obeying the advice of the Retail Clerks' union.

I am glad to see a union of retail clerks, and so long as they confine themselves to measures for their own enlightenment and advancement they will always find in me, as one who has shared their labors, a helping hand; but until they shall have demonstrated their superior intelligence and knowledge of the clothing business by graduating from clerkships, I must confess I am unwilling to accept unsolicited advice from them as to how to run my own establishment. Although I am sorry it jars the sensitive nerves of the Retail Clerks' union, we shall continue to keep the Bell Clothing store open evenings. We will leave the case to the people of Duluth and are not afraid of their verdict, for the love of freedom and fair play and the acknowledged right of every man to manage his own business as his judgment and necessity demands, notwithstanding attempted boycots, forces us to believe that the action of the Retail Clerks' union will meet with but little sympathy.

TOO MUCH INFIDELITY

Presbyterians Discuss the State University and Some Claim There is Not Enough Christian Influence.

Treasurer Platten of Macalester College Urges Dr. Ringland to Accept the Presidency Offered Him.

Rev. John Barbour, the New Moderator, Preaches Tomorrow—Visiting Ministers Will Fill City Pulpits.

Today's session of the synod was opened by a half hour's devotional exercises. The minutes were read and adopted after which Dr. Wallace, acting president of Macalester college, delivered the report of the board of trustees of that institution, which had been made a special order of business at 9:30 o'clock. The doctor reviewed the financial difficulties through which the college has passed, said that its condition a year ago was practically one of bankruptcy. He then narrated the steps taken that improved the financial condition and made the past year of school a possibility. The two chief questions now are those of finance and the president. The need of a Christian Presbyterian college was portrayed and urged to the synod. The treasurer, D. E. Platter, of St. Paul, made an eloquent and most earnest plea for Christian schools of higher learning in general and Macalester college in particular. He said that owing to all the conditions Dr. Ringland is God's choice for the presidency and that he must accept. He stated that he already had told Mrs. Ringland that she might as well commence pulling the tacks in her carpet preparatory to starting for Macalester.

Dr. Mitchell read a short speech urging greater fidelity to church schools. Elder Brewster recognized the power and value of the Christian and wanted to see Macalester stand as long as the world shall stand. Rev. R. M. Donaldson spoke of the need of Christian schools, advanced the idea that the state university does not come up to the mark, illustrating it by a statement that all his young people who have attended the state university have lost interest and usefulness in Christian work. Drs. Black and Kinkaid took those remarks in the nature of an assault on the state university, and entered a protest, following that up with statements that many of their best workers are attendants at the state university. Rev. Thos. Cochrane expressed the opinion that the religious atmosphere is not what it should be in the state university, that young people have tearfully come to him asking how they could get more religion in their work. The speaker said that such a sentiment ought to be created that no infidel could hold a place on the faculty.

The synod spent the afternoon in a half holiday, driving on the boulevard and seeing the sights of the city.

Tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. there will be a sermon by Rev. John Barbour, moderator of the synod, followed by the administration of the Lord's supper. At 4 o'clock p. m. there will be a popular meeting in the interests of the Y. P. S. C. E. Rev. C. G. Reynolds will preside and addresses will be given by Rev. D. S. McCaslin and Rev. S. G. Neil, of Minneapolis.

At 7:30 p. m. there will be a popular meeting in the interests of home missions, including a report of the synod's committee on home missions, and the report of the Woman's Synodical committee on the same question. Addresses will be made by Rev. R. N. Adams, D. D., synodical missionary in Minnesota; Rev. A. Van Der Lippe, D. D., of the German Theological seminary, Dubuque, Ia., and Rev. D. J. McMillan, D. D., of New York. A report of yesterday afternoon and evening's proceedings is given on the fourth page.

The Market Today was Marked by Firmness in Prices.

The total sales on 'change this morning were 410 shares. The market today, although not especially active, was stronger, especially in Biwabik, Great Northern, Mesaba Mountain and Cincinnati at higher prices. The prevailing feature was firmness in prices all along the line, with indications of greater activity in the future. Iron mining stocks, both listed and unlisted, are attracting more attention both at home and abroad and it seems probable sales will be much larger hereafter. Following are the latest sales:

He Says Positively.

Mr. Timothy Barbric is a contractor in Duluth, well known and respected, his brother, Mr. Alexander, recently came to Duluth from Nova Scotia to remain with him. His eyes had troubled him for a long time by being unable to read continuously, or to endure a bright light, suffering almost continuously with headache. Being referred to Dr. Matthez at the Spalding, the results attained are to be read in the letter which follows. Dr. Matthez closes his office at the Spalding Oct. 20, so that those in need of good eyesight should avail themselves of this opportunity.

Mr. Barbric says:

WEST DULUTH,
FIRST AVENUE WEST,
October 8, 1892.

Dr. L. H. Matthez—Dear Sir: Noticing by the papers that your contemplated stay in Duluth is so soon to be brought to a close, I feel like writing you concerning my eyes and glasses before you leave the city. Your action upon first consulting you inspired confidence by your explanation of my case as well as I could have stated it myself. Though I have been able to see and apparently well for both reading and at a distance, could not read continuously; in fact, had not been able to read for more than five or ten minutes at a time in nearly two years, and distressed my eyes to look at a distance, and I suffered almost incessant headaches. After eight or ten hours devoted to the examination of my eyes and in making the two sets of spectacles for me, the frames to fit the face and glasses ground to the requirements of my eyes. Can say positively that now having worn the glasses constantly since receiving them some weeks ago, that I can see with the greatest comfort and convenience; the pain in my eyes has entirely subsided, which before was so intense, and headaches totally dissipated, and I can see to read perfectly for any length of time without inconvenience. I thank you for your kindness and skill and say hundreds of dollars wouldn't buy my glasses. Yours very truly, LEX C. BARBRIC.

After six weeks of active business in Duluth, Dr. Matthez will close his office (Room "D") at the Spalding, Oct 20, which leaves but four more days in which to consult him concerning your Eyes and Glasses. GOING RIGHT ALONG.

New Students Entering Every Day—Will Probably Have to Seek Larger Apartments.

The rush of students to the Duluth Business University has been so great during the past few weeks that the proprietors begin to realize that there is a probability of their either having to extend their apartments or seek new and larger ones.

Young men and women from all parts of Duluth, Superior and suburban towns as well as from surrounding towns and villages, may be found at this noted institution, pursuing the studies of one or more of the courses. The following students were enrolled during the past week: Ralph Hammond, Henry Flynn, E. A. Huot, Harry Purfelt, Chas. Seymour, A. B. Northwood, Geo. Brennin, A. B. Strowbridge, A. V. Ouellette, Wm. Olson, J. R. Mitchell, Oscar Kruschke, Emma Johnson, Mary Olsen, Jennie Clow, Lottie Wing. Many young persons who are employed during the day are availing themselves of the opportunities offered at our night school, and are taking one or more courses, and although it has been but two weeks since our night school opened, it already has a very large attendance. If you are interested in a business, stenography, or telegraphy course, you should not think of attending any other school, as our facilities are unsurpassed by any similar institution. Location, 105 and 107 West Superior street.

THE VERDICT!
Rendered in favor of
LUTES BROS.
Duluthians have read a great deal lately of the merits of different laundries. ONE IS ADVERTISED as the largest in the state, another does the only first-class work in the city, etc.; each one contradicting the other. But here are a few facts that not only speak for themselves but cannot be contradicted.
LUTES BROS.
Operate More Machinery,
Employ More People,
Do More Business,
Than any other Laundry in the city. Another SPLENDID ENDORSEMENT of our work is the fact that we do fully 50 per cent of what is termed the ENDION TRADE.

IS A WINNING FEATURE

The Manual Training School One of the Best Departments of the Present High School Course.

The Object is to Train the Hand and Eye Not to Turn Out Skilled Workmen and Mechanics.

Girls as Well as Boys Learn to Bore Straight Auger Holes and Drive a Nail Properly.

How many of the patrons of Duluth's public schools really know what manual training is as associated with the modern free school? How many really know that a manual training department is a winning feature of this city's high school? How many however visited that department? How many have even an idea of the objects of that feature, the way it is conducted and the work it embraces? A Herald representative recently spent a part of an afternoon examining the manual training classroom and the operations of the pupils. All who are not satisfied with this hasty and incomplete narration of that afternoon's experience, will both show wisdom and benefit greatly by following the writer's example.

Educational reports credit only four cities in Minnesota with manual training departments in their public schools. Those are St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and Stillwater. St. Paul has the most money invested in the feature, but the work and results are no better, possibly not so good, than in the other places mentioned. Manual training has been more quickly recognized as an indispensable factor in the modern free school than was the kindergarten system, but for various reasons not in order for discussion here, it will not become so generally adopted—not for years, anyway. The true idea of manual training is not to turn out skilled workmen and to manufacture, but to train the hand and eye, develop a broader foundation upon which the pupil's lifework may rest and to break the monotony or wear attending continuous mental effort. Manual training also must not be confounded with physical training or physical culture.

In the basement of the new High school building, at the East End, is a room, 85 by 85 feet in area, splendidly lighted, with numerous windows. That is the place where about sixty boys in the first and second years of the High school course each day are gaining facility in the use of tools, thereby either developing a taste and aptness for some trade, or developing and training the muscles. Even a class of eight girls is learning to bore straight holes, or with a hammer hit a nail on the head, instead of smashing their taper fingers. Not only do the girls take a great interest in that work, but may maintain that already they notice a firmer touch when playing the piano.

In the main room are five double benches each accommodating four boys. Within a few days eight more boys will be accommodated by single benches down the side of the room. Each work bench is full sized, supplied with a vise, several saws, brace and bits, several planes, chisels, try-square, hammer, mallet and all the plain tools of an apprentice but with none of the complicated tools of a master joiner. Aside from those there are numerous extra tools. In addition to the benches and tools is one band saw, three wood lathes, one lathe for iron working, a planer, forge, emery wheel, a grindstone and other machinery. The power is furnished from the 80-horse power engine which supplies steam and force for the building. Off from the large room is another 30 by 30 feet which is designed for a lumber room, being large enough to hold a five years' supply, thereby always having dry stock on hand.

This is the fourth year the department has been in operation and at present the course includes two years of work. The first year is devoted to gaining a facility with tools and doing plain joining. A text book, "Lessons in Wood Working," by W. F. Decker, supervisor of manual training in the Minneapolis schools, is used. It gives thirty-eight tasks, each accompanied by a plan, description of stock to be used, general explanations of the work and plans and specific instructions on points more minute. The following are subjects of various lessons: Marking and sawing to line, marking and diagonally across the grain, use of try-square and rule and driving nails, use of fore plane, jointer and smoother, use of gauge and try-square and planing to given dimensions, block planing, beveling and rounding, boring and mortising, paring, making square but joint, making mortise and tenon joint, making blind mortise and tenon joint, making dove tail tenon joint. After exercises on other kinds of joints, comes one for making a miter box, then dove tail joints, model of door step, case of pigeon holes, and making king pest truss. Then comes bending wood by saw keifing, small case of drawers, hard wood blocking case, hard wood stand and hard wood wall cabinet.

The pupils sharpen their own tools and mend, so far as means will allow, all breaks. No work is permitted until a plan is first drawn, each workman being required to work from his own plans. With the first year's work is given drawing, which comprises copying and the construction of simple plans and elevations.

The second year in the course, the pupils take up wood turning, wood carving, do more or less of "cabinet work," and as the course is extended and facilities added which will be next year, working in iron and other metals will be included. The advanced class has in drawing, descriptive geometry, mechanical drawing, "general projections," "intersections" and "shadows." Some of last year's work is on exhibition and is very creditable.

This work supplements but does not interfere with the regular class room work. A period of forty minutes is given every day to bench work and the same amount of time to drawing. The boys take great interest and many work after school hours making things for themselves and doing work outside of regular class requirements. The observations in this and other schools are that no other feature does half as much towards holding the boys in school until they complete a full course. Of the eight girls now taking lessons at the bench four will next summer enter architects' offices, already having made arrangements to that effect.

Those who do not understand the scientific principles of this feature or who have vague ideas as to what the work comprises cannot only gain much information but pass a few hours most pleasantly by visiting the boys when at work. The way they stick to business, the small attention they pay to things not closely connected with their work, the way in which the shavings fly and the astonishingly creditable work done is both well worth a visit and most convincing as to the desirability of the system. Professor William R. Trowbridge, an expert in this work, is an enthusiast as well and is always pleased to see visitors. A great deal of his time is taken up with class work in physics and chemistry. As a consequence, a great portion of the shop work is under the charge of Chas. Hutchins, a graduate of this High school, and a young man most competent.

New Publications Which Will Soon Come From the Press.

Macmillan & Co. are to publish very shortly a work by Dr. S. S. Laurie entitled "The Institutes of Education, Comprising a Rational Introduction to Psychology." Mr. Howells has given the title of "The Coast of Bohemia" to his new novel of American girl life which is about to published in the Ladies' Home Journal. The novelist says of the story that "it is about the prettiest thing I have ever done."

The three-page poem by John G. Whittier, which will appear in the November St. Nicholas Magazine, commemorates the visit of a party of young girls to the poet's home. It contains the following lines, which have a peculiar significance now that the good Quaker poet has passed away:

"I would not if I could repeat
A life which still is good and sweet;
I keep in age, as in my prime,
A not uncheerful step with time,
And, grateful for all blessings sent,
I go the common way, content
To make no new experiment.
On easy terms with law and fate,
For what must be I calmly wait,
And trust the path I cannot see,—
That God is good sufficeth me.
And when at last upon life's play
The curtain falls, I only pray
That hope may lose itself in truth,
And age in heaven's immortal youth,
And all our loves and longing prove
The foretaste of diviner love."

"The Reminiscences of Charles Santley," soon to be issued by Macmillan & Co., embodies the recollections of the foremost baritone of the day. His own record of his successes in Italian opera at most of the largest cities in Europe and in this country should make an entertaining volume.

The series of reminiscent articles of "My Father as I Recall Him," by Mamie Dickens, the oldest and favorite daughter of Charles Dickens, will begin in the next issue of the Ladies' Home Journal by an entertaining narration of Dickens' personal habits and an inner glimpse of his home life.

"Edward Burne-Jones; a Record and Review," by Malcolm Bell, is the title of a book that Macmillan & Co. are to publish shortly. It will be a large quarto volume, illustrated with photogravures and engravings, and among other specimens of the artist's work will include several hitherto unpublished in this country.

The Century Magazine will take up the bible and science controversy. In the November Century, Professor Chas. W. Shields, of Princeton, answers the question "Does the Bible contain Scientific Errors?" with an emphatic no. He says: "Literary and textual obscurities there may be upon the surface of holy writ, like spots upon the sun, or rather like motes in the eye; but scientific error in its divine purport would be the sun itself extinguished at noon. Such a bible could not live in this epoch." Professor Shield's article will be followed by one in the December Century on "The Effect of Scientific Study upon Religious Beliefs."

The Herald published recently under the head of "A Pretty Surprise" a notice of a new and very charming edition of Longfellow's most celebrated poem, "Evangeline" Upon examination the book proves so delightful in every way that it will be a favor to our readers to refer to it again. It is handsomely illustrated, mainly by Birket Foster, one of the most famous of English artists, and bound in exquisite taste in a combination of white and blue cloth, with gilt edges and ornaments, and is sold only by the publisher direct (not by the booksellers), at approximately the actual cost of manufacture by the hundred thousand—19 cents a copy, plus 6 cents postage, if by mail. His object is to place an example of his book-making in the hand of a vast number of readers. He could certainly choose no more excellent volume to please all people of good taste. His catalogue of books, covering every department of literature, a veritable feast of good things for book lovers, and at wonderfully low prices, considerably over 100 pages in size, is sent postpaid for 2 cents. John Brennan has just issued the third edition of his book "Erin Mor: The Story of Irish Republicanism." This work, which is dedicated to President Harrison, advances some strong reasons why all Irishmen should be Republicans, owing to the tariff issue. Had Broken Something.

If people never cried until they were hurt, there would be much less noise in the world; but sometimes the crying is both amiable and amusing.

An exchange says that a servant sent money to Ireland to pay the passage of her sister to Boston. She was to come by the Cephalonia. Meanwhile the girl watched the papers daily to see whether the steamer had arrived. At last she found the desired item, but it came to her as a terrible disappointment, and she ran to her mistress in a state of distress.

"The Cephalonia has got in," she said, "but, oh, saints in heaven, an accident has happened to her!"

"What is it?" said the mistress. She took the paper, and this was what she read:

"The Cephalonia below; she has broken her record."—Youth's Companion.

The Chill Autumnal Days.

"We might as well consider our engagement broken, Reginald."

"I don't see why! Your father said postponed."

"Postponed until you arrived at years of discretion. And in your case, Reggy, dear, you know what that means."—Life.

Unanswerable.

A quaint specimen of a judge who had been an Irish hedge school master in his time once summed up a case as follows: "The learned counsel for the plaintiff has made a very fine argument—a splendid argument. Indade I am thinking his argument unanswerable. And the distinguished counsel for the defendant has made an illigant argument—an argument that seems to be very sound. I think it is unanswerable. Indade, gentlemen, I think both your arguments are unanswerable. So I dismiss the case."—Green Bag.

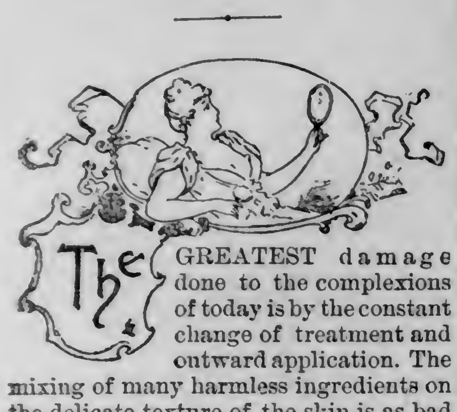
FOR THE COMPLEXION

Practical Pointers Concerning Powders and Cosmetics are Offered for the Good of the Ladies.

Fannie Edgar Thomas Tells Very Plainly How to Make Face Masks and Skin Bleachers.

A False Nose Would Surely be a Boon to the Summer Girl—Internal Cosmetics.



The GREATEST damage done to the complexions of today is by the constant change of treatment and outward application. The mixing of many harmless ingredients on the delicate texture of the skin is as bad as the steady application of one that is injurious. Women, through ignorance, abuse the skin as they would not any fabric in their wardrobe, yet it is more delicate than any. Inasmuch as women will tamper with their complexions and use outward applications, I give a few that cannot possibly harm and may help.

Pure powder, properly applied, never of itself hurt any skin. Aside from the temporary effect it refines the texture and preserves it by catching dust and soil and the sun's rays. It is cheap powder carelessly used that hurts. It must be kept perfectly clean, the chamois frequently washed, but above all powder must never be washed off by soap and water. This makes a soiled plaster which lodges in the pores, makes it dark and yellow, and is one of the most fruitful sources of "blackheads." A safe cream or oil should be laid on and allowed to remain during the preparation for retiring, and well wiped off before the bath of warm water and soap. After the bath apply retiring cream and let it remain on all night—well rubbed in.

A thoroughly good and safe mask preparation is this: Beat the white of an egg stiff, add fifteen drops of almond oil, a trifle more of rosewater, about as much powdered alum as a doctor gives in a quinine powder; stir well together into a sweet smelling cream. Spread upon a cloth in which eyes, nose and mouth have been cut and tie on at night by means of three strings in each side. Apply about every other night for a week, and in nine out of ten faces a remarkable improvement will have taken place. The laughter that will ensue if three or four girls form a "mask party" will not be lost on the good looks.

Raw veal or beef applied in this way is a method used with great success by many for freshening up a skin jaded by overwork. It is one of Mrs. Langtry's favorite beautifiers.

One of the most efficient and simple skin bleaches in the world is: To fifteen cents' worth of glycerin add an equal quantity of rosewater. Mix one ounce of borax and four of alcohol and add one teaspoonful of the mixture to the above. Some are afraid of glycerin, but there is not enough of it to harm any, and its effects are made valuable by the other ingredients.

In bygone times ladies wore masks during outdoor exercises, especially during the hunt. I wish the practice might be restored for our summer rambles. A false nose certainly might be introduced, which under a veil would not be perceptible, and would do away with that foe to all summer comfort for some—the red nose. After a long ride last summer two girls used a bleach which had been recommended by one who had used it successfully. From one it removed the sun's kisses in a night: on the other it brought out a regular bridge of pimples across the nose and both cheeks to the ears! Zinc ointment cured them quickly. Camphor and camphorated vaseline must be avoided, being hair producers, but there is nothing like the latter to kill a pimple; sweet almond oil is also good. A little tannin and opium mixed with the retiring cream is a harmless, quick, sure cure for red nose. Specialists now have a way of reducing redness by compressing the blood vessels.

Buttermilk is splendid to bleach and make smooth the skin. One tablespoonful of tincture benzoin added to equal parts (about ten cents' worth) glycerin and rosewater makes a good steady wash. A few drops of tincture of benzoin in bath water is beneficial to the skin, but too much makes it yellow. One ounce lemon juice, one-quarter dram powdered borax, one-half dram sugar tightly corked up for a few days will remove freckles temporarily. Roncegno water, a colorless mineral water which comes, I believe, from south Tyrol, in Switzerland, and which is highly impregnated with iron and arsenic, will cause freckles to disappear without breaking or harming the skin. Borax, camphor and cologne is a splendid application for greasy noses. Hazelnut powder is a good "wash off" at night. It is mixed with a little warm water in the hand and rubbed into the face before the hot water bath. Retiring cream to be applied after.

In the line of internal cosmetics clover tea is first, last and always. There is nothing to compare with it. It works like magic in all cases and can hurt none. It tones up the health as well as beautifies the skin, and it has been known to cure incipient cancer. It comes in little pressed packages, is steeped just like tea and should be drank freely.

Taraxacum and charcoal are purifying, but severe. Carrots are the best vegetable for the texture of the skin. Beets make blood, and, singularly enough, they are the chief ingredient in the making of the best modern rouge of the day. Sweet oil on eyebrows makes them grow. In most cases they may be made to grow luxuriantly by fussing with them, massaging with cream, brushing, combing, etc. Washing in tea darkens them. Eyebrows are absolutely necessary to bring out the other features of the face.

FANNIE EDGAR THOMAS.

A BRIGHT WOMAN.

She Edits the Woman's Page of the New York World.

Away up in the tower of the Pulitzer building, fifteen stories from the street, in a cozy room that overlooks the lower part of the city and the glorious bay, there sits a young, handsome and brainy woman. She is Miss E. G. Jordan, editor of the woman's and children's pages of the New York Sunday World and assistant editor of The Sunday World.

She is always dressed in elegant and fashionable gowns—severely simple and stylish. She is tall, beautifully proportioned, and makes a charming picture as one opens the door of her little sanctum. Her hair is dark and worn in plain classic coil. Her eyes are clear, deep and of an intellectual gray. Although her brain and hands are full of work, she never seems hurried or ill at ease. Miss Jordan is always courteous and cordial to visitors, and cannot fail to make a charming impression upon all who meet her.

Elizabeth G. Jordan was born in Milwaukee May 9, 1867. She went into newspaper work in 1887, after her graduation from the state university. She was connected with Peck's Sun for one year, having charge of the woman's department and doing general editorial work. During this time she was also a special writer for the St. Paul Globe, Chicago Tribune and a number of large southern dailies.

ELIZABETH G. JORDAN.

In 1888 Miss Jordan went to Chicago and did special writing for The Tribune of that city. She went to New York early in 1890, at the invitation of Colonel Cockerill, then editor in chief of the New York World. She has been connected with The World ever since. During the first year she did all around reporting. Her special out of town assignments included a trip through the Virginia and Tennessee mountains, which she made on horseback, accompanied only by a negro guide, sleeping in the cabins of the mountaineers by night, and identifying herself with their home life as closely as possible.

The work on which she made her reputation was the publication of The World's "True Stories of the News," one of which appeared in The World every morning. They were chronicles of the happenings in a great city, and ranged from the humorous to the deeply tragic. The preparation of these articles took Miss Jordan into the hospitals, police stations and police courts, the morgue and the great east side tenements of New York. She soon became known to the majority of the city officials, who were very helpful to her in gathering her material. One night she went to the charitable hospital on Blackwell's island to write up the death of a consumptive. She sat by the side of the dying woman from 6 o'clock in the evening until twenty minutes past 2 the next morning, when the patient expired. Another time she went to the morgue at midnight to find the body of a baby whose parents could not afford to give it burial, and which had died in their arms on the street as they were taking it to the hospital. Her story of this baby brought in enough money to bury the child in Greenwood and to make the parents comfortable for some time to come.

A New Book Rack.

Here is a rack roughly made for holding reference books by a literary man who was camping out and had no book shelves with him. He is so pleased with its convenience that he intends to have one made nicely of oak for his town residence.

For a foundation he used a champagne box without the cover. Side pieces of wood the width of the box and high enough to enable a person sitting to see the books open on the top shelf were nailed firmly to each end. These were first cut out at the top in V shape, leaving a right angled opening. Over this was laid a long board projecting at each end, to whose lower edge a strong cleat of wood was fastened, as on a reading desk. A piece of board was also fastened, slanting in the box below, to support the big volumes set on edge therein. On the shelf above a dictionary is kept always open, and another row of big volumes is held in position by the cleat and tin library supports slipped under the end book.

WOMAN'S WORLD IN PARAGRAPHS.

Giving a Car Seat to a Woman—A Disappearing Fashion.

It used to look very queer to a person from the west or south when he entered a street car or a coach on the elevated roads in New York and found women standing hanging to a strap, while all about them men occupied seats, with their noses buried in newspapers. It seemed unpardonable rudeness at first. Then, by and by, if they remained in New York, these same men who were at first shocked gradually acquired all the gall of the native New Yorker and kept their seats with the best or worst of them. New York men have good reasons in explanation of their conduct. They say truly enough that if they gave up a seat to every woman who comes into a car in New York they would be bobbing up and down all the time, and that this would be impossible in the crowds that fill the public conveyances of the big city. Then there is another plea. They say, these New York men, that since woman is pushing her way into all the industries and going down town every day, let her take her chances and hustle the same as the men do. If she can't hustle, then let her quit. If she is equal to a man, let her prove it. So, since New York sets the fashion for the rest of the country, men of other cities are falling into the habit of keeping their seats and letting women stand. Well, I for one do not object. There is, however, a place to draw the line. It is when a strapping young athlete sits in his place and leers up with a look of infinite impertinence into the face of a feeble woman old enough to be his grandmother, while she stands tottering. I pity the woman who is his mother and the woman who is to be his wife. But for the rest never mind. Men tell us that if we claim to be their equals we must hustle and prove it. Very well, we accept the gage. In no spirit of antagonism, but as friendly comrades, we shall prove to men that we are their equals in learning, in endurance and business ability, and their superiors in the finer spiritual and moral qualities they have so neglected. Not destroying our nervous systems with whisky and tobacco, we shall be receptive to all the finer, more powerful forces of the universe. With souls full of fire, with immortal patience and determination we work on, and the kind of women the glorious Twentieth century will smile down upon—you shall see.

The summer's fashion of belt and blouse waist has revealed defects in the figures of young American white women that one is sorry to see. The belt is too often girted in till the girl looks as if she would break in two. The necessary effect of this is to throw the body out of poise. Below the waist it stands prominently forward in an unsightly way. The back, on the contrary, hollows so far in that the young woman looks as if she had been struck in the back and dented in. Then the shoulders bow out round again till the expression of the whole figure is something like the letter S. So far as I have noticed, the strong, lithe, graceful young negro women have much finer figures than the average white girl. Their strong, splendid shoulders stand firmly above a waist not too small, and the figure below the waist is straight and willowy. They seem somehow to be built for looks and for wear both. Perhaps the active physical exercise their mothers have been taking for generations, with little pampering and luxury, gives the daughters such firm, beautiful figures. If today a sculptor were to look in America for the model of the Venus of Milo, he would be more apt to find it among the colored girls than among the white ones.

Mrs. McGuirk, that able and enthusiastic newspaper woman, knew Lizzie Borden some years ago. Both were associated in the fruit and flower mission at Fall River. Mrs. McGuirk believes Lizzie Borden could no more have murdered her father and stepmother than an angel could, and she has written a powerful letter to the New York Recorder in the accused girl's defense. She paints strongly the injustice of calling a woman a fiend simply because she does not "wave a tear stained handkerchief in public."

Let us pray to be lifted out of the commonplace up into the region of great ideas and great aspirations.

Arlo Bates tells a good story of a woman who, though she needed work and had no immediate prospect of it, refused to take an engagement at very low wages because of the effect it would have on the price for such work in general. It is a pity there were not more women like this. If there were then women's wages would not be so low. One is glad to be able to add that soon after her refusal to take the cheap place this admirable woman who stood up for her sex got a good paying place.

There is no disguising the fact that a long skirt does not look well on a bicycle. It mars the appearance of the prettiest girl, flapping about and flying up and down with every motion of the pedals. For this reason a woman never looks as graceful as a man on a bicycle. But women must not on that account give up the bicycle. They should get a dress more in harmony with the movement. This will be simply a gymnasium dress, as ordinarily worn, with rather full trousers, covering the knees, and blouse and short skirt all in one piece. Long leggings, reaching to the knees, should be worn. This or something near it is certainly the coming bicycle suit for women.

About once a year or so I think we newspaper women ought to publicly thank our friends, the city policemen, for their courtesy and helpfulness to our sex. There are, I know, bad and brutal policemen, but they are so few, and the rest are so courteous. Whenever in a city you are in doubt about a street or number, a shop, a train or anything else like that, ask a policeman. These blue coated big men are the modern edition of the ancient knights of chivalry who went abroad aiding fair ladies in distress.

LIGHT WORK FOR NYE.

The Genial Humorist Advertised for Employment for Work at Home, but With Poor Results.

The Letter Which He Received from a Washington Admirer Who Wants a Suitable Wife.

A Few Samples of Ladies Who Might Make a Prune Farmer's Life a Happy One.

FLETCHER P. O., N. C., October, 1892.

It has been such a long, restful summer here in the glades and canyons, the ferny moor and the breezy mesa of this most blessed land of recuperation, filled as it is with tonicity and a keen desire to cook and eat everything one can overtake, that shortly anterior to the writing of this letter a wild ambition seized upon me to engage in some light occupation between haying and harvest by which I could add more means to my little red savings bank at home and be in a position to purchase a pale green plush album for the glad yuletide.

LOOKING OVER THE MATRIMONIAL PAPER.

Looking over our home paper I found a column of advertisements offering employment at one's own home, and stating without equivocation that from $5 to $29.30 per day would be paid to willing and intelligent young men. I was willing—have always been so regarded—and intelligent—even ten years ago, with no advantages at all, I was intelligent—and so I wrote to a number of these men. They said that I could easily make from $500 to $800 per month without publicity, and some advertised to pay that amount any way.

These men lied.

Most of them said they would place a large fortune at the disposal of most any young man of good habits. My habits are good enough for me, and so I pencilled off a letter to ten or a dozen of these men who wanted to do good.

One man sent me a printed letter and pictures of a scroll saw with which I was to make $19 per day at my own house, and as I already had a piece in my scrapbook telling how to live on nine cents a week I felt sure that I could accumulate considerable means by Christmas, but I had to send to New York for designs—several of these were designs this man had on the public—and then I had to buy lumber. Then when I got at it there were days and days that I did not make over $18. I made a holly whatnot and tried to sell it, but all my near neighbors have all the whatnots—or what's not rather—that they require, and so I had to go some distance from home; but money was scarce, and so at last I had to exchange it for a night's lodging among the peasantry east of Potato hill.

Some of the propositions made me by these men were scandalous. Most of them lived in New York. One man wanted me to take hold of a sleight of hand outfit he had and sell it among the yeomanry of Buncombe county; also to handle a false moustache and a subscription book by a man who was his own worst enemy.

Two hundred dollars per week at your own home; light employment; no publicity. Fortunes made in a few years. Write for particulars. No capital required.

This was one of the advertisements that I answered, "inclosing $1 for instructions." I got a circular saying that the above wages would be paid to a good, active, conscientious man who would be willing to give massage treatment to plumbers who need artificial exercise. "Much suffering," said the circular, "is noted in the abodes of wealth among plumbers who will not take exercise. They are willing to pay almost any price rather than exert themselves. You can practically name your own figures."

One man wanted me to introduce a potato bug destroyer which "cost very little, never failed and required very little capital." Nine dollars would buy the prospectus and sample with instructions. Other farmers I find now have received the same thing. It consists of two Philadelphia pressed bricks—numbered one and two. The instructions say, "Place the bug on No. 1, and then by pressing on him with No. 2 death will in most cases ensue."

I hate people who will do that way to a total stranger.

* * * * * *

Fodder is mostly pulled now, and sweet potatoes in North Carolina have arrived at their maturity. The lightning bug now and then of a night glimmers painfully, and with an effort like Bug light in Boston harbor in a fog. His days are gliding swiftly by.

I often think how many of us there are like the lightning bug. In life's bright summer time we "joggle 'em up," as Dr. Pardee says, with a lavish hand, but when autumn comes where are we?

As each year goes slowly past the grand stand where our lives are being reviewed, we notice that we do not fly so high, and there is less glimmer under our wings. Looking back over my own past I see how hot headed I have been, and impulsive too.

That is the reason I was expelled from Yale. I was too impulsive. The president told me I could not keep up with my classes unless I burned more midnight oil, and none of the stores kept it there, and so I came away.

It was the same at Princeton. We had the same trouble over lights. Dr. McCosh said I talked too much through my hat. He then had me expelled. I should have been more careful and less fresh. I can see it now. Oh, how bitterly we bewail these lost opportunities when it is too late! If I had finished my theological course at Princeton, what might I not have been today? Possibly speaking to Phi Kappa Psi at the opera house in Jerusalem, or taking a buggy ride through Capurnium, or trolling for pickerel in the Sea of Galilee.

But let us not bewail the past. Bewailing the past commands less salary now under the McKinley law than most any other skilled labor.

* * * * * *

Yesterday I received the following letter from one of my many admirers in Washington:

VANCOUVER, Wash., Oct. 1.

Mr. Bill Nye, New York:

DEAR SIR—Can you tell me where I can get a good wife? Am a poor man with good prospects; have set out 3 1-5 acres of land in this (Clarke) county in prunes, which will bear in four years. I don't know much about farming, so I would like to get a good strong woman who understands the theory and practice of prune growing.

If you will help me I will buy one of your books. Write soon. Yours,

ROGER DAGGETT.

Here is a man who is in earnest, and should any bright eyed single person, who knows the habits of prunes and how to cultivate them, run across this letter, let her write to me inclosing photograph, and after a few months' correspondence I can tell whether she would be a suitable wife for him or not.

Prune growing in Oregon and Washington has grown to be immensely profitable, and as there are so many two dollar per day hotels in the United States with fruit on the bill of fare, which is dried prune sauce the year around, the prune crop has, as I may say, grown to be a terrific item. Prune pies also, when inclosing the seeds of the prune, are becoming popular at many boarding houses, especially at mountain health resorts. This pie is also, when vitrified, taking the place of the Belgian block in street paving—resisting wear, frost and sudden changes of temperature better than the latter.

Fill the pie full of prune juice mixed to the consistency of umbrella sap, adding seeds of the prune and peelings of same sufficient to sustain the great weight of the top crust of the pie. Now make a small opening in top of the pie so that the lava can ooze out over surface while pie is being kiln dried, and you have a glazed top and bottom to it which, if decorated with metallic colors in bright designs before baking, becomes highly ornamental when framed or used as tiles in mantels or ceilings. A prime pie glazed with maroon juice and with embossed porcelain figures in same, representing the discovery of America by Columbus and framed in fried cakes, was a very attractive feature at the "expo" here, celebrating the 100th anniversary of the first attempt to pave Patton avenue.

A good wife, Mr. Daggett, is not hard to get, I judge, after reading a few advertisements of same to be found in a Chicago matrimonial paper sent to me in a sealed envelope a few days ago, from which I copy:

No. 200,901—Petite blond, only seventeen years of age, good musician and good cook, well educated; would make some man a good wife. Will inherit $48,000, but would not object to farm life.

Here is a very desirable wife for a prune farmer. With such a wife, $48,000 and a prune farm of 3 1-5 acres under cultivation, one certainly ought to be free from care. Love, I think—true love, earnest, honest love—with prunes, $48,000 and salt rising bread three times a day, cannot be overestimated.

Here is another:

No. 3,215, North Dakota—I know my ideal is waiting for me somewhere. Should this meet his eye I hope he will write. I am a widow of forty-eight, 5 feet 4 inches, 136 pounds; brown hair, sprinkled with gray; blue eyes, good looking, tasty in dress, and now taking lessons on the melodeon.

Here is a good chance for a prune farmer who never knew a mother's love and care to acquire a wife and parental love at the same time. This ad. is genuine, and leads one to ask why a woman who should be looking around for a landscape gardener to decorate her grave should be paying out her shroud money for a six line advertisement to attract the attention of some tottering two legged jabberwak with billygoat whiskers like yourself.

Here is another:

No. 806,531, Indiana—I am considered a handsome brunette maiden, well educated, refined and entertaining, aged forty-three, 5 feet 5 inches, weight 175 pounds, of good family, first class standing socially, member of the Methodist church, have some means of my own, and would like to give my hand in marriage to a gent not over fifty-one or fifty-two who has no bad habits, no wife living, not over 210 pounds weight when in good condition, a Methodist, or willing to become one and be married in that church. A man with auburn hair parted on the right side preferred. Such a one who would be willing to pitch in and help me raise a slight mortgage of $2,000 and interest on the old homestead, and hold my head when trouble comes, would find a welcome shelter in these willing arms.

Four pages of these notices are in the paper before me, but I give only the most desirable. Some of the advertisers have means—all the way from a sewing machine or a milk cow up to $50,000. Some say they will marry any good, honorable man except a farmer; others bar the barber and the barkeeper. Most of them insist that there shall be no "double life" business, and seem prejudiced against pretty men. Some drop into poetry, like Silas Wegg. One says she is fond of art, literature, music, ice cream and corn in the ear. Another says, "Forty-seven years of age little widow four feet wide experience in all branches of housekeeping," etc.

A widow four feet wide might strike the prune farmer as a cunning little elf to hold on one's knee of an evening when the work was over and the tired prune culturist had ceased from his pruning.

Possibly, however, in the absence of punctuation we have misunderstood her, and her experience is four feet wide, or she may be four feet, with wide experience.

Another lady of Toronto, Canada, 6 feet 2 inches, with no relatives, desires to correspond with the treasurer of the national committee; would be willing to nurse him through a long fit of illness if wedded to him; does not use tobacco in any form; speaks French fluently and exclusively, having come here recently via the Scandia. She has all the chic and bonhomie of France, it seems, and can still read fine print.

She has also been fumigated and would make some man a good wife.

Perhaps some of our readers would like to know in what respect Chamberlain's cough remedy is better than any other. We will tell you. When this remedy is taken as soon as a cold has been contracted, and before it has been settled in the system, it will counteract the effect of the cold and greatly lessen it's severity, and it is the only remedy that will do this. It acts in perfect harmony with nature and aids nature in relieving the lungs, opening the secretions, liquefying the mucus and causing its expulsion from the air cells of the lungs and restoring the system to a strong and healthy condition. No other remedy in the market possesses these remarkable properties. No other will cure a cold so quickly. For sale by druggists.

Hon. Geo. R. Davis.

Director-General of the World's Fair says: "I regard Bethesda water the best in the market." As a remedy for the kidneys and urinary organs Bethesda never fails. Thousands of sufferers have been cured by Bethesda water, since the discovery of its medical qualities in 1858. It is put up in sealed half-gallon glass bottles, reaching the consumer in all its sparkling purity. Sold by druggists everywhere. S. F. Boyce, Duluth, general agent.

"I consider Chamberlain's Cough Remedy a specific for croup. It is very pleasant to take, which is one of the most important requisites where a cough remedy is intended for use among children. I have known of cases of croup where I know the life of a little one was saved by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy." J. J. "During my term of service in the army I contracted chronic diarrhœa," says A. E. Bending, of Halsey, Oregon. "Since then I have used a great amount of medicine, but when I found any that would give me relief they would injure my stomach, until Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy was brought to my notice. I used it and will say it is the only remedy that gave me permanent relief and no bad results follow." For sale by druggists.

WORDS OF PRAISE

From Clergymen Who Warmly Indorsed Dr. Copeland and His Associates.

Statements That Come From Men Whose Calling Bespeaks Their Truth and Sincerity.

There is nothing more convincing than the direct personal testimony of people who can have no interest in saying aught but what is wholly and exactly true.

The man or set of men who can come before the public backed with the indorsement of persons who are known and respected in the community in which they live, whose veracity or whose motives cannot be impeached or impugned, have but to produce these indorsements to show the confidence and esteem with which they are regarded by those who know them.

Week after week Drs. Copeland, Hunt and Drenning present to the people of Duluth testimonials in their favor of such high character as to not only leave no doubt of their professional skill and ability, but of their personal worth and standing.

As a rule they rest their case with the presentation of this evidence. It speaks for itself and is irrefutable and unassailable.

There is a prejudice against physicians who advertise which is sometimes very difficult to remove. But after the public has tested such physicians, after the physicians have proved their claims to public confidence and esteem, this prejudice vanishes like mist before the morning sun.

There is no class of men more worthy of belief than ministers of the gospel. Clergymen will not indorse a man or a system that is unworthy of indorsement. The calling of such gentlemen speaks at once for their truth and sincerity. Clergymen all over the United States have indorsed the Copeland system and the good work of Dr. Copeland and his associates.

The Copeland Medical institute points proudly to words of praise that have been spoken by members of the cloth, and who have publicly given their testimonials, so that all those who are in doubt as to the character, the abliity or the trustworthiness of the physicians of the Copeland Medical institute can refer to them for an indorsement.

Among the ministers who have given hearty testimonials are the following:

Rev. Henry C. Nott, German Reformed church, 495 Fourth street, Milwaukee.

Rev. J. W. Ashwood, Grand Avenue United Presbyterian church, St. Louis.

Rev. J. W. Mitchell, Taylor street Methodist Episcopal church, Newport, Ky.

Rev. D. Storer, Methodist Episcopal church, Alexandria, O.

Rev. E. W. Williamson, Methodist Episcopal church, Mount Orab, O.

Rev. W. L. Stahl, Christian church, Beatrice, Neb.

Rev. Mr. Hodgman, Emanuel Presbyterian church, Rochester, N. Y.

Rev. L. Goldman, Baptist church, Rochester, N. Y.

Rev. H. G. Matthews, First Baptist church, Shirley, Mass.

Rev. Chr. Staebler, First Church Evangelical association, Buffalo, N. Y.

Rev. C. A. Place, Blue Island Methodist Episcopal church, Chicago, Ill.

Nothing but a benevolent reason could induce such men to appear in print outside of their regular vocation, and it is beyond question that it was simply benevolence, a conscientious belief in the skill of these physicians, a conviction that they were doing good and that the public should know what they are accomplishing, that caused these gentlemen to make their statements.

AN EXPLORER AND LUMBERMAN,

Who is well known in Duluth Tells What the Copeland Medical Institute Did for Him.

Mr. B. P. Bishop is a well known lumberman and explorer. He has been in the business for twenty-five years and was one of the first settlers in Duluth. He now resides at Fond du Lac, Minn., and has a well-earned reputation for truth and veracity throughout the entire Northwest. This statement regarding his experience with the Copeland Medical institute will be read with interest by his numerous friends.

"I have had catarrh for four years," said Mr. Bishop, "and it has been growing worse ever since it commenced," he continued. "For the last year my life has been wretched. My nose was stopped up. My throat would get so sore I could scarcely swallow. Mucus kept constantly dropping into my throat, and I was always hawking and spitting up phlegm. This got so bad that I was ashamed to go into society or even to converse with anyone as my remarks would be constantly punctuated by vigorous expectorations in my endeavors to clear my throat of the mucus which collected there.

"I didn't rest well at night and when I would awake in the morning I would feel all tired out and have a feeling of nausea. My appetite was fairly good but if I ate anything my stomach would not retain the food but I would be compelled to vomit up all I had eaten.

"Every morning for the past year I vomited as surely as morning came and often I would vomit at night. I did not dare to drink so much as a cup of coffee, for it was no sooner down than it would come up again.

"I used all kinds of remedies that I saw advertised and those that physicians advised me to take without being benefited, until I was treated by the physicians of the Copeland Medical institute. The result was beyond my most sanguine expectations.

"I can eat all I have a mind to now and my stomach feels all right. I sleep well, feel refreshed and vigorous. My headaches and all the other disagreeable symptoms have vanished and I feel as well as I ever did in my life. I recommend all suffering as I did to try the physicians of the Copeland Medical institute."

NASAL POLYPI.

The annoying and Painful Affliction Described by a Victim.

(Nasal polypi are tumors that grow in the nasal cavities. They obstruct the passage of air through the nose, swell up in damp weather, give rise to frontal headaches, fits of sneezing and coughing, to asthma, facial neuralgia and pains in the neck and chest; they destroy the senses of smell, taste and hearing. The breath becomes fetid, the margins of the nostrils raw and excoriated, the eyes grow watery and the voice acquires a nasal tone.)

"I had tumors growing in my nose," said Mr. Thomas Barks, who resides at 17 Second avenue east, to the writer recently. "They had been growing there a long time," he continued; "how long I could not say. About a year ago I found that I could not breath through my nose and I commenced to feel very bad. I had a dull oppressed feeling in my head, just as though there was an iron band about it.

MR. THOMAS BARKS, 17 SECOND AVE. E.

"My nose was always discharging a thin sticky fluid, even at night I would have to put my handkerchief under my nose on the pillow to catch the drip from it.

"I was compelled to breathe through my mouth and my throat was inflamed and sore. At night I was awakened by an accumulation of phlegm in my throat which would choke me. In the morning I was all tired out, just as though I had not slept at all during the night. My tongue and teeth were coated with slime; I would be compelled to spend some time in hawking and raising to clear my throat. My appetite grew poor. My sense of taste and smell became bad. There were ringing noises in my ears, and I did not hear as well as formerly.

"My voice sounded as though I was talking through my nose, and I noticed that my nostrils were getting thick and puffed out on the sides.

"I went to a doctor and he charged me so much that I could not afford to let him treat me long, as I am a poor man and have to work hard for my living. Then I read about the Copeland Medical Institute and I went to their office.

"Dr. Drenning examined me carefully and told me that the passage of my nose was all stopped with little tumors or lumps of flesh, which he said came from neglected catarrh. Well, to make a long story short, the doctor didn't ask me how much money I had and then take it all, but he went to work as delicately and gently as could be, and he took those little lumps out of my nose one by one until he had taken twelve tumors out about the size of a bird's egg, and he didn't hurt me at all.

"When the doctor was through I found that I could breathe through my nose for the first time in over a year. Then he treated my catarrh and now I eat well, sleep well, and best of all, I feel well and strong as I ever did in my life.

"I want to say in conclusion that the physicians of Copeland Medical Institute did not charge me any more for restoring my health than the other doctor did for one visit I paid him."

$5 A MONTH.

Treatment by Mail.

To the Public: The system of mail treatment pursued by Drs. Copeland, Hunt and Drenning guarantees the same effective results to those who desire to submit their cases through correspondence as to those who come in person. Their "question blank," if properly filled out, will diagnose your case in a thorough way, and, as medicines are promptly shipped, those living out of the city have the same advantage as those who come to the office.

Write for the treatment by mail, medicine free, and rid yourself of the most painful and annoying disease in the catalogue of human ills.

NOTABLE CREDENTIALS.

The location of the offices of the Copeland Medical Institute in the city of Duluth is a permanent one. Their leases and contracts are for a term of years.

Dr. Copeland is a graduate of the Bellevue Hospital Medical College of New York city; was president of his class in that famous institution, and, after thorough hospital training and experience, devoted his entire time and attention to the special lines of practice named below. Passed through a similar course, Dr. Hunt and Dr. Drenning also devote themselves exclusively to the treatment of these specialties. Years of experience in their special lines, preceded by extensive hospital work, have fitted them in a notable degree for the practice of their profession.

ATTRACTIONS SCARCE.

Barring Political Meetings, Both Playhouses will be in Utter Darkness the Coming Week.

The Separation of Drew and Daly Has Resulted in Drew Having the Better of It.

Criticism of "The Masked Ball" and "Little Miss Million" as Produced in New York.

Both theaters will be dark next week as far as theatrical attractions are concerned and the theater goers will have to give way to the political enthusiasts. The Temple will be occupied three nights by political meetings. On Thursday evening the Republicans will have the house, on Friday the Democrats for Mills of Texas, Lawler and others and on Saturday evening, Gen. Weaver will promulgate People's party doctrine.

Manager Condon, of the Temple, has closed a lease of the LaCrosse opera house which gives him a week's circuit and ensures the booking of some good attractions. He has besides his Duluth and Superior houses, the Madison, LaCrosse, and Eau Claire houses.

DREW AND DALY PART.

How Each Seems to Get Along Without the Other.

JOHN DREW is unquestionably the greatest farceur on the American stage. This statement may seem superfluous, for the reason that most persons have so regarded him for many years. But there was also a much larger contingent which insisted that John Drew's accurate work and pleasing results were due in a greater measure to the magnificent setting he received as a member of Daly's company than to any transcendent ability of his own. Therefore when he branched out as the principal attraction in a company organized by Charles Frohman thousands of Mr. Drew's friends had serious misgivings as to the outcome of the experiment.

The vehicle selected for the exploitation of Mr. Drew's remarkable abilities was "The Masked Ball," a farce with a motif as light as down and a plot as volatile as ether. The play was adapted by Clyde Fitch, author of "Beau Brummell" and "Frederick Le Maltre," from the French of Bisson and Carre, who seem just now to be the only authors from whose works Mr. Charles Frohman cares to have drawn the airy nothings like "Settled Out of Court," "The Family Circle" and others of that ilk with which he is in my opinion surfeiting the public.

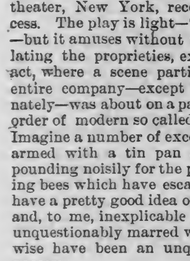
But "The Masked Ball," as presented by John Drew and company at Palmer's theater, New York, recently, was a success. The play is light—"feathery" in fact—but it amuses without too seriously violating the proprieties, except in the last act, where a scene participated in by the entire company—except Mr. Drew fortunately—was about on a par with the lowest order of modern so called "farce comedy." Imagine a number of excellent actors, each armed with a tin pan and large spoon, pounding noisily for the purpose of swarming bees which have escaped, and you will have a pretty good idea of this remarkable and, to me, inexplicable horseplay, which unquestionably marred what would otherwise have been an unqualified dramatic success.

I have heard the hope freely expressed that Mr. Frohman may soon supply Mr. Drew with a play in which he will have greater opportunity to display his undouted versatility than in "The Masked Ball." As a farceur, pure and simple, Mr. Drew does lead, but Mr. Joseph Holland is so nearly his equal that it requires an experienced judge to decide between them. But test these two excellent actors in a dozen characters, embodying every line of dramatic work, and Mr. Holland will sink into Lilliputian nothingness beside the Brobdingnagian immensity of John Drew.

I had imagined that Mr. Drew's acting, now that he is free from the leading strings of that able manager, but ridiculous martinet, Augustin Daly, would have taken on added dash and vigor, but this has not been the case. The same impression of reserve force and quiet dignity under the most hilariously trying circumstances still characterizes Mr. Drew's work. Another point and a most important one in favor of the probability of success of the latest stellar addition to the dramatic firmament is that despite the ovations which he has up to this time received at every performance at Palmer's theater he has not appeared to have acquired what is known in the vernacular as "big head." He is as thoroughly natural as ever. He plays for the audience, not to it. And for this commendable but unusual practice Mr. Drew is entitled to the fullest measure of credit.

From John Drew to Daly's company, just across the street, is but a step, and after the brilliant success of the one I was prepared for a dazzling hit on the part of the other.

To say that I was disappointed, however, but mildly expresses it. "Little Miss Million" was the play on the opening night. It is one of Mr. Daly's numerous adaptations from the German, and perhaps his worst. The first act is tame, talky and totally tiresome. The second act is mildly sedative. The third act suggests fun, and the fourth act furnishes it—in limited quantity. The plot is as nearly as possible nothing. It begins very close to nowhere, and traveling aimlessly about on a tortuous course lands at the starting point. An appropriate title for the play, if it were not for the obstacle interposed by the copyright law, would be "Nobody, of Nowhere."



SCENE FROM "THE MASKED BALL."

"Little Miss Million" would probably enjoy a run of about "one consecutive" night if done at any other theater but Daly's and by a less competent company. With all of its present gilt edge surroundings even, my judgment is very much at fault if this latest specimen of strained effort to convince people that they ought to laugh shall have more than an ephemeral career in New York, where the Daly-olaters are most numerous.

Of the company little need be said. Mr. James Lewis does a breezy and improvident man of the world with his accustomed fetching nonchalance, and with Miss Adelaide Prince as a truly good but worldly wise widow divided the honors of the evening. Miss Prince has shown marked improvement, and in "Little Miss Million" so completely eclipsed Miss Ada Rehan as to make that lady appear almost ridiculous. Miss Rehan enacted the part of a hoydenish schoolgirl. Her height—she towered almost a full head above her papa (Mr. Lewis)—and her avoirdupois are insuperable barriers in the way of the successful accomplishment of the task imposed upon her by Mr. Daly.

But what made the occasion, as far as Miss Rehan was concerned, inexpressibly sad were her stupid and abortive efforts to be kittenish. Miss Rehan looked as though she might easily be the mother of the character which she attempted to portray, and in the relentless desire to appear ingenuous and "soubrettish" she makes her first entrance, having just come from college, after a long ride on the railway train, in a white satin affair so draped as to conceal as much as possible the always in evidence amplitude of figure. "Little Miss Million" was disappointing. Miss Ada Rehan as a wild young schoolgirl, who is addressed as "little" (!!) by her aunt, is depressing in the extreme. There was many a sigh of regret that this sterling actress, whose abilities are as undisputed as the brightness of the sun, should have been deluded or forced into accepting a part more suited to a fifty dollar a week ingenue.

Naturally Mr. Arthur Bourchier, who is to take Mr. John Drew's place, as nearly as any one can do that, was closely watched. He appears to be an actor of considerable force and more than ordinary ability. He is conscientious and natural to a degree, and in personal appearance, barring a somewhat blase look, is all that can be desired, being tall and rather handsome, with expressive eyes and mobile features. But as John Drew's successor and measured by that standard, he is as Mercury to the sun, as a tallow dip to a 1,500-candle power electric light. There are lots of good actors in the world and many who would be thoroughly at home on the classic boards of Daly's theater, but there are few—very few—who possess the spontaneity, personal magnetism, naturalness and versatility of John Drew. Mr. Daly, I think, realizes this to a greater extent just now than any man in the world. Koko's song in "The Mikado" will not apply in the case of John Drew, for he is not on the (Daly) list, and he always will be missed.

At the Amphion theater in Brooklyn a few nights ago "Love's Young Dream" was produced as a curtain raiser to "The Family Circle." "Love's Young Dream" is a dramatization of Charles Dickens' "Boots at Holly Tree Inn."

This production was of interest because it tended to settle the question of Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's ability as a dramatist, as "Love's Young Dream" is from her pen. When that talented lady wrote the play "Little Lord Fauntleroy," which was one of the most valuable pieces of dramatic property ever seen in America, there were so many glaring defects of construction and such unmistakable evidences of the novice that most of the critics attributed the play's wonderful success to the accident of having catered to a popular dramatic appetite which demanded a certain thing without caring whether it was skillfully produced or not.

It was freely predicted that Mrs. Burnett would never write another "money winner." When nonsuccess attended her next effort in London the opinion of the croakers seemed to be confirmed. But "Love's Young Dream" has overruled the former verdict, for it is one of the most delicately constructed curtain raisers in existence. The atmosphere of purity and innocence which pervades it makes it a rare dramatic gem, and the deftness with which the subject is handled and the quiet, refined situations are developed stamps Mrs. Burnett as a playwright of a high order of merit. It is rumored that she will soon present a serious four act comedy, and its appearance will be looked forward to with great interest by lovers of the drama.

In "Love's Young Dream" Wallie Edinger, one of the best of the child actors, repeated his triumph in "The Soudan," and Ethel Black, a charming little tot of less than six summers, gave evidence of a really high order of dramatic ability. Her intonation would be creditable in an experienced player, and her self possession is little short of marvelous.

At the Star theater the "king of comedy," Joseph Jefferson, has revived Dion Boucicault's version of "Rip Van Winkle," the play which first made him really famous. It is unnecessary to add that the revival was a marked success, and as the season will be a comparatively brief one, owing to the later bookings at the Star, the advance sale of seats has been enormous. It really does seem as though the late lamented W. J. Florence must have been inspired when he said ten years ago, "Joe Jefferson will never get old."

Very Interesting History of Husband and Wife.

Both Have Had a Very Sad and Serious Experience.

But all is Joy and Brightness in Their Home Now.

Never to our knowledge has the old adage of a silver lining to every cloud been so wonderfully exemplified as in the home of Mr. James Meehan and his excellent wife Mary.

The facts in the case are so remarkable that we will give the whole matter in the exact words of the persons interested. It seems that Mr. Meehan, who resides at 57 Granite street, Quincy, Mass., was the first to be suddenly taken sick.

"I was taken sick with liver disease and ulceration of the bowels," he says. "My heart was also affected. I was confined to my bed three months.

"A consultation of physicians was held and I was pronounced incurable.

MR. JAMES MEEHAN.

"After that I stopped taking their remedies and began the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy.

"Previous to this I could not sleep, my nerves were excitable and spasmodic, my stomach would not bear food, vomiting almost constantly. Soon after beginning this remedy I could sleep better, and my stomach would bear light food.

"I continued to gain until I could get out. I now work all the time, and feel that Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy saved my life."

It is needless to say that his faithful wife Mary Meehan was profoundly thankful for the unexpected recovery of her husband to health and strength through the wonderful curative virtues of this great medicine, but even in the midst of her great joy, she herself was prostrated by an alarming attack of rheumatism.

"It is only just, and may be of great service to the afflicted," she says, "that I should state publicly my serious trouble and how I was cured.

MRS. MARY MEEHAN.

"I was sorely afflicted with rheumatism for more than six months, and it seemed to effect my whole system, pains and stiffness of muscles and joints to which was added the more acute pains of sciatica.

"It was with the greatest difficulty I could keep about my house. I tried many remedies without relief. Having in mind the great benefit my husband received from the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, I concluded to resort to it. To my great joy it was completely successful and by the use of only three bottles I was entirely cured, and my health has been perfect since."

There is no mistake about it, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is a wonderful medicine and effects some most remarkable and surprising cures. Every sufferer from disease should try it, for the chances are that it will just hit the trouble and restore the long sought health. All druggists keep it for $1 and it is purely vegetable and harmless to use. It is the prescription and discovery of the great specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, Dr. Greene, of 35 W. Fourteenth street, New York, who can in all cases be consulted free, either if you call or write him a description of your disease.

The Congregational Council Declares That the Negroes in the South Should be Allowed to Vote.

In Addition to Having the Right to Vote They Should Have Their Votes Counted.

The Question of Planting Churches in Smaller Places Where There is a Limited Population.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 17.—The devotional exercises of the Congregational council this morning were of special interest. In the prayers there was much praise for the work of the churches, for the large influence of the council and for the possibilities of the cause in which the speakers were enlisted. The hospitality of Minneapolis in caring for the council so handsomely was recognized. A resolution in regard to the colored people was introduced and adopted as follows:

"The national council of the Congregational council recognize with gratitude the splendid advances made by the negro race in the South in the accumulation of property, the advancement of education and morals, in the face of obstacles that might well have daunted a less hopeful and devout people; also the awakening conscience and growing interest by the better class of citizens in their civil and political life, but we deplore the continuance of the lawless spirit and acts of violence in many parts of the South of which they are the direct victims; a condition of society that at once hinders the work of our educational and religious societies for the elevation of this suffering race, and menaces the very foundations of our national existence. We therefore declare our sympathy with and give our earnest support to the oppressed of every race and class who are suffering in the struggle to assert their rights under the federal constitution; we also declare that our religious faith and political principles require that every citizen shall enjoy the protection of just laws, framed in accordance with the spirit of the federal constitution, and that they shall have the right to cast a full ballot and have that ballot counted as cast, without distinction of race."

The question of the planting of churches in the smaller places in which there may not be enough people to warrant the introduction of more churches was again brought up, and a resolution introduced by Dr. Sturtevant and adopted along the same line as the report already presented. A report was presented from Minnesota showing how the work progresses in this state. Out of fifty-eight churches in the state, fifty-three were organized in communities where there was no other church, leaving only five in competition with other churches.

There was a discussion over a proposed change in the program hereafter, to include more papers and less business, not to the exclusion of needed business, but to the injection of more live papers on topics of current interest which could be discussed. Dr. Bradford's motion that hereafter there should be one session in each day devoted to hearing of papers on the great questions of the hour was finally adopted.

The council will hold its next meeting in San Francisco in October, 1892.

GROVER HAS DECLINED.

Will Not Go to Chicago Because Harrison Cannot Go.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—Ex-President Cleveland will not participate in the Columbian dedicatory ceremonies this week. In a letter received by the committee on ceremonies from him today Mr. Cleveland declines the invitation which the exposition officials had sent him to take part in the festivities, giving as a reason that he did not wish to gain any political advantage over an opponent who is detained by so sad a circumstance as that which keeps President Harrison from attending the exercises.

"I may be over sensitive and even morbid on the subject," reads the letter, "but I cannot allow myself to take political advantage of the opportunity afforded in the sad sickness that keeps President Harrison from Chicago."

UNITED STATES COURT.

One Case Reaches the Jury and Two More Are Taken Up.

In the United States court before Judge Nelson the case of Karl J. Danielson vs. the Northwestern Fuel company, was taken up at the opening of the morning session and reached the jury a little before the noon adjournment. A special venire for six jurors was issued and the work of obtaining a jury to try the two cases of Abel Klawn as administrator vs. the Chandler Iron company, was commenced. There are two actions, one demanding $10,000 damages and the other $5000 for the injury and death of Abraham Klawn, who was killed while working in a drift in the Chandler mine. They are being tried as one case by consent of the interested parties.

In Democrats' Favor.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—The United States supreme court has affirmed the ruling of the Michigan state court in the case involving the constitutionality of the Minor election law. This decision is in favor of the Democrats.

Dropped Dead.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 17.—James H. Coleman, advertising agent for the Boston Globe, dropped dead of heart disease on the corner of School and Washington streets at 9:30 this morning.

FIVE PERSONS INJURED.

Toughs Attack a Detachment of the Salvation Army.

WYANDOTTE, Mich., Oct. 17.—In a free fight here last evening between a Salvation army detachment and a gang of roughs, five persons were seriously injured, one of them fatally. The injured are:

Carrie Lowe, lieutenant, cut on head and probably fatally hurt; Frank Hutchins, a bystander, cut on head; Henry Griffith, Salvation army member, stabbed in the thigh; Joseph Peoples, Salvation army, broken arm and cut on head; Tillie Gracey, an onlooker, face badly cut.

For a long time there has been an ill feeling between the tough element and the Salvationists. As the army was marching along with band playing and banners waving, some one threw a brick at Lieut. Lowe, felling her to the earth. This was the signal for a general attack and bricks, stones, clubs and knives were freely used on the panic-stricken army.

The latter made no attempt at defense and scattered as fast as possible. No arrests have been made.

ACCUSED OF FORGERY.

A Woman Arrested for Swindling a Consul General.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Bertha Krunstadt, the housekeeper and pretended daughter of Domingo L. Ruiz, the consul general of Equador, who is accused of forgery, was this morning arraigned in the Jefferson Market police court and remanded until Wednesday for examination.

Ruiz is still in jail for lack of $2,000 bail, but it is expected that he will be able to obtain bonds during the day. Both Ruiz and the woman claim that they are victims of a conspiracy.

THREE DARING TRAMPS.

Robbed a Milkman in Broad Daylight But Were Pursued.

PORT JERVIS, N. Y., Oct. 17.—This morning three unknown tramps assaulted a milkman named Ephraim Shay from Sussex county, N. J., and robbed him of $200. The daring assault on a prominent street in broad daylight attracted a crowd and the tramps were pursued to the Delaware river.

One of the tramps were shot dead and the others were wounded, but they succeeded in swimming the river to a small island where they now are. The island has been surronnded by citizens in boats and the tramps will be captured.

Mr. Blaine's Movements.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 17.—Mr. Blaine left here at 11:15 for New York, where he will meet Mrs. Blaine this afternoon. He said he was sorry that he could not stay here longer. He said he felt stronger than at any time since his arrival at the farm, and his looks confirmed this statement. It is now understood that he will not leave for Washington until the middle of the weed.

To Reduce Absenteetsm.

PARIS, Oct. 17.—Several deputies have resolved to support in the chamber a measure fining absent members ten francs a day, the amount of the fine to be deducted from their official salary. The measure is intended to reduce the absenteeism to a minimum from which the chamber has suffered serious embarrassment frequently in recent years.

SIXTH ANNUAL DONATION.

Tomorrow Gifts for St. Luke's Hospital Will be Received.

Tomorrow will be the sixth annual donation day for St. Luke's hospital, and there will no doubt be a generous response from the public for this deserving institution. In making the usual appeal, the board of managers says:

"We have expended over $1600 in the past two years in improving our facilities for work and enlarging our sphere of influence, and we trust that generous friends will send us more than this amount to enable us to go on with this work. We spend every cent we receive for the care of the sick, and so must appeal to our friends for improvements and repairs.

"By mutual agreement at the commencement of its work, the hospital was placed under the care of a board of managers selected from one of the congregations in the city, which, in assuming the responsibility, did so solely as trustees for the whole population. We are prepared to carry on the work, ministering to all who come irrespective of nationality or religious conviction, knowing well that those who aid in any way in caring for the sick and needy are ministering to the Master himself.

"We ask for generous gifts of groceries, provisions, orders for fuel or groceries, delicacies suitable for convalescents and money, all of which will be carefully used. Send packages to the hospital, corner Fourth street and Second avenue east. Prompt acknowledgment will be made of all gifts accompanied by name and address. We hope for many, very many, gifts of money to enable us to go on free from anxiety as to the amount expended in improving our facilities for work. Send all money to Wm. M. Prindle, 216 West Superior street."

Death of Jessie Stocking.

The death of Miss Jessie Stocking, daughter of Rev. Dr. Stocking is a particularly sad one and the bereaved relatives have the sympathy of a host of friends. She was taken ill only a few days ago with that dreaded disease diptheria and died yesterday morning at 5:30. The interment was private at 4 o'clock in the afternoon of the same day at Forest Hill. Miss Stocking was 16 years and 8 months old and was a particularly bright and interesting girl.

Rained Down.

Persons who wear eyes, will be pleased to learn that J. H. Ostrander the expert optician has rained down and may be found at the usual place Day's jewelery store. Mr. Ostrander is too well known to the Duluth public to need comment.

ACCUSED OF HERESY.

Charges Are Preferred by the Cincinnati Presbytery Against Prof. H. P. Smith, of Lane Seminary.

The Report Was Presented by Dr. McKibben at the Opening of the Presbytery This Morning.

Belief Expressed That Prof. Smith Will End the Agitation by Withdrawing From the Church.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 17.—The Cincinnati Presbytery met in adjourned session at the First Presbyterian church at 9:30 this morning to prefer charges against Prof. H. P. Smith, of Lane seminary, who is accused of teaching heretical doctrines. Among the first persons to put in appearance was Rev. Dr. Montfort, editor of the Herald and Presbytery, who in conversation expressed the belief that Prof. Smith would end the present agitation by withdrawing from the church, and that he had better be permitted to depart in peace than to remain and teach doctrines at variance with the established tenets of the church. He was opposed, however, to any turbulent action in the matter.

Dr. John P. Scott, of Lebanon, was chosen moderator. Rev. Thomas O. Lowe, Elder D. H. Shields and Dr. McKibben are members of the committee appointed to investigate the charges against Dr, Smith.

The reading of the report began at 11:45 by Dr. McKibben. It was divided iuto three parts. charges, specifications, and proofs, the last named division consisting chiefly of extracts from those pamphlets published by Prof. Smith and articles written by him, which appeared from time to time in the New York Evangelist.

The reading of the report consumed one hour and fifteen minutes. The citation is returnable Nov. 14.

NINTH ANNUAL CONFERENCE.

Women's Foreign Missionary Society in Session at the M. E. Church.

The ninth annual meeting of the Minneapolis branch of the Women's Foreign Missionary society of the M. E. church, which commenced Saturday, while greatly saddened yesterday by the bereavement of Dr. Stocking, continued its session at the First M. E. church this morning.

The day was opened with devotional services, enrollment of delegates and appointment of committees. Mrs. Winship, of Winnebago City, and Mrs. C. W. Hall, of Minneapolis, were designated as the committee on enrollment, while Miss Mary Holstein, of Winona, secured the chairmanship of the committee on resolutions. Next came the president's annual address, telling what woman has done in the world and holding out encouragement to the members of this society to go on in their endeavors to spread the gospel.

The committee on missionary candidates reported through Mrs. C. S. Winchell the acceptance of three young ladies for the foreign field—Misses Emma Ferris, Eva Foster and Sue Harrington. The last two are now on their way, sailing from Vancouver yesterday. The branch ordered a letter sent to these ladies to meet them on their arrival in the Occident.

The treasurer's report showed that the different conferences contributed as follows the past year: Minnesota conference, $5509.75; South Dakota conference, $991.94; North Dakota conference, $197.15; Columbia River conference, $601.40; Oregon conference, $1599.48; Puget Sound conference, $798.76; Mountain Mission conference, $215.05; Idaho conference, $71.75; North German conference, $1095.44; a total of $11,080.45. Enough receipts were obtained from other sources to bring the grand total up to $11,195.71. For the foreign field $11,410 were disbursed and for the home field $625. Mrs. Zimmerman reported a most flattering increase from the North German conference.

About sixty are in attendance, among them being Rev. Mr. Munson, a missionary in Singapore, and Miss Hewett from the field in Japan. The session closes tomorrow afternoon.

The Special Term.

In the special term this morning, before Judge Stearns and Ensign, the cases of John Helmer vs. C. L. White & Co., and C. L. Morgan vs. D. L. Morgan & Co. were continued. The action of Frank Blackmar vs. O. S. Langellier was stricken from the calendar. The cases of the Northern Pacific railway vs. the Duluth Transfer railway, and the Duluth Transfer railway vs. John C. Hunter et al., were heard and submitted. In C. Van vs. John Le Claire the order asked for was made by consent. Judgment against the defendant for the amount acknowledged in the answer was rendered in the case of the Eastwood Wire Manufacturing comyany vs. the Atlas Iron and Brass Works. There are a large number of cases yet to be heard.

WERE DISAPPOINTED.

Judge Searle's Friends Expected Something a Great Deal Better Than They Got at the Temple Saturday.

An Embarrassed and Laborious Effort Which Quickly Emptied the House and Really Hurt the Judge.

Knute Nelson Delivered a Good Speech and Made an Excellent Impression Upon Duluthians.

The Temple opera house was crowded from top to bottom Saturday night to listen to the array of Republican talent that had been advertised to entertain and instruct the multitude. Col. C. H. Graves, the chairman of the evening, introduced Hon. Knute Nelson, Republican candidate for governor, as the first speaker.

Mr. Nelson expressed pleasure in meeting a Duluth audience, assured his hearers that the whole state is in line for the Republican ticket and illustrated how this city has, within the past two years, gained the respect and admiration of the whole country as well as the statesmen and politicians at Washington.

The creditable record of the Republican party was contrasted with the uncertain policies of the Democratic party. After expressing his views on the money question, Mr. Nelson tackled the tariff and attacked the record of the Democrats on that question. The St. Paul Globe was neatly skinned and hung up for the buzzards because of its springing the race issue against him in the same manner that the Democrats do against the negro in the South. American tin and the McKinley bill came in for a good measure of praise. So many lies have been told about that bill by the Democrats, stated Mr. Nelson, that those who have told them don't and cannot believe them.

KNUTE NELSON.

It had been arranged that Judge D. B. Searle would speak next, but the judge was still in travail with his West Duluth speech so the audience had to wait half an hour. Dr. Fred Barrett filled in the time and successfully amused the audience.

Just then Judge Searle arrived, Dr. Barrett hastily sat down in silence, and the Republican Flambeau club got up with hysterical clamor and attempted to cheer for Judge Searle but like the robins who attempted to sing before the slush ice went out—"The music friz in their throats." The judge was then introduced to the crowded house by the chairman. The would-be but not to be congressman advanced to the front of the stage with one hand grasping his his hungry political stomach while with the other he beckoned for the attention of the crowd that had come out to see what manner of man he was. After a few words of greeting, very nicely spoken as a result of long practice, the judge then, despite the fact that it was nearly 10:30, commenced to turn the crank to grind out his speech on the issues of the day. That was the straw that broke the camel's back. A stream of humanity commenced to slide out of the gallery and down the stairs. That part of the house soon looked like a cholera swept city. Then one good old Republican wheel horse after another, took a look at the Baldwin badge in his campaign hat and then quietly navigated for the front door. The stream kept going, quietly and steadily. Some of the fellows with red pants even slid out and soon the judge was practically talking to empty chairs. Opera chairs cannot vote, so the judge sat down and the janitor turned off the lights. The speech delivered was lame and disjointed and sadly disappointed his friends.

CATHOLICS AND THE SCHOOLS.

Bishop McGolrick Refers to the Attempt to Create an Ill Feeling.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I write to thank you for your very excellent editorial in Friday evening's edition, on the discourse of Rev. L. H. Morey in reference to Catholics and the public schools. It is becoming daily more manifest that a widespread attempt is in progress to raise up a new Know-Nothing movement in this free land of ours. The "odium theologicum," that worst of all hatreds, has, within the last few months, inspired certain ministers of religion to make loud-mouthed and venomous attacks on Catholicity.

Here and there some "newly-formed" citizens—many of them from certain portions of Canada; some from Ireland and England—have taken upon themselves the grave duty of defending American institutions from certain fancied dangers. Not content with describing Catholics in the most outrageous terms as idolaters and superstitious, etc., they resort to a secret organization with the express purpose of depriving every Catholic of public office, even threatening with their opposition all who aid Catholics to obtain office.

Of the many millions of Catholics in this country, it may be said, they are so interwined with non-Catholics in partnerships, marriages, associations, politics and education, that it would be a herculean task, indeed, to drive them all out of office. Many of them came to this country in the days of our very great grandfathers and they don't want to leave it now. To force all Catholics to deny their religion, to make them Presbyterians or Baptists, is well nigh impossible. To burn down their churches hospitals and asylums, would only set Catholics to the old work of building up again. Besides, in a country which proclaims freedom throughout the world to, begin at this late day shutting out Catholics from office, and otherwise degrading them appears to be a very long step backward, and the American motto points not in that direction.

In the history of this country, I notice with pleasure, that every general attack on the Catholic church, has brought to the front defenders, who for pure love of truth, asserted her rights, even though they were not her children. Under the name of the beautiful word "Liberty," these new apostles of hate would fain enslave a large number of their fellow men. To them making great outcry that the church is opposed to freedom of opinion and that thought is crushed, etc., we answer: In God's name, if there be any sublime message to the human race in any man's soul let us not burst in ignorance, but give it forth to an expectant world. Yet, we venture to foretell that when the message comes, it usually amounts to this, that a crooked line is the shortest distance between two points.

As one long acquainted with Archbishop Ireland, I here declare that he made an honest effort to bring citizens of all creeds to a better understanding and to a closer union, but prejudice has done its worst to neutralize that effort and to present it as a cunning attempt to Romanize our institutions. It may be said that this is after all but the testimony of one bishop of the Roman church to another. Let me declare for him, as I do for myself, that I hate with my whole soul, all low cunning and treachery, all crafty and underhand design, that I love our free institutions and have only words of praise for every effort towards union and charity, which is the bond of union. Such words as you have written, Mr. Editor, cannot but give hope in the honest and outspoken action of American laymen.

JAMES MCGOLRICK,
Bishop of Duluth.

Duluth, Oct. 15, 1892.

THE FARIBAULT PLAN.

Prof. Kiehle Attests the Sincerity of Archbishop Ireland.

State Superintendent of Schools Kiehle made an address before the Presbyterian synod on Saturday afternoon in reference to the Faribault plan that were received with hearty applause. His remarks were virtually in answer to the lecture of Rev. L. H, Morey, of Stillwater, on the same subject.

"I have listened with profound respect," said Prof. Kiehle, "to the proposition of Archbishop Ireland to give the Roman Catholic children an opportunity of enjoying the benefits of the American public school system and at the same time not be deprived of their own religious instructions. I will say that my own personal conviction is that this is a bona fide, loyal American proposition, and I have no sympathy with the position that it is absolutely and only a jesuitical proposition." Prof. Kiehle advised the Protestant element to keep as close as possible to the public school system and to get more in sympathy with it in spirit and criticism. "It is equally true," he said, "of the high school and the university."

OLD SETTLERS' EXCURSION.

James Bardon and Dr. Forbes Submitted Resolutions Which Were Adopted.

The Merritts' old settlers' excursion Saturday over the Duluth, Missabe & Northern road was thoroughly enjoyed by the large number of guests who completely filled the four coaches. The run to Mountain Iron mine was made without particular incident and a general inspection of the properties took place. Rev. Dr. Forbes delivered a rambling but interesting five-minute address, and the entire audience was photographed in a group on one of the ore dumps of the big mine. A short stop was made at Cloquet on the return trip, where the following resolutions, which were introduced by Dr. Forbes, of West Duluth, and James Bardon, of Superior, were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the thanks of the old settlers at the head of Lake Superior, and others present, are cordially tendered to the Merritt brothers of Oneota, for their warm hospitality in providing us and our families this day with an excursion by train from Duluth to the Mesaba range with its wonderful deposits of iron ore, passing over the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad, just completed by their energy, to the mines; the occasion being in remembrance of the eightieth birthday of their honored mother, Mrs. Lewis H. Merritt, who with her worthy sons and their families made the trip one of rare pleasure and interest for those who participated.

Resolved, That we express our wish that the life of this good lady may be greatly prolonged; that she may see her family crowned with deserved success and increasing prosperity in all their laudable undertakings.

Resolved, That we appreciate the courtesy of Mr. Stephenson, superintendent of the Duluth & Winnipeg railroad, and of Mr. White, superintendent of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad, who accompanied us on the entire trip, contributing by their presence and careful watchfulness to the comfort and safety of all present.

Resolved, That the newspapers of Duluth and Superior be requested to publish these resolutions.

IT WAS THERE.

They stopped on the steps ere they went to the play,
And she suddenly started and cried, "Oh, say!

"The key of the house, my dear, is above,
Go up and fetch it, now there is a love.

"Go look in the closet, just off from the stair,
It lies in my grenadine pocket up there."

And so with step that was joyous and light,
He bounded up stairs in the gathering night.

And the door of the closet he opened quite wide,
And he smiled to himself as he stepped inside.

And he clutched with a chuckle the old grenadine,
And he felt for the place where a pocket he'd seen.

Then he thought that the garment was inside out,
So with teeth set together he turned it about.

And felt with a feverish hand in vain
For a slit, and he swore with his might and main;

Then he turned the thing up, and he turned it down,
And jumped on the cursed old grenadine gown.

Until, as he lay with the dress on the floor,
His better half came up and opened the door.

And she took up the gown and she put in her hand,
And she pulled out the key with a smile that was bland.

And she said as she stamped on the floor: "I declare,
That is just like a man. Why, the key was right there!"

An Object of Suspicion.

The rain descended in sheets.

A man with stooping figure crept stealthily from the back door and stood irresolute. In another moment a lady of middle age appeared at his side.

Both of them looked very much distressed.

"Can't you hide it under your coat, dear?" asked the woman anxiously.

The man shook his head, and the lines of care in his brow deepened perceptibly.

"No, my love, I must carry it in plain sight of the whole world."

The woman shuddered.

The rain descended in sheets.

"You'll take care, dear," she faltered sadly, "to avoid any large concourse of citizens for fear of exciting their anger and becoming mobbed?"

The man gasped.

"Yes, love. Oh, heaven, how I wish I were safely through this!"

"And, dear, you'll not go near an officer of the law lest you be arrested as a criminal?"

The man fairly writhed in agony.

The rain descended in sheets.

"No, love. How long, O Lord, how long!"

"And you'll keep in the back streets, dear?"

"Yes, love."

Silently and with tearful eyes they embraced.

"Farewell, love. Don't forget me if I never return."

The woman could only sob and cling to him convulsively.

"My danger is great, love. Pray for my deliverance."

With a mighty effort the man rushed into the storm.

The woman sank to the floor in a faint.

"Heaven protect him!"

The man was carrying an extra umbrella. The rain descended in sheets.—Detroit Tribune.

These words are very familiar to out readers, as not a day passes without the report of the sudden death of some prominent citizen. The explanation is "heart disease." These symptoms mean heart disease. The most reliable remedy is Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, which has saved thousands of lives. Book of testimonials free at all druggists who sells the New Heart Cure.

A PLAN IS SUGGESTED

Establishment of a Sinking Fund and Partial Insurance of Buildings Recommended to the School Board.

The Insurance Committee Makes Investigation and Reports the High School Rate as Exorbitant.

No Action Was Taken and the Board Will Consider the Matter Next Wednesday---Other Business.

The school board met Saturday evening and the report of the committee on insurance was substituted. This committee has surance paid on school property by other cities and sent out a number of inquiries, receiving answers from nearly all. The questions asked were as to what amount other cities pay the brick and stone buildings and for what percentage of valuation they insure. Suggestions of plans by which the board could become its own insurer were asked and also opinions as the practicability of establishing special reserve fund.

Twenty replies were received. New York city, Albany, N. Y., Chicago, Cleveland and the state schools of Boston carry no insurance. Minneapolis, Rochester, N. Y., Pittsburg and Philadelphia insure for 50 per cent of the value. St. Louis, Toledo, O., Winona and Mankato carry less than 50 per cent. Twelve of the cities sending replies believe in the "special fund" idea, that is, in carrying practically no insurance and putting the premiums which would be paid, in a sinking fund. As to the rates paid by other cities, the committee also gathered considerable information. Minneapolis pays $1.50 for three years; Toledo, O., pays $1.80 for five years; Rochester, $0.75 per annum; Denver, 2 per cent for three years; St. Louis, $0 90 for three years. A number of others were received and from them all the committee draws the following:

By comparison with the above the rate of 1 per cent on our fire equipped high school we consider exorbitant, and a rate of 75 per ent would, we consider, be dearly bought if to obtain it we were obliged to remove the manual training department. We therefore recommend to your board that so fast as insurance expires that it be not renewed until a sufficient amount has expired to leave an amount of insurance in force equal to about 25 per cent of the valuation of all brick and stone buildings and equipments, and 50 per cent on wooden structures, and that the amount saved in premiums by so doing be credited to a special insurance fund to be drawn upon when necessary to replace or repair the damage by fire. We attach herewith a list of all school buildings, showing the total cost of each building, with the amount of insurance recommended by your committe set opposite:

School.	Cost.	Am't of Ins. Recommended.
Old High	$32,628 48	$ 8,200
Jackson	16,656 63	4,200
Adams	20,040 04	5,000

Lincoln	55,193 88	14,000
Endion	66,713 68	16,800

Lexington	2,000 00	1,000
Kenwood	2,500 00	1,200

No action was taken on the report, but the board will meet again Wednesday evening and consider it. Superintendent Denfeld read the program of exercises prepared for Columbus day. He also reported that President Northrup would not be able to deliver the address as desired, but had suggested Professor John F. Downey, and he has been secured. State Superintendent Kielle may also come.

Night schools are to be opened as soon as teachers can be secured. Two or three rooms in the Central High school, one in the Irving and one in the Adams school will be used. An addition is to be made to the Fairmount school, it being badly crowded. The purchase of 250 1-pound dumb bells was authorized at the suggestion of Professor Alletzhauzer. Five pianos are also to be purchased. Another janiter is to be employed for the High school building. He will act as a night watchman.

The delivery in New York of the $100,000 in bonds recently sold to W. J. Holmes was directed to be made.

BALDWIN WILL WIN.

All Hope of Judge Searle's Election Seems to be Abandoned.

Long Prairie Leader: It is becoming a very open secret that the Republicans have no hope of Judge Searle's election. Recent estimates by the Republican congressional committee proved this. The committee in order to figure out a majority for Searle, made Stearns county give him 2000 majority. In view of the fact that Stearn's county gave the Democratic nominee over 2600 majority two years ago, such aclaim on the part of the Republicans is preposterous. It is also a fact that the counties composing the Sixth district gave a majority two years ago for the Democratic candidates for both governor and congressman.

Unless there is a change in the vote in favor of the Republicans the district is Democratic. * * * In every town and every neighborhood we hear of defections from the Republican party, but we hear of none from Democracy. Add to all this the dissatisfaction among many Sixth district Republicans on account of Searle's nomination and the open revolt of many Republicans in St. Louis county, the success of Maj. Baldwin, the Democratic nominee, becomes evident.

The hope of Searle and his political friends was in his popularity as judge of the Seventh judicial district and his wide personal accquaintance—the result of twenty years' residence and business relations with the people of the western counties of the district. * * * The Democrats of Todd county extend a cordial greeting to Judge Searle as judge of their courts, but they will vote for Maj. Baldwin for congress.

THE ARGENTINE TROUBLES.

Sailors in Collusion With Robbers Who Stole Powder.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—A cable to the Herald from Buenos Ayres says there is reason to suspect that the crew of the Holk, of Rosario, from which a large quantity of powder was recently stolen by masked men, were in complicity with the robbers and that the powder was taken to be used in a revolutionary movement.

The government, it is said, proposes to disarm a large portion of the navy from motives of economy. There is an open rupture now between President Pena and Gen. Roca, and the dissatisfaction among the higher army officers is much increased owing to the elevation of Mitre to the chief command of the army.

Radical clubs are forming all over the country and are actively at work. The governor of Entre Rios has succeeded through false telegrams in getting 400,000 peaos from the Banka Nacional. The governor will take steps to punish him and also indict ex-Minister of Finance Hansen.

A STEAMSHIP WRECKED.

The Bokhara Sank and Nearly All the Crew Drowned.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The Peninsula & Oriental Steamship company's office here has received the following dispatch from Hong Kong: The Peninsula & Oriental steamship Bokhara has been totally wrecked. The steamship struck on a sand island of the group known as the Pecanores, or Fishers island called Pheng Hoo by the Chinese, in the channel of Fokien, in the China sea.

The weather was terrible and the raging waters quenched the fires on the steamer. She became unmanageable and sank, and the commander and a majority of the officers and crew were lost. Twenty-three persons only were saved.

It is feared that those who were lost were mostly Europeans. The survivors will reach Hong Kong on Thursday morning next. The steamship Ancona has proceeded to the scene of the wreck.

CORNELL IS IN LUCK.

It Has Been Presented With the Moak Law Library.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 17.—The law library of the late Nathaniel Moak, of Albany, is to go to the school of law, Cornell university. It has been sought by the Leland Stanford, Chicago and Harvard universities, but has been purchased and will be presented to the school here as a memorial to Judge Boardman by his widow and only daughter, Mrs. George B. Williams.

The library is in may ways the most complete law library in the world, and is estimated to have cost Mr. Moak not less than $75,000. This addition will make the Cornell law library 23,000 volumes, the largest law school collection in this country.

WILL FIGHT MR. GERRY.

The Children of the Stage Organized for Self Protection.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The children of the stage met yesterday afternoon and formally organized "The Anti-Gerry society." The society is formed for action, and already the children have subscribed money into its treasury and have devised a plan whereby they can raise thousands of dollars to fight for their cause.

They propose fighting Mr. Gerry in every court and in the assembly and senate at Albany this winter. Zelda Sanders was elected president and Edith Widmer, secretary. By unanimous vote it was decided to ask Assemblyman Stein to act as the association's counsel.

Left Their Keys.

GALVESTON, TEX., Oct. 17.—Precisely at 7 o'clock last night, in obedience to an order issued by C. B. Clark, chairman of the grievance committee, and Grand Chief Telegrapher Ramsay, the telegraph operators on the Gulf, Colorado, & Santa Fe railroad left their keys. It is understood that the strike effects the telegraph service of the Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fe system extending from Galveston to Purcell in the Indian territory.

Will Stand by Briggs.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—A statement made yesterday by E. M. Kinsley, secretary of the board of directors of the Union Theological seminary, is to the effect that the institution's charter does not allow the directors to delegate their powers to another body, and that the seminary will stand by Dr. Briggs and support him, regardless of his trial, as long as he retains his present position on the logical points.

The Lie Was Passed.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—A special to the World from Nashville, Tenn., says that Congressman Enloe knocked down John McDowell, candidate for United States senator, at a meeting in Paris Saturday and a duel may grow out of the fracas, which arose out of the lie being passed in a joint debate.

Shot His Wife.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Gustave Yoist, a painter, residing at Glencove, Long Island, shot and killed his wife last night. It is supposed that Yoist shot his wife during a drunken quarrel. Both were hard drinkers and Yoist was exceedingly jealous of the woman. He was locked up.

Was Tired of Life.

ITHACA, Oct. 17.—Charles Wisman, 72 years old, committed suicide last night by shooting himself. He went to the outhouse and placed the muzzle of a revolver in his mouth, and put a bullet through the upper part of his head. Sickness and despondency are supposed to have been the causes of the deed.

COVERED WITH WATER.

A Waterspout in Texas Flooded a Large Territory.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Oct. 17.—News reached here yesterday of a terrific waterspout that occurred Saturday in Nueces county on the King ranch. A territory embracing 400,000 acres of land was flooded to a depth of two feet.

It is a cattle country, and no loss of stock is reported. The track of the Texas & Mixican National railroad was covered by a sea of water for a distance of ten miles. The rain for many miles around was the heaviest ever known in that section.

A DISTINGUISHED SPEAKER.

Hon. W. C. P. Breckinridge. Who Declined to be Columbian Orator.

William Campbell Preston Breckinridge, the distinguished Kentuckian, who has declined to deliver the dedicatory oration at Chicago, is noted as a congressman, while as an orator he has no superior among the men of his time.

The founder of the family was a stern old Scottish Covenanter, who fled to America when the Stuarts were restored. His grandson, James, was a soldier in the American revolution, and after it an eminent lawyer and Federalist politician for many years. The brother of James was the noted Senator John Breckinridge, who was twice elected to the Virginia legislature before attaining the legal age, was elected to congress at twenty-three and could not take the seat, was attorney general of Kentucky and one of its greatest statesmen, and finally represented the state in the national senate and in Jefferson's cabinet.

His son John was a famous clergyman, and his son Robert Jefferson was equally famous as clergyman and politician. The terrible earnestness of the family and the confidence of mankind in their integrity were exhibited in the fact that this Kentucky clergyman presided over the national Republican convention of 1864, while son and nephew, the former previously vice president, were in the Confederate army. The career of John Cabill Breckinridge, vice president of the United States at the age of thirty-six, is familiar to the public, and the son of that John is today Congressman Clifton Breckinridge, of Arkansas. Truly a remarkable family.

W. C. P. BRECKINRIDGE.

William C. P. Breckinridge was born at Baltimore Aug. 28, 1837; was graduated from Center college, Danville, Ky., in 1855; entered the Confederate service in 1861 and became colonel of the noted Ninth Kentucky cavalry. After some years' work as lawyer, professor of equity jurisprudence in Cumberland university, Tennessee, and lawyer again, he was elected to congress in 1884 to represent the Seventh (Lexington) district, and has been re-elected biennially ever since. Of his military career Mr. Breckinridge seldom talks, but in the social circle he sometimes speaks with much humor of the time when he partook of Ohio's hospitalities "in company with General John Morgan and other gallant Kentuckians."

The highest encomium that can be pronounced upon Mr. Breckinridge's course in congress consists in stating the simple fact that from the first he rapidly advanced in the good will of his most pronounced political opponents, and that for many years he has been the favorite southern representative in New England and the far north generally. His address at Creston, Ia., was an affair of almost national importance, and his speeches in other northern states have attracted great attention. Last summer he sustained a great affliction in the loss of his wife—a lady universally loved—at Lexington, their home. Personally Mr. Breckinridge is a man of imposing and attractive appearance, a Presbyterian in faith, as his family have ever been since the Scottish Covenanter's day, and a man of irreproachable morals.

No English Catholic Cardinal.

Three years ago there were three English cardinals—Newman, Manning and Howard. Today there is not one. The late Cardinal Howard had been in a poor condition, physically and mentally, for some years. He failed to remember his oldest friends, and sometimes would not take meals for days together. For years past it would have been difficult to recognize in the pinched and emaciated frame of the cardinal the gay young life guardsman who was chosen for his good looks and fine physique to lead the procession at the Duke of Wellington's funeral. In those days young Howard looked every inch a soldier, and it was greatly to his friends' surprise that they learned of his going to Rome and entering the ecclesiastical state. He latterly occupied the dual position of archpriest of St. Peter's and bishop of Frascati. These offices had never been united in the same individual since they were held by the cardinal of York, last of the house of Stuart.

Hustling Things at Jackson Park.

Since the last map of the World's fair grounds and buildings at Jackson park, Chicago, was printed nearly six months ago many important changes have taken place. Almost every day indeed adds to the magic growth of that wonderful enterprise. Many new buildings which have been provided for have sprung up. New schemes of transportation about the grounds have been devised. Additional concessions upon the Midway plaisance have been granted. The scheme for a railway entrance at the southwest corner of the park has been perfected. The pier at the south inlet has been extended from 1,200 feet to 2,500. Its width has been increased, and for the convenience of passengers a movable sidewalk 2,500 feet long has been located on the pier.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN DULUTH

Entered at the postoffice at Duluth, Minn., as second-class mail matter.

The Weather.

U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, DULUTH, MINN., Oct. 17.—A storm of great energy is now central over the northern part of North Dakota, moving northeast. It is accompanied by high winds ranging from thirty miles per hour at Bismarck and Huron, to 48 miles at Winnipeg.

The first snow of the season in the Northwest is falling at Qu'Appelle, N. W. T., this morning, and rain is falling at several places in the Northwest and has fallen from Dakota northward. The heaviest was .72 inch at Bismarck.

The temperature is high in a strip of country extending from the gulf of Mexico north to Manitoba, and following the Mississippi and Red river valleys, in the extreme Northwest the coldest weather of the season is reported, 18° at Medicine Hat, N. W. T. The warmest is 66° at St. Vincent and Moorhead, Minn., and Kansas City and St. Louis. Some great contrasts are presented this morning among them is a difference of 32° between Bismarck and Moorhead.

The storm seems to be moving too far to the north to affect this section seriously, but it may turn and come down this way. The conditions are very favorable for severe local storms over Western Minnesota, Iowa and the Dakotas.

The highest temperature here yesterday was 54, the lowest last night 48.

DULUTH, Oct. 17.—Fair, followed by showers; warmer today, cooler by Tuesday night; winds shifting to south and west and increasing in force.

B. H. BRONSON,
Local Forecast Official.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Forecast till 8 p. m. tomorrow: For Minnesota: Local rains today or tonight, followed by clearing weather; winds shifting to westerly; much cooler Tuesday morning, followed by rising temperature in northern portion. For Wisconsin: Generally fair Tuesday; probably preceded by local showers in northern portion today or tonight: southerly, shifting to westerly winds; cooler in western portion.

A Gross Deception.

The News Tribune published this morning over five columns of what purported to be the speech delivered by Judge Searle at West Duluth on Saturday night. Editorially it announced in the course of another lengthy article commenting on the speech: "The speech of Judge Searle, the Republican candidate for congress in this district, delivered at West Duluth Saturday evening, is published very nearly in full in this morning's issue."

The Herald has repeatedly shown that the morning paper is utterly unreliable and unprincipled in the presentation of what little news it does publish. It was hardly prepared, however, for such an astounding exhibition of outrageous deception as that which the News Tribune practiced upon its readers this morning.

Judge Searle did not deliver at West Duluth the speech which was published in the News Tribune this morning.

The editor of the News Tribune knew that Judge Searle did not deliver this speech, and by endeavoring to palm it off on the public as genuine, he perpetrated a gross deception of which no respectable newspaper would be guilty.

A paper that would thus try to deceive the public, that would obtain their money under the false pretence that it was giving the news, is not one whit better than the bunco man who secures his victim's money by pretending that he is what he is not.

Judge Searle spoke but a short time at West Duluth and his remarks, which were about as halting and knock-kneed as those at the Temple, were confined almost exclusively to telling the people what a great city Duluth is going to be and how much he is in sympathy with us. Those who know him best, and those who listened to his embarrassed effort here, will also agree that he is utterly incapable of delivering such a speech as that credited to him by the News-Tribune today.

Judge Searle was also a party to this deception. He furnished the News-Tribune with the copy of the speech printed this morning. It was probably written by his brother, Frank Searle, who is a speaker of some ability, and has ideas and a knowledge of public questions. Any condemnation of the News Tribune for carrying out the deception must apply with equal force to Judge Searle, who was a party to it. His condemnation must be greater, for he is a judge of the district court, and a member of the judiciary is usually supposed to be above such political trickery and deception. The News Tribune has simply emphasized its title as an unprincipled and unreliable paper.

Our Next Governor.

The next governor of Minnesota, the Hon. Knute Nelson, received an enthusiastic welcome at Saturday night's meeting in this city. Equally hearty was his reception at the West Duluth gathering. Mr. Nelson has always been a loyal friend of Duluth, staunch and true to her interests, and during the time that he represented the old Fifth district in congress he labored earnestly and faithfully in behalf of the many improvements in the lake waterways and other questions in which this city has a vital interest. It was eminently fitting, therefore, that he should be given a great reception such as was tendered to him at the opera house on Saturday night. There was nothing forced about the enthusiastic greeting that he received. There was no fictitious applause created by politicians applauding merely for effect. It was a popular demonstration, spontaneous, real and sincere, the generous expression of the feelings of Duluth's citizens towards one who was always their steadfast friend, and for whom they will cast a very large vote next month for governor.

Mr. Nelson indulges in no oratorical flourishes. He speaks plainly and directly, and with forcible earnestness. He declared himself in full sympathy with all the principles enunciated in the national platform of the Republican party. On the tariff question he spoke with no uncertain sound, declaring in favor of the protective policy and praising the good features of the McKinley bill which stimulated and created industrial growth in many lines. Much of his address was devoted to the currency system and he vigorously denounced the proposal of the Democrats to return to the state bank system with its depreciated shinplasters, while he likewise attacked the fallacies of the silverites. Mr. Nelson's speech was soundly Republican from first to last and was heartily applauded. It increased the already large number of his friends in Duluth.

To Improve the Currency.

It seems to be quite generally agreed that the present currency system needs improvement. We need a currency especially sensitive in the quality of elasticity, besides being absolutely secure. Under our present national bank system, when confidence is felt, the excess of money provokes speculation and inflation, bat when confidence shrinks there is no national relief and a panic results. Various remedies have been offered to cure this defect in the existing system, and more plans are beinff offered almost weekly, so that it would appear that in time there will be evolved some solution of the problem. In the Democratic national platform there is a plank in favor of a return to the old state bank system, but there is a widespread protest against this plan.

Governor Merriam, who is regarded as an authority on banking, has written several articles on this subject recently, He favors the perfected system now in operation in Canada, with some modification to suit the conditions in this country, and he has advanced some very sound arguments in support of adopting thatsystem. Experience in Canada has shown that it possesses the essential quality of elasticity and its absolutely security hasbeen demonstrated. Whether the Canadian system would furnish us with a circulating medium adequate to the great business of this country is a question that requires consideration. It has worked well in the more limited field of operations in Canada, but would the results be equally satisfactory in the United States, where the demands of the commercial interests are so very much larger?

In one of the banking journals for the present month, there is a very concise and logical article on the state bank tax question, written by William C. Cornwell, cashier of the Bank of Buffalo, which contains many good suggestions. Taking up the unsatisfactory condition of the currency, Mr. Cornwell shows what a true currency should be. Applying the test to the national bank notes, he finds them entirely insufficient and unscientific. Then going back to the state bank systems he demonstrates that the one true principle of currency (without which nothing) was possessed by some, a very few, of the states. He says it was because of this right principle that Democrats incorporated the repeal plank in their platform, but shows that it would be inexpedient to go through the long course of improvement which would be necessary before a national currency could be evolved out of state operations although this could be done.

Going back to the national system he states that it is on a high plane in nearly every vital point except that of circulation, and that the one great and good feature of state issues, the principle of circulation, could be united with the national system and an almost perfect whole produced. In conclusion he urges two things as to the currency:

First, the repeal of the silver bill of 1890, and that alone he says would make it possible for a long time to do nothing else.

Second, the grafting of the principle of note issues by banks (a first lien and secured by general assets) upon the national banking system.

He predicts for the party and politicians who inaugurate, urge and accomplish these moves enduring power, and honest and substantial fame. Possibly Mr. Cornwell is right. He may have hit upon a plan that will provide a currency elastic and yet secure. A more general discussion of the subject may, however, evolve a better system. One thing is certain—we need a better currency system than now exists, and the commercial interests must suffer if some change be not made before long which will furnish a rapid and substantial increase in our medium of exchange when required at certain seasons of the year, and which likewise will shrink in volume when the need for its use is past.

The Democratic convention Saturday very wisely endorsed Samuel H. Moer, for judge of the district court, although that gentleman is of the opposite political faith. Mr. Moer was the unanimous choice of the bar for this position, which he will fill with ability, as soon as Judge Stearns' term expires.

A Dismal Attempt.

If the friends of Judge Searle do not speedily call him off the stump in St. Louis county, he will not get five hundred votes here. The News-Tribune admitted on Sunday morning that "in this county he will lose some Republican votes." This is the first time the Searle organ has admitted that its candidate would lose any Republican votes in this county, but it is not astonishing that it should make such an admission after listening to the judge's attempt to speak at the Temple Saturday evening.

It is safe to say that no candidate who ever appeared on the platform in Duluth ever made such a dismal failure. Even the editor of the News-Tribune could make a better speech. That it was a severe dissappointment to his friends was evidenced by the lengthened faces of those seated on the platform, two or three of whom made frantic efforts to clutch the judge's coat-tails and let him know that it was better to cut it short. Finally the chairman got his attention and he ceased, to the great relief of the people on the stage, who wiped the beads of perspiration from their faces, as the judge bowed to the audience and retired.

The Herald said on several ocasions that the judge was not a good speaker, while his organ retorted that he was a man of gigantic ability who would presumably make the halls of congress ring with his eloquence, but it really did not believe that he could make such a poor speech as that of Saturday night. It was delivered in a lame, disjointed, hesitating, limping and stammering manner, with an appearance of uncertainty and embarrassment that sorely tried the nerves of the few people who remained to the close. It was not even grammatical. It was powerful, though, in one respect—it emptied the opera house so rapidly that at one time there was imminent danger of a panic. It is estimated that when Mr. Nelson was speaking there were 2200 people present. Judge Searle had not spoken three minutes before the crowd had dwindled to 700 or 800, and many of the latter stayed merely out of sympathy.

The speech, what there was of it, was such a plain, bold bid for the votes of Duluth people by the aid of nauseating praise of the city that the only effect it had was to disgust those who listened. The report of the judge's speech at West Duluth reads much better than the Temple speech sounded. It is to be hoped, for the sake of the West Duluth people who attended the meeting to hear Knute Nelson, that it was a little better.

According to the Long Prairie Leader, from which an article is published in this issue, the general opinion in Todd county is that Maj. Baldwin is certain to win the congressional fight. The friends of Judge Searle—he is still judge—have apparently given up all hope of his election.

Secretary of State Brown fled to avoid the service of papers on him in mandamus proceedings begun by the chairman of the Democratic state central committee. Mr. Brown acted foolishly. The Republican committee should give him some advice that will cause him to act more sensibly.

Maj. Baldwin deserves the vote of every man in St. Louis county on the ground of fitness. There is no one who heard Judge Searle attempt to speak Saturday night who will deny this fact.

DASTARDLY ATTEMPT.

Two Boys Try to Blow Up a Leadville Residence With a Quantity of Giant Powder.

Their Awful Plan Was to Kill the Whole Family of One of the Young Lads.

Instead the Boys Were Blown to Atoms by the Explosion Intended for the Parents.

LEADVILLE, Col., Oct. 17.—About 6:30 o'clock last evening the people living in the vicinity of Capitol Hill were startled by a terrific explosion, which shook the houses for several blocks. On investigation it was found to have occurred at the residence of Herman Trueman. Mr. Trueman's little son and a boy named Sam Davis had dug a hole about thirteen feet deep and had run two small drifts which they called their mine.

The next move the young men made was to get a quantity of giant powder, which caused the town to tremble and shake last evening. Adam S. Trueman, father of the boy above mentioned, is a wagon maker and had between $200 and $300 in gold locked up in the house. This was known to the young man, who secured the same in the early part of the evening by breaking into the room in which it was concealed.

His next move was to blow up the house, which at the time contained his father and other persons. In this he was successful. Mr. and Mrs. Trueman were seriously injured. The little daughter of Mrs. Thomas Reed was badly cut in the arm by glass. Mrs. Jas. E. Butler, residing on West Ninth street, was struck by a window sash, which was blown into her dining room.

Many minor accidents occurred within a radius of 2000 feet from the house. It is thought the boys were the victims of their own folly, and that instead of making away with the money, they were blown to atoms by the explosion intended for their parents.

COMPLAINT AGAINST ENGLAND.

An American Captain Claims He Was Badly Treated.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17.—Captain Kustell, an American citizen, has forwarded to Washington a complaint against the treatment received at the hands of Capt. Davis, of H. M. S. Royalist, the vessel which recently annexed the Gilbert islands.

He was, he says, ordered on board the Royalist at Bularitari and in five minutes was tried and convicted for assaulting a native nearly a year before. Captain Davis, he says, cursed the American and his countrymen like a pirate. The king of Bularitari objects to British rule and will soon send an appeal to the American secretary of state for protection.

WAS BURNED TO DEATH.

The Result of a Quarrel in a Disreputable House.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 17.—Emma Wilson and William Donahue became involved in a quarrel in a disreputable house yesterday morning, and the latter picked up a lighted lamp and threw it at the woman.

Her dress caught fire and she ran around the room setting fire to everything she came in contact with. When Donahue saw what he had done he attempted to extinguish the flames and was burned badly. The woman was taken a hospital, but died a little later.

TWO CANUCK EMBEZZLERS.

Albert A. Dodge, of St. John, is Under Arrest.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Oct. 17.—Albert A. Dodge, cashier in the Inter colonial railway freight department in this city, was arrested yesterday charged with embezzling about $5000 belonging to the Dominion government. He is 46 years of age and very respectably connected.

Negotiations are pending for the extradition of J. F. Steadman, who was arrested in Boston a few days ago charged with embezzling funds of the Inter colonial railroad.

Arrested for Embezzling.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Charles A. White, the alleged correspondent in America of the Illustrated News, who is said to have been arrested in New York on a charge of embezzlement preferred by his wife, formerly Mrs. Nagle, of Cheyenne, Wyo., is stated here to have no relation with the News. White, it is stated, was formerly a canvasser for the American edition of the publication, but his connection with it ceased long ago.

A Lockout Ended.

BOSTON, Oct. 17.—Boston granite manufacturs and the Boston branch of the Granite Cutters union settled their differences at a conference Saturday night, The terms of the agreement are not disclosed, but the lockout, which was declared May 14, is now off and the cutters will return to work for members of the New England Granite Manufacturers association at once.

Two Men Killed.

AUBURN, Ind., Oct. 17.—A head-end collision occurred yesterday three miles east of this place on the Baltimore & Ohio road. Charles Henthorn, of Obisco, Ind., head-end brakeman, and John Lanning, fireman, of Garrett, both of the west-bound train, were fatally injured.

INTRINSIC MERIT WINS!

THIS MORNING

At 8 o'clock sharp, the store and everyone in it was ready for business, and each department gradually filled up with buying parties, and at 9 o'clock the merchandise was pouring into the inspector's office, showing extensive sales in quick succession.

There was no great uproar, NO "SPECIAL SALE HARANGUE" arguments, no uncertain spasmodic buying of goods, no special sale features at all, but careful, judicious, intelligent selections were made in a cool and collected manner, and there never was seen in any place a more wholesome, legitimate transacting of business.

Goods That Sold In Excess of Others!

Lupins' $1.00 52-inch Drep D'Ete--

Seemed to be the favorite of the majority of those looking for plain dresses, while the $1.50 BROADCLOTHS, and the $1.15 AMAZONS came in for a good share of patronage. There seemed to have sprung up a sudden demand for Children's Cloakings, and all those new things in English and French Cloakings cut out very liberally.

In the Hosiery and Underwear Departm'ts--

There was very few heavy purchases, but myriads of small purchases, such as one pair of stockings and one undergarment, the sales aggregated very fair.

The Trimming Department--

Fairly outdid itself, showing the largest sales by far of any previous time. There is a wonderful buying of Russian Bands and Headings.

The Cloak Department--

Was as busy as usual; it would have to be a rare day to increase the number of sales in the Cloak department. They constantly have all they can do.

Linens, Gloves, Handkerchiefs and Notions Sales,

Made two extra long columns of figures on the sales book.

The Handkerchiefs at 25c and those at 65c seemed to be the favorites.

Those 25c Huck Towels sold by the dozens, and there was quite a few purchases of full bills of household linens.

Gloves of different kinds were constantly being fitted at the Glove counter.

It was probably a fortunate thing that we had a very threatening day, else no doubt it would have been impossible to handle the trade.

THE MORAL!

Things that require falsehood arguments to sell them, are seldom as good as articles that sell on their merits.

COMPLETED ITS WORK.

The Presbyterian Synod Holds its Final Meeting This Morning and Adjourned Sine Die.

World's Fair Authorities Are Requested to Reconsider Their Determination to Allow the Sale of Liquor.

Resolutions Passed Conveying the Gratitude of the Synod to the Churches and People of Duluth.

The services held yesterday in connection with the meeting of the Presbyterian synod were largely attended and most interesting in character. The morning sermon and the communion held thereafter were most spiritual in character. The Y. M. C. A. meeting at 4 p. m. was crowded and six young men remained at the inquiry meeting at the close. The two addresses in the evening, delivered in the interests of the Y. P. S. C. E., were listened to by a crowded house and were most eloquent, effective and touching.

Following the half hour spent in devotional exercises this morning came the reading and approval of the minutes of Saturday's session, and the synod listened to the report on Sabbath school by Rev. F. C. Bailey.

The work was reported to have experienced "a steady and vigorous growth" the past year. All Presbyterians now have a Sunday school missionary except Duluth. During the year 98 new schools have been organized. Into those schools were gathered 4529 scholars and 533 officers—a total of 5062. Besides those organized, 260 other schools have been visited, addressed and otherwise aided.

Sabbath school institutes have been successfully held. In connection with the synod churches there are 220 schools with 19,585 scholars. These schools and churches contributed to the Sabbath school board, $1,296. The board, however, expends $6,000 yearly. The extension of the work among the Scandinavians was recommended. R. F. Sulzer, the synodical missionary, was given five minutes in which to address the synod. His remarks were highly appreciated.

The remainder of the report of the committee on education was read and the recommendations considered and acted upon in order, the most important feature being the meeting of a request by McCormick university that a committee of one minister and a ruling elder be appointed to attend the examinations of that institute. The moderator appointed a committee.

The committee on home missions made its report. The chief recommendation was that each Presbytery employ and attempt to support without help from the board, a pastor at large. The re-appointment of Dr. Adams as chairman of that board was made.

The committee on temperance reported in favor of asking the World's Fair authorities to reconsider their allowance of the sale of liquor on the exposition grounds, which allowance is in opposition to the laws of Illinois and the sentiment of the religious classes.

The committee on Sabbath observance reported that the condition in two-thirds of the communities is as good as heretofore and better in one-third. Earnest revivals were recommended to increase the observance of that day. Pastors were asked to preach at least one sermon a year on that point. The action of the lady members of the Minnesota World's Fair commission in recommending Sunday opening was deplored, and a communication to congress was authorized asking that body not to abate one jot or tittle from its original decision.

The next report was from the committee on necrology. A tribute to the memory of Samuel Pond was read and adopted.

The standing committees then reported. Nothing of interest to the synod was brought out until the committee on narrative reported. The past year was remarkable the report said. There has been a general and widespread interest. The work of conversion has attracted many workers. Dead churches have been resurrected and weak ones made strong. The rural districts have been especially blessed. To sum up, Clarence Reynolds, the committee's chairman, said there has been an increased spirit of aggressive evangelization, an increase in giving, an increased effort to care for new organizations by providing houses of worship through the manse building system, and last, the equipments are more complete. The reports of the Woman's Missionary societies were accepted and ordered incorporated in the records of the synod's proceedings.

Dr. Wells presented the report of the committee on inter-denominational comity. It was recommended that Sunday, Oct. 30, be called a Christian brotherhood day and that each pastor present the claims of Christian unity between Christian bodies.

It was also recommended that a committee composed of Dr. J. S. Black, of Minneapolis, Dr. Alexander Carson, of St. Paul, and Rev. John Barbour, of Mankato, be appointed to act in concert with similar committees from other denominations over the control of the formation of churches in weak communities where only one denomination can live. The recommendations and report were adopted.

After the adoption of a resolution of sympathy and regret over the death of Dr. Richard Allen of the Freedmen's Board, the moderator named the various permanent committees for the ensuing year.

On motion of Dr. D. E. Wells, of Minneapolis, it was made a standing rule of the synod that hereafter it be the duty of the committee on arrangements each year to arrange with Minneapolis and St. Paul papers for adequate reports of the proceedings of each session of the synod.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

The synod of Minnesota hereby records its gratitude to our churches in Duluth for the cordial reception they have given us and the hearty hospitality the elect ladies have accorded us. We rejoice in the goodly fellowship that brings strangers to break bread together as brethren. We pray that God may richly reward those who have so graciously entertained us, keep their families from evil and endue the First church and its sisters with great power. We pray that God will guide the pastor to eminent service. We express our thanks to the daily papers of Duluth, and to the railroads that have reduced their rates for our trip. God bless Duluth!

Many of the ministers unofficially appreciated and warmly complimented in remarks the enterprise The Herald showed by having a representative present at each session and the comparatively full reports published each day.

After some desultory discussion of the Macalester college question, and some general matters of minor importance, a few minutes after 12 o'clock the synod adjourned to meet next time in Westminster church at St. Paul.

MORE IMPROVEMENTS.

Street Railway Company Will Put in New Engines on the Incline.

The Duluth Street Railway company has just made contracts for two important additions and improvements to its plant. The first is the removal of the Iron Bay engine from its power house on Michigan street and the substitution of a very large auxiliary engine capable of doing the same work as the new big engine in case of any mishap. The specifications are not quite complete, but the change from one engine to another can be made in less than fifteen seconds.

The second improvement is the complete change of the engines at the top of the Seventh avenue incline. They will be made much larger, have a longer stroke and cylinders nearly double the size of the present ones. The style of the sheaves will be changed and the cable drums will be much larger and wider and of the style known as Walker's equalizing drums. The noisy gears will be done away with entirely and the power will be imparted by direct crank motion. Three automatic steam and friction brakes will be added to the safety appliances and each of these will act independently of the others. The cables now in use will give place to others 1¾ inches in circumference—the largest in use on any road in this country.

The changes in the incline power appliances will be made in March next as the contract calls for the new engines to be in use by April. E. P. Allis & Co., of Milwaukee, have all the contracts.

The large open car on the Highland avenue line will be taken off for the winter season in a few days and a closed and heated car placed on the run.

The Lakeside Street railway people will have some of their new cars ready for service by the time the road is completed.

Early Closing.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In Mr. Levine's reply to the clerks he forgets to tell the public that he, as well as others, agreed to close their places of business at 6:30, excepting Saturdays and Mondays, and that he, for the last three months, with some of his employes, have been taking in and waiting on trade after that hour, and in that way securing a part of the trade that belonged to merchants who were acting honorably and according to agreement. The clerks interviewed Mr. Levine on several occasions, and each time Mr. Levine, before witnesses, promised to close and remain closed, which he has always failed to do.

For that reason the clerks have undertaken to show the public what kind of a man they are dealing with. We ask the public if a man void of honor is the man whom they should like to patronize. The retail clerks are not organized to dictate to their employers but to better their own condition, and we trust that every fair-minded citizen of Duluth will look fairly into this matter and see that they make their purchases by daylight.

D. H. MORRISON,
President Retail Clerks' Union.
A. L. EARLENSON,
Secretary.

They Have Quit Night Work.

Any one who visits a zoological garden or menagerie where carnivora are kept will notice one remarkable fact—the lions, tigers and other beasts of prey are all wide awake in the day time and do their sleeping at night. This is quite contrary to their custom in a state of nature, for then they sleep the hours of daylight away and hunt for their dinners at night. This change in their habits is the result of their change of life. While in captivity they are properly fed at regular intervals, and in the daytime; in a state of nature they are obliged to forage for themselves, and must do so at night, for a lion, tiger or hyena stalking about in broad daylight, looking for his dinner, would have an excellent prospect of going hungry. Night work was then a necessity for them, but when the need ceased the habit of wakefulness was given up.

FOOD FOR MR. CHURCH

Secretary Thompson Has Something to Say Which May Slightly Agitate the Minkato Mill Manager.

Subscribers to a Bonus Fund Withdrew When They Learned the Stockholders Were Duluthians.

One of the Duluthians Interested Does Not Care Which Side of the Bay Obtains Commercial Supremacy.

There is an unusual amount of feeling worked up in Duluth over the location of the Minkota mill on the Superior side and it is a subject of frequent discussion in business circles. Some of the comments are very warm and as the action of the stockholders, who are all Duluth citizens, is unanimously condemned the only rivalry in expression of opinions is as to which can put his the strongest. It will be remembered that Mr. Church endeavored some time ago in a communication to defend the action of the company. Secretary Thompson knows a good deal of the inside history of the matter. He says:

"Now that it has been announced that the Minkota mill has been located in West Superior, it seems appropriate that I should state some facts which Mr. Church omitted from his communication of September 24. Acting under instructions from the directors of the chamber of commerce I recently invited a large number of our citizens to a conference, at which certain plans for the development of Duluth were to be discussed. Among others I invited Mr. Church. In the course of conversation with him I suggested that the best and most feasible plan for increasing the milling capacity of Duluth was to double the capacity of the Imperial mill, because it had a reputation and a record of success which would make it a simple matter to secure the additional capital necessary. Mr. Church stated that he felt very sure the company would not consider the matter at the present time, because so large a milling capacity had been contracted for at the head of the lake that it would be desirable to wait and see what effect would be produced on the market when this additional capacity was put into actual operation.

"The meeting referred to was called for the evening. On the afternoon of that day Mr. Church came to my office, stated that a company had been formed to construct a mill of 500 barrels capacity to manufacture a special grade of flour. He gave me as the names of the stockholders, some eight or ten of the leading citizens of Duluth, and stated that as bonuses were being offered for the location of mills on the other side of the bay, he considered that this company might as well get a bonus as anyone else; that, however, it was the preference of the company to stay in Duluth and that if a site of a certain size, situated on Rice's Point, would be bought and given the company free of charge the mill would be located in Duluth; that the company were then making large concessions because they could get a great deal better terms on the other side. He requested me to present the matter to the meeting of the citizens that evening, but earnestly enjoined that I should not give the name of any member of the company, and added as he left, "As I am an applicant for the bounty of the city of Duluth, it would probably not be proper for me to attend the meeting this evening," The publication of the articles of incorporation of of the mill a day or so later made it entirely unnecessary that the information as to the stockholders in the mill should come from me, as it became public property through the press and by the common talk on the street.

"As soon as it became known that the stockholders were Duluth citizens, I could get plenty of curses, but no cash—plenty of blasts, but no bonuses, and those who had already subscribed, thinking it was an outside organization, came and ordered their names removed from the subscription lists.

"In justice to the gentlemen whose names were given as stockholders in the mill, I wish to say that I understand that most of them have already declared that they will have nothing to do with the institution since it is to be located on the other side of the bay. It seemed incredible that gentlemen who had been identified with Duluth for twenty years or more, all whose interests were here and whose fortunes had been made here, should be engaged in putting industries into a rival city for the sake of a pitiful bonus, and it is a matter of gratification to find that they were put into a false light by the statements which were made. So far as I can learn at the present time, about the only one of the subscribers whom he named to me who intends to continue his connection with the mill is one who told me a few weeks ago that, while he cared once, he no longer cared whether Duluth or Superior obtained the supremacy; that so far as he was concerned it did not make any difference which way the cat jumped; that he was quite as well satisfied to make his money on one side of the bay as the other. I never yet have known a cause to be won by half-hearted support or downright disloyalty. As for myself, I care a great deal whether Duluth or some other city maintains the supremacy. And it seems to me that now is as good a time as any to find how great a proportion of the people of Duluth are thoroughly loyal to its interests, or are ready to sacrifice them whenever somebody will pay them a bonus. Personally I have little fear of the result."

THE LAVAQUE PAINT & WALL PAPER CO. would be pleased to see their friends at the informal opening of their new art gallery Thursday afternoon, Oct. 20.

Petition in West Duluth for a Combined Armory and Town Hall.

The move for a combination town hall and armory started in Saturday's Herald has commenced, and a petition to the council asking for such a building will be presented to the council this evening by the militia, ably seconded by a majority of the business men of this place. All admit that such a building is a necessity in the village, and by building a town hall the property will belong to the village and the militia will be provided with suitable headquarters without making it into a state armory exclusively. It is not too soon to figure on a free circulating library, and if such a library is procured it will be necessary to have suitable quarters for the same, and what better place could be had than a building of this description? The militia companies are in a flourishing condition, and it is the general public opinion that they should be furnished suitable quarters.

An Unwelcome Visitor.

A coyote entered an open window in the central part of Florence, A. T., one day recently. Mr. Ortiz, lying on a cot, became conscious that something had brushed past him. He hastily closed the window and struck a light, and there to his amazement was a full grown, wild eyed, terrified coyote from the desert crouching in the corner of his room. The animal was soon captured.

Women are more vitally interested in good city government than men. Good city government means clean, well lighted streets, safe by day and night, first class public schools, beautiful parks and shade trees, abundance of pure water and absence of dens of vice wherein sons and brothers are corrupted and ruined. Think of these things and then consider whether woman has no call to meddle in "politics."

NEW YORK FASHIONS.

Timely Hints for the Ladies on the Proper Making of Dainty Headgear in Fashion.

Mate Leroy Discourses on the Construction of Bonnets and on Styles for Children's Costumes.

All Wealthy Women Are Not Frivolous or Selfish, But Look Closely After Their Households.

We are told by many fashion writers that large hats and bonnets, with startling ornaments, are the style, and while that is true it is none the less true that there are dozens of genteel and becoming hats and bonnets of modest proportions eminently suitable for all occasions, most particularly for evening wear, when a very large hat or bonnet is so apt to interfere with others' comfort or pleasure. Ladies of genuine taste will not offend by wearing an exaggerated headdress to church, concert or theater.

It takes but little material and a few moments' work to evolve a dainty little toque or lace bonnet, which is quite as pretty as anything one can buy, and the true lady will always endeavor to have her costume adapted to its use.

The turban shape with several variations will be considerably worn this fall. It is almost universally becoming, and it is most often made of the same material as the dress, and requires very little trimming. A narrow band of fur is a popular feature in garniture.

Some one asserted recently that the anthers and "feelers" so often seen this season were "out," but a visit to a large importing house showed that almost every new bonnet or hat had them on. They are so pert and give a sort of lightness and finish to an otherwise plain bonnet that I think they will remain "in" at least all winter. Even mourning bonnets have them.

I have gathered a few of the model toques and bonnets for evening wear, and would suggest that ladies try their hands at reproducing them in materials or colors to match costumes. There is no article of a lady's attire so costly as a bonnet, except jewels, and the price set upon the former is extravagant when one takes the quantity of material employed into account. Every lady who can decorate a peach basket to make it a dainty receptacle, or do a pretty pincushion, can make a hat or bonnet if she will but try.

The upper bonnet in the cut is a crape one for a widow, and crape requires special handling, so I would not advise a beginner to try this. But the little scrap of gathered black lace, surmounted by a prince's tuft of feathers is not difficult. Nor is the turban opposite. The ribbon bow could be purchased ready made if desired. The turban in the middle has a band of astrakhan fur, a velvet top and a scarlet wing at the right side held by a jet buckle.

The toque at the right side is of drab cloth, with three stiff loops of ribbon the same shade. The little theater bonnet on the left consists of a couple of black and bronze wings, with anthers of peacock plumes set on a tiny flat bonnet of lace. These jet feather ornaments can be found ready to put on. A little practice would enable every lady to have several attractive bonnets in a season at a nominal cost.

The little Lord Fauntleroy has disappeared, and in his place we find the young Russian and little Rob Roy MacGregors. These are quite as picturesque as the Fauntleroys, though I fancy scarcely as free and untrammeled in their movements. The young Dimitri wears a white serge or velvet felt tunic elaborately braided and corded with a leather belt, and a fur lined or trimmed overcoat and fur bordered hat. Or, if he has passed the age for tunics, he wears a pair of trousers, and above them a blouse, fur bordered, belted and quite covered in front with military braiding. He may have top boots too!

Young Scotsman wears his tartan kilt, his "plaidie" over the shoulder, his velvet jacket and jaunty cap, but, owing to his admixture of blood, he does not go bare kneed. He wears instead a pair of substantial stockings and warm little trousers and stout shoes.

It makes no difference whether the little girl is sister to the Russian or canny Scotsman, she wears her cozy little Greenaway coat of dark red eider down flannel, and her close bonnet of red velvet with a full lace border—that is, if she is in fashion. The coats are very short of waist and long of skirt, and have double shoulder capes. Some are of dark green cloth or velvet or corded velutina, or of brown or blue thick soft wools. Comfort and quaintness are aimed at and obtained in the dress of our children. It may be said that our children are dressed in American fashion. The French styles for little children are in the highest degree inartistic, silly and unhealthful. The English styles have never obtained recognition here, and the honor of the invention of a fashion for children that is dainty, picturesque, simple and healthful rests with American mothers.

Few mothers employ silks, satins or velvets for children's garments in this country. In summer ginghams and white goods are worn. In fall and winter light wools that are warm without being cumbersome are the favorites. There is a beautiful soft material called eider down flannel, which makes up the most useful and comfortable gowns. Cheviots, mixtures, camel's hair and plaids are all suitable and durable, and the simpler the style of making the more childlike it is. Serge—red, blue and brown—also make useful little gowns, as do also the flannel goods, both stamped and plain.

The wealthiest women in America dress their children in plain, comfortable garments, with the least possible amount of trimming. The little girls in the Vanderbilt, Sloane, Shepard and Astor families wear neat little dresses of homespun, shepherd's plaid, serge and flannel, with woolen stockings and spring heel shoes, and, what would surprise many, these ladies often knit all the stockings their children wear.

It is a pleasant sight to see these mothers with their knitting in their hands and watch the soft wool taking form and shape for restless little feet. Drab, slate and black are the colors used, and the little babies have the daintiest white lamb's wool. Some ladies who have no babies knit for their friends. It is an exquisitely womanly accomplishment, this knitting of soft little stockings.

It has always hurt me to hear all women whose husbands are wealthy spoken of as "butterflies" and soulless creatures, who do nothing but spend money for selfish pleasures, because it is not true once in ten times, if so often. It is no longer a fashion to be frivolous or selfish, and if the veil could be lifted and show them as they really are there would be less envy. They work. They look well to the ways of their households. They sew, they knit, they watch over their children's health, education and morals, and it is quite out of style to neglect one's own. If they meet in social gatherings, go to balls, dress well and ride in their carriages, they also go to churches, and only one knows the number of noble and unselfish deeds they do in private nor of the charities they sustain. It is the fashion for rich women to be good, pure and worthy; gossip and scandal are almost forgotten among them. Life means something larger and wider and deeper every year, and they are not ashamed to ask God to make them better women, wives and mothers.

There is Mrs. Chauncey M. Depew. What a woman can be is exemplified in her. A helpmeet beyond all price to her husband; a wise instructor to her young son and her sweet little orphan nieces; a model housekeeper and an adept at needlework—with all these things she is an ornament to society, a profound student, and above all so modest and retiring that she would almost be called bashful. She is never idle. She knows how to dress well, and does so. Here she is in a new corded velvet reception gown of lilac and prune, being still in half mourning. Around the bottom of the demitrain is a puff of the same. The corsage is garnished with point de Venice lace. A sash girdle of prune velvet ties in the back in a Japanese bow and falls to the bottom of the dress. The color and material as well as the style are all suited to her personality. It is rich and not somber, and has grace without straining for effect.

Two beautiful carriage cloaks for two other ladies known for their gentle goodness as well as for their husband's great wealth were just received from abroad. One is of terra cotta felt cloth, fine as velvet, and has three rows of sable around the shoulders and one on the bottom. The gown to go with this is of black biarritz cloth, and the hat of black velvet and bow of terra cotta red velvet. In the back is a Watteau fold.

The other is a long cloak of black bengaline, bordered with black marten. The yoke top to the sleeves and cuffs is of black velvet, with a rich beading in dull jet. The front is particularly graceful, being draped across. This cloak has already been copied in camel's hair and velvet. It is lined throughout. The hat is of black plush felt, with plumes and a cut steel buckle. All in all two handsomer models have not been presented this season.

A ZEALOUS SCHOLAR.

What Professor Max Muller Has Done Toward the Enlightenment of the Whole Human Race.

His Works Are His History and His Pen Has Been Very Busy for Fifty Years.

Congressman Tim Campbell's Wife, Who is Electioneering in a Highly Novel and Winning Style.

The last Aryan conquest of India took place nearly 3,000 years after the first of which we have any clear information, and when the British Aryan met this ancient relative, the Brahminical Aryan, in controversy it could not but result in a great mental effervescence. There was soon a re-casting of the whole body of philology; the absurd notion that Latin was derived from Greek, and Greek in some mysterious way from Hebrew, was laughed out of court, and scholars soon rearranged the whole scheme of the derivation of tongues.

In this great work two men are pre-eminent—Sir William Jones and Max Muller. The former died too young—at the age of forty-seven, in Calcutta—but he was a youthful prodigy indeed and had won a European fame at thirty. He died in 1794, and his great successor was born at Dessau, Germany, Dec. 6, 1823. He mastered Sanskrit at Berlin and translated the famous "Rig-Veda," the oldest parts of which are now proved to have been written at least 2400 B. C. This led to his taking up a residence at Oxford, and he has been in effect an English citizen ever since.

His works are his history. Since 1844, when he published his translation of the ancient Sanskrit or Aryan fables, his pen has never been idle. His scattered essays have been collected and published with the odd title of "Chips from a German Workshop." The zeal of such scholars has aroused the Hindoos, and their scholars have contributed much to our knowledge. Men of both branches of the Aryan race formed the recent oriental congress, and among them Max Muller was the leader.

CONGRESSMAN CAMPBELL'S WIFE.

She Is Electioneering in a Highly Novel Style.

Mrs. Timothy J. Campbell is doing what she can to secure her husband's re-election to congress from one of the districts in New York city. Tim's constituents are mostly people who work and who like to see other people work. His marriage not long ago to a Washington girl, and a Republican at that, was not pleasing to the mothers in the district who had eligible daughters and looked on their political representative as a possible son-in-law. The other day, however, when she realized that her husband might possibly suffer defeat on her account, the bride just rose in all her dignity and genius, rolled up her sleeves literally and tackled the washtub. She scrubbed votes off the rubbing board. The couple live in a little cottage on Columbia street, and as word went round that "de jedge's" wife was doing her own work, she, and of course her spouse, secured the popular applause and approval. The affair has created so much excitement in the district that the New York Recorder, a leading Republican paper, writes of it as follows:

MRS. T. J. CAMPBELL.

"When Mrs. Tim does anything she has a way of coming in winner. She swallowed Democracy, tariff reform, free silver and Grover Cleveland, and when she struck the district she was the best posted Democrat there. In Washington Campbell swore by her. But now he is consumed with admiration at his wife's cleverness. She can do about everything, and what she can't accomplish to perfection she gets some of the women in the district to tell her about. She has cooked till the house is like a cafe, and all Tim's constituents get a piece of Mrs. Tim's pie or Mrs. Tim's cake."

The local politicians declared that she could give them points on their own trade. She has called on the women and fondled the babies and made innumerable friends. But her crowning stroke of genius was displayed on a recent Saturday, when the news went round the district that "Campbell's Washington wife was cleaning house. Even Mrs. Tim's most enthusiastic admirers were hardly prepared to credit that. They even went over to the Campbell homestead in a hurry. Yes, there was Mrs. Tim calmly scrubbing at paint and plaster, and Tim's chances grew brighter with each swash of the brush. Her sleeves were rolled up over her pretty, plump arms. Her skirts were tucked under a capacious apron. The district has surrendered of course, for Mrs. Tim learned to be a good politician from her Republican ancestors."

All's Fish.

Complaining Husband—My dear, I should think you would be more careful when buying things for me. Now, these expensive slippers you brought from Paris are altogether too small. I can never wear them.

Cheerful Wife—Well, they'll do to spank Tommy with, dear.—Truth.

"PINK" HAWLEY.

The Famous Pitcher of the St. Louis Baseball Club.

Among the prominent young pitchers of the country is E. P. Hawley, better known as "Pink." He was born at Beaver Dam, Wis., in 1872. There was a twin brother, and at an early age the two began to play ball as pitcher and catcher. The twin brothers soon made a widespread reputation. In 1890 and 1891 the boys played with several Wisconsin teams and were widely known as "Pink and Blue," the pony battery. It was a common occurrence for from fifteen to twenty-four men to strike out on "Pink's" pitching, and many opposing teams were retired without a hit. In June, 1891, "Blue" died with pneumonia, and this broke up a battery which promised to become famous in a national sense.

"Pink" Hawley is 5 ft. 10 in. tall and weighs 180 pounds, though not yet twenty years old. Last March Anson took him south on the Chicago's practice tour. While in the south he accepted terms from the Fort Smith club. The club by his pitching won the state championship of Arkansas. Perhaps the most remarkable game of his career he pitched for that team against their rivals—the Van Burens—at Morrillton, in which he struck out twenty-two men. The St. Louis management secured his services last July, and he has since then done good work for the Browns.

Hawley has remarkable speed, swift curves and is besides cool headed. His best work with St. Louis has been against the Bostons and Cincinnatis, each of which he held down to three scattered hits.

When the twins were small the nurse tied blue and pink ribbon on them respectively, a la Girofle-Girofla, in order to distinguish one from the other. Hence their names—"Pink" and "Blue." This resemblance continued to strangers up to the hour of "Blue's" death, and it was a puzzle to decide which was the catcher and which the pitcher when they were not in their positions on the field.

The Champion Yearling Pacer.

Belle Acton, 2:22¼, the champion yearling pacer, is a beautiful dark bay, slightly tinged with brown. She was foaled April 6, 1891, and her remarkable speed, thus early developed, emphasizes the great advances made in the propagation of trotting and pacing horses during the past few years, besides showing what careful and intelligent breeding will do. Belle Acton is by Shadeland Onward, 2:18¾, out of Lottie P. (pacer), 2:17¼. She is the property of E. D. Gould, of Fullerton, Neb., by whom she was bred. Unless Belle Acton should meet with some mishap in the meantime the 3-year-old pacing record is likely to be knocked over by her next year, and there are those who declare that if any "harness horse" is ever to reach the two minute work Belle Acton is the one that will do it.

MERCURIAL Mr. J C. Jones, of Fulton, Arkansas, says of S.S.S. "About ten years ago I contracted a severe case of blood poison. Leading physicians prescribed medicine after medicine, which I took without any relief. I also tried mercurial and potash remedies, with unsuccessful results, but which brought on an attack of mercurial rheumatism that made my life one of agony. RHEUMATISM After suffering four years I gave up all remedies and began using S. Where the Wealth Is.

It is a popular, but fallacious, idea that gold and silver mines are the chief wealth-producing sources of any nation, and particularly of the United States. The yields of such famous mines as the Comstock, with its $175,000,000 of gold during its life, and the discovery of new mines, are heralded to the world by the press until the average man has his attention so taken up by them that he thinks of them as the great source of wealth. Since 1793, the product of gold in the United States has been about one billion dollars, an average of ten millions a year. In 1891, in only ten states of this Union (traversed by the Burlington Route lines) the production of wheat for that single year was 260,000,000 bushels, valued at two hundred million dollars. Five such years would equal the value of the gold mined in a hundred years. Do you see where the riches of our country are? To reach the true Eldorado, take the Burlington Route, which runs trains daily to all principal cities and towns of these states. Call on your home agent for tickets, or address for any information W. J. C. Kenyon, general passenger agent, St. Paul, Minn.

TO ARRIVE TOMOROW.

First Car Load of Ore From the Mesaba Range Will be in Duluth Tomorrow Evening.

Great Rivalry Between the Iron Range and Missabe Roads as to Which Will Get in First.

Lon Merritt Says His Road Will Start a Train Load From Mountain Iron at 5 a. m.

It is almost certain that the first carload of Mesaba range ore will be received in Duluth inside the next forty-eight hours, but though appearances seem to indicate that the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railroad has the best show of claiming the distinction of hauling the first car of Mesaba ore to the inland seaboard via Duluth it is by no means certain that it will be enabled to do so. The Mountain Iron people were anxious to send the first one from the new range to Duluth, but it begins to look as though the Little Mesaba mine on the Duluth & Iron Range road would make the Mountain Iron people hustle for first place. The Little Mesaba people have been quietly getting out ore for some time and they now have about eighty carloads on their stockpile and on Saturday they applied to the Duluth & Iron Range road for cars for loading purposes. If they get the cars desired today they will have some Mesaba range ore in Duluth tomorrow night.

A telephone message from Lon Merritt to The Herald says the first trainload of Mesaba ore will leave Mountain Iron mine for Duluth tomorrow morning at 5 o'clock over the Duluth, Missabe & Northern. This will bring it in here before nightfall if no accidents happen while in transit.

Persecuted His Barber.

"Hum!" said the irritated barber. "It's easy enough to kick. Didn't I slice all the hair off your face? What more do you expect for fifteen cents?"

"The stubble has been removed," remonstrated the customer, "but with it a large amount of my cuticle."

"Well, what of it?" demanded the barber. "Didn't I dab alum on that gash in your ear?"

"You did," the exacting customer confessed, "but you cut the tip off my nose."

"And I pasted it on with court plaster."

"True enough, but you severed one of my eyebrows and lost it on the floor."

"I kept the razor out of your eye, didn't I?"

"You did."

"And only gashed your neck in four places?"

"Quite right."

"I'm afraid you're a kicker. My advice to you is to grow a beard or buy a safety razor and not come around insulting union barbers. You're one of those fellows that want a dollar's worth of surgery with each shave and then kick because you weren't chloroformed."—New York Herald.
